Carter Says He's Converted Rivals

By The Associated Press

Democrat Jimmy Carter won an Ohio landslide Tuesday night and gained added delegates while trailing in California and New Jersey. Carter said he had made some rivals and party leaders into believers in his presidential nomination.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. wasn't among them. He opened a runaway lead in the California primary, and said he didn't consider Carter's nomination inevitable.

Ronald Reagan took command at home in California, opening a wide lead over President Ford in that winner-take-all contest for 167 Democratic nominating votes.

Reagan was gaining 60 per cent of the GOP vote there.

Ford countered with a sweeping victory in Ohio, and his nominally uncommitted supporters won in New Jersey. So in those states, Ford was ahead for 150 nominating votes.

And both Republican camps claimed they were pleased with the outcome.

Carter won the Democratic presidential preference vote in New Jersey, gaining 60 per cent of the ballots, but that won him no delegates.

In separate delegate competition there, he was trailing an uncommitted slate studded with supporters of Brown and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

California belonged to Brown, as early returns swept him far ahead of Carter and the Democratic field, with 57 per cent of the vote.

Ohio was Carter's showcase. He was gaining 54 per cent of the vote, and led for 117 delegates,

With the day's final numbers still to be calculated, Carter was ahead for 222 delegates. That would put his nationwide total at 1,129 of the 1,505 it will take to win the nomination.

On the Republican side, Reagan led for 173 delegates, Ford and his uncommitted allies for 50. That would put the nationwide totals at 954 for Ford, 865 for Reagan, with 1,130 delegates the magic number for nomination.

Carter, in Atlanta, said he had telephoned Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, Gov. George C. Wallace Alabama, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, and that all of them had indicated they now think he will be nominated.

"I might say that all of them, as a general group, indicated their belief that I would be the nominee . . ." the former Georgia governor said. "They all disavowed any interest in a stop movement of any kind."

But he also said that he did not expect rivals like Udall and Church to stop their own campaigns for the nomination.

Brown said he was just getting started. "Every state I have gone into, Jimmy Carter has lost," the California governor said. "So I will go forward. I think the Democratic nomination is still open."

Brown said his candidacy had gained a strong boost in California, and with the showing of the uncommitted delegate slate in New jjersey.

Udall, far behind in second place in Ohio, called Carter to congratulate him on "a solid victory and a brilliant campaign."

He said Carter is now the heavy favorite for nomination. "I'm a realist and will not engage in a bitter, last-ditch effort to thwart the majority of the Democratic Party," Udall said. "I will know when that majority has been formed."

Daley said a victory in Ohio would assure Carter's nomination.

Church said Carter was moving close to the strength he needs for first ballot nomination. "I told him I thought he had established an entitlement it would be difficult for the convention to deny," Church said.

He said when Carter has a delegate majority "I'll heartily congratulate him and do everything in my power to make him the next President."

Church said it would be presumptuous to think about possible vice presidential nomination. Brown said he would not accept the No. 2 spot on the ticket.

So, after 15 weeks and 31 elections, America's longest primary season ended — but the campaign was only beginning. Neither nomination was nailed down, and the candidates of both parties were mapping plans to seek new support as the final delegates are chosen in state conventions and caucuses. In addition, there were the uncommitted delegates to be coddled and cajoled before convention time.

For the Democrats, that is July 12, which means little more than a month of final campaign rounds. But the Republican convention is nine weeks off, opening on Aug. 16 in Kansas City.

Ford and Reagan already are scheduled to appear on Friday in Springfield, Mo., where 19 Republican delegates are being selected by the Missouri GOP convention.

And a late campaign flareup pointed to bitter Republican in-fighting before the convention gavel falls. It stemmed from a Ford campaign commercial that noted Reagan's comment that he might consider sending token U.S. troops to Rhodesia if the government sought them to keep the peace. The campaign ad concluded: "Gov. Reagan couldn't start a war. President Reagan could."

Reagan called it divisive, low-road campaigning. He said Ford should have disowned the ad and canceled it, but the President endorsed it and said his administration wasn't about to send troops to Rhodesia.

Caril Ann Fugate Given Parole

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

York — Another and perhaps final chapter in the now legendary Starkweather murder spree was written Tuesday with the parole of his accomplice, Caril Ann Fugate.

Miss Fugate has maintained for 18 years that she took no part in the 10 murders that led to the execution of Charles Starkweather and a life sentence for her.

Almost every Nebraskan who was alive in 1958 during the two-state chase that began in Lincoln and ended near Douglas, Wyo., holds a small piece of its terror in his memory.

The Parole Board vote Tuesday was 4-1 in favor, with Catherine Dahlquist of Omaha casting the lone vote against parole, which will become effective June 20 for Miss Fugate. Voting for parole were board Chairman John Greenholtz, Eugene Neal and Ed Rowley, all of Lincoln, and Marshall Tate from Omaha.

Several Back Parole

Several persons testified in support of Miss Fugate, while only written objection was presented to the board.

Miss Fugate, 32, became eligible for parole in October 1973 when her life sentence was commuted to a term of 30-50 years.

Miss Fugate has been imprisoned at the Nebraska Center for Women in York since she was 15.

Since a news special on national television brought Miss Fugate to national attention in 1972, she has kept a low publicity profile.

At Miss Fugate's request, the board stipulated under terms of the parole that she must have written permission from the board before granting an interview.

'Do Best As Citizen'

"I don't wish to give interviews now or in the future," she said. "I simply want to go out and do the best I can as a citizen."

Miss Fugate said she has a job waiting for her as a clerk-typist in "a more or less private type of employment" in another state.

"I'd like to settle down, get married, have a couple of kids — you know — be a regular, ordinary, little, dumpy housewife," she said.

Board member Rowley raised the central question involved in the release of the 32-year-old woman, who has spent more than half her life behind bars.

End Of Retribution

"Where does retribution end, and where does rehabilitation take hold?" he said. "My function is to protect society, not to protect the vindictiveness of society."

The board noted that Miss Fugate never received a bad disciplinary report, and was told she had performed admirably under a work-release program at a Henderson hospital and nursing home.

Miss Fugate said some people scorned her while she was working outside the Nebraska Center for Women in York, and there are some obstacles for her to overcome in the "free world."

"I ask them to accept me for what I am, not for what you've heard," she said. "Prison is not four walls, it's what's inside of you . . . I feel sorry for those who've locked themselves in a prison of hate."

Perhaps part of the reason no objections were voiced comes from a statement made this week by Mrs. Robert Jensen. Miss Fugate was convicted for the murder of the Bennet woman's son, Robert, 17.

"They have already told what's going to happen. It came out in the paper they have a place for her and she's going there under another name. They wouldn't have all that if they weren't pretty sure what the outcome is going to be," she said.

'Better For Murderer'

Following the decision, Mrs. Jensen said the victims and their families were given no consideration. "It's all to make life better for the murderer," she said.

When Greenholtz announced the decision, Miss Fugate sobbed, and many in the hearing room broke into applause.

Greenholtz said after the hearing that lasted about an hour that Miss Fugate would report to a parole officer in St. John's, Mich.

Representatives of the state's penal system supported Miss Fugate's bid for freedom.

"She definitely is ready for parole . . . We are very supportive of it," said Jacqueline Crawford, superintendent of the York Center.

Plane-Like Helicopter Displayed

Stratford, Conn. (AP) — A helicopter that can be made to fly like an airplane was shown by Sikorsky Aircraft to a group of military, congressional and National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials.

Officials said the helicopter would be tested in September.

They said it was designed to fly like an airplane by fitting it with auxiliary engines and a 45-foot wing.

The craft has also been designed to allow occupants to parachute in the event of an imminent crash by exploding its rotor blades and ejecting the crew by seat rockets.

Parachuting from conventional helicopters is impractical because jumpers would become entangled in the aircraft's rotor blades.

FPC Denies Dam Permit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission, after 18 years of review and controversy, has ruled out construction of the proposed High Mountain Sheep dam and two competing proposals on the Snake River.

The commission issued an order dismissing long-pending applications to build the proposed hydroelectric projects on the Snake, between Oregon and Idaho.

The decision announced on Monday was a victory for the Sierra Club, the Federation of Western Outdoor Clubs, the Idaho Alpine Club and the State of Washington Department of Ecology. They had filed a joint petition Jan. 8 seeking dismissal of the applications.

Their motion, supported by the Idaho Fish and Game Department and the FPC staff, was based on the Hells Canyon-National Recreation Area Act.

The FPC announced that the proposed dams could not be licensed because the Hells Canyon act forbids "the construction of any dam, water conduit, reservoir, powerhouse, transmission line, or other project work under the Federal Power Act . . . within the recreation area."

The case began in March 1968, when Pacific Northwest Power Co. of Portland, Ore., applied to the FPC for permission to build the proposed High Mountain Sheep Project on the Snake River.

Two years later, Washington Public Power Supply System of Kennewick, Wash., applied to build a conflicting project called Nez Perce.

The FPC approved the High Mountain Sheep project in 1975, but upon appeal the case was sent back for further hearings.

Pacific Northwest and Washington Public Power then filed a joint application proposing any of three alternative locations on the Snake River: High Mountain Sheep, Pleasant Valley-Mountain Sheep, or Appaloosa-Mountain Sheep.

Mrs. Nokes Reluctantly Freed

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

York — Ena Nokes, 46, who was convicted of unlawfully disposing of dead bodies in the slaying of Wilma and Edwin Hoyt of rural Culbertson, was reluctantly granted parole Tuesday.

Before voting 3-2 to parole her, all five members of the Nebraska Parole Board questioned the sentence handed down for the "heinous" crime.

The shootings occurred in the basement of the Noke's home in 1973 after an argument over the Hoyt's daughter. Mrs. Kay Heinn, who had a sexual relationship with the couple.

The bodies were hacked into many pieces and disposed of in and near Harry Strunk Lake near McCook.

Would Have Opposed

Board member Eugene Neal, who voted for parole, said he would have voted against it if the sentence had been more harsh.

"Everybody you talk to says heinous crime, heinous crime, heinous crime," he said. "And it was."

But the sentence for Mrs. Nokes was five years on two counts of disposing of a body, he said, and she would be up for mandatory parole next year under Nebraska statute.

"If she had a life sentence, I'd say no keep her here," he said. "I don't have a great deal of sympathy for you."

Ed Rowley, who also voted for parole, reaffirmed Neal's position, indicating the board would have a greater say in setting conditions for her parole by acting now.

'Need Supervision'

"I think you need a parole officer, you need supervision and intensive supervision," Neal said.

Mrs. Nokes said she was sorry and that "I feel I can cope (on the outside) with God's help."

Donna Elmer of Indianola, daughter of the Hoyts, tearfully testified that Attorney General Paul Douglas, who assisted in prosecuting the Nokes while Lancaster County Attorney, used plea bargaining as "the easiest way to get a conviction so he could get into the statehouse."

'Family Mistreated'

"We as a family have been mistreated immensely," she said. "It's time somebody realized this really was a crime."

Several other members of the Hoyt family testified in opposition to parole, but directed their anger at the original prosecution and sentencing.

Mrs. Nokes was supported by members of the church she has attended in York, and her son Leslie Nokes of Fremont.

Under terms of the parole, Mrs. Nokes will be forbidden from returning to the McCook area. Roger Hoyt, son of the victims, asked the board to reconsider that decision.

"I think she should have to live in McCook, where everytime she walked out the door people knew who she was," he said.

Effective Immediately

Board Chairman John Greenholtz said the parole was effective immediately, but warned Mrs. Nokes to strictly follow conditions set up for her.

"You have your conscience to live with," he said.

Greenholtz and Catherine Dahlquist voted against the parole.

Neal and Rowley said they would push to see that one of the conditions of parole be that Mrs. Nokes not visit her husband, Harold, who is serving a life sentence in the Nebraska Penal Complex for the murders.

Striking Iron Workers Won't Picket

By JIM CAMDEN
Star Staff Writer

Iron workers are going out on strike Wednesday in Lincoln and across Nebraska, but a union official said no picket lines will be set up unless construction firms bring in outside labor to do iron work.

A picket line at a construction site would shut down work on that project, union and construction officials said, because no other union members in the building trades will cross the lines.

Pete Nelson, business agent for Local 21 of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, said he hoped the union would not have to set up pickets.

"If they just leave our work alone, we'll leave them alone," Nelson said. He added, however, that the union already had its picket signs painted up, just in case.

Nelson put the number of idled iron workers in the city at around 100. Dean Kratz, attorney for local contractors, said the number was between 50 and 60.

If pickets had been set up, however, around 1,500 construction workers could have been idled in Lincoln and several thousand across the state.

Nelson said Tuesday night that a federal mediator had set up a meeting between the union and the contractors for Wednesday morning.

If talks break down, however, contractors said work on some construction sites would have to end shortly without iron workers. Other projects could continue for a long time.

Boyd Elliot, a spokesman for Olson Construction Co., said work on the new Brandeis store at Gateway would end quickly because the project was at a stage where iron work was very important.

"I doubt if we'd be able to continue very long at all," said Elliot. When that happened, he said, workers in other trades would have to be laid off for the duration of the strike.

Elliot added that work on the State Office Building, which Olson also handles, would last a little longer than the Brandeis project without iron workers.

Lance Johs, spokesman for Henry C. Beck Co., which is working on the NBC Bank Building, said work on that site could continue without a hitch despite the strike.

"With the exception of a couple of hours of work that could wait until the strike is over, we don't have any problems," Johs said.

Other sites in Lincoln which will be without iron workers include the State Fairgrounds Grandstands, Kawasaki factory, the senior citizens high-rise at 17th and J Sts., Irving Junior High, the Animal Research Life Science and Veterinary Science Buildings, Fieldhouse and Student Center at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and several overpass projects on Interstate 80 and I-180.

Iron workers returned to work at the Omaha Public Power District's Nebraska City station Tuesday, and Nelson said there would be no walkout at the OPPD site despite the strike.

Striking Iron Workers Won't Picket

Iron workers are going out on strike Wednesday in Lincoln and across Nebraska, but a union official said no picket lines will be set up unless construction firms bring in outside labor to do iron work.

Pete Nelson, business agent for Local 21 of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, said he hoped the union would not have to set up pickets.

"If they just leave our work alone, we'll leave them alone," Nelson said. He added, however, that the union already had its picket signs painted up, just in case.

Nelson put the number of idled iron workers in the city at around 100. Dean Kratz, attorney for local contractors, said the number was between 50 and 60.

If pickets had been set up, however, around 1,500 construction workers could have been idled in Lincoln and several thousand across the state.

Nelson said Tuesday night that a federal mediator had set up a meeting between the union and the contractors for Wednesday morning.

If talks break down, however, contractors said work on some construction sites would have to end shortly without iron workers. Other projects could continue for a long time.

Boyd Elliot, a spokesman for Olson Construction Co., said work on the new Brandeis store at Gateway would end quickly because the project was at a stage where iron work was very important.

"I doubt if we'd be able to continue very long at all," said Elliot. When that happened, he said, workers in other trades would have to be laid off for the duration of the strike.

Elliot added that work on the State Office Building, which Olson also handles, would last a little longer than the Brandeis project without iron workers.

Lance Johs, spokesman for Hency C. Beck Co., which is working on the NBC Bank Building, said work on that site could continue without a hitch despite the strike.

"With the exception of a couple of hours of work that could wait until the strike is over, we don't have any problems," Johs said.

Other sites in Lincoln which will be without iron workers include the State Fairgrounds Grandstands, Kawasaki factory, the senior citizens high-rise at 17th and J Sts., Irving Junior High, the Animal Research Life Science and Veterinary Science Buildings, Fieldhouse and Student Center at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and several overpass projects on Interstate 80 and I-180.

Iron workers returned to work at the Omaha Public Power District's Nebraska City station Tuesday, and Nelson said there would be no walkout at the OPPD site despite the strike.

Lincoln Youngster Dies From Accident Injuries

A 4-year-old Lincoln boy, Joshua D. Witkowicz, died Tuesday night of injuries suffered in a car-pedestrian accident Monday afternoon.

Police said that the boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Witkowicz, of 5410 S. 42nd, died of massive head injuries at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center about 9:30 Tuesday night.

Young Witkowicz was apparently playing at 430 N. Cotner Monday afternoon when he ran into the street to retrieve a skateboard and was hit by a car driven by Leslie B. Jackson, 64, of 335 S. 47th, police said.

Reclamation Bureau Warned About Dam

(c) Washington Star

Washington — The Bureau of Reclamation and the Interior Department were warned by government geologists more than three years ago that the Teton River Dam in Idaho would be dangerous and should not be built.

The warnings were ignored and the dam burst Saturday while its reservoir was being filled with water for the first time, killing at least seven persons and leaving an estimated 30,000 homeless. Many persons were still reported missing.

An internal memorandum within the Interior Department warned in December 1972 that failure of the dam and catastrophic flooding were likely if the project were built.

Nine Dangers Cited

In April 1973, four U.S. Geological Survey geologists working on seismology and geological faulting in the Idaho area wrote a lengthy memo to the Bureau of Reclamation project engineer at the dam pointing out nine specific dangers.

Robert Curry, professor of hazard geology at the University of Montana in Missoula, worked with the four government geologists.

"We predicted this would happen," he said. "We told the Bureau of Reclamation the hazards well in advance of when they actually happened.

When the four geologists warned the Bureau of Reclamation about the dangers of the dam, the response from the Department of Interior was that they were being paid to map geology and not to meddle in the construction of dams, he said.

Earthquakes Frequent In Area

The four geologists — Steven S. Oriel, Harold J. Protska, David Schleicher and Robert J. Hackman of Denver — warned that the dam was being built in an area of seismic instability where earthquakes are frequent.

The region had, in fact, been designated as "zone three," the zone of highest seismic risk where "major destructive earthquakes may occur," according to the memo.

The weight of water in the reservoir could well cause additional earthquake activity, they said. In addition, the water seeping into the ground could cause landslides and other problems, the geologists warned.

The data they had gathered "point to (geological) instability of the project region," they wrote. "It seems desirable, therefore, to bring this information to your attention as promptly as possible."

The 1972 memo pointed out that 82.5% of the earthquakes in the area occur in June, September and October.

Filling Would Raise Table

Filling the reservoir would raise the water table along and beneath the dam, which would "increase the likelihood of slumping or shifting in response to earthquakes."

The memo states that "final point is that flooding in response to seismic or other failure of the dam — probably most likely at the time of highest water — would make the flood of February 1962 look like small potatoes."

"Since such a flood could be anticipated, we might consider a series of strategically placed motion picture cameras to document the progress as catastrophic flooding," it continued.

A copy of the memo was given in 1974 to the Sierra Club, which had been active in fighting the dam. Curry, who had worked in the organization's campaign, made it available to The Washington Star.

As early as 1971, a group of environmental organizations, including the Sierra Club, sued the government to block the dam, charging among other things that the environmental impact statement on the project had failed to examine various physical dangers in building the dam — including geologic faults in the area and possibilities of earthquakes.

He Survived Wild Ride In Flood

Darrell Grigg, 22, is in a hospital bed in Idaho Falls after he survived a wild ride on a log jam down the raging Snake River Saturday. He was hit by a wall of water released by the collapse of the Teton River Dam. He was found by rescue workers 30 feet up a tree, more than four miles from where he had been fishing when the dam collapsed.

Government To Clean Up Flood Damage

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — As flood waters from the burst Teton Dam flowed safely into another dam's reservoir Tuesday, the federal government assumed responsibility for cleaning out and repairing irrigation canals and diversion dams damaged by the flood.

Meanwhile, officials raised the death count from the flood from seven to nine. More than 500 were injured and another 30 are missing, authorities said.

The announcement was the first indication of significant government aid in an area that suffered losses estimated in the hundreds of millions of dollars following Saturday's collapse of the new dam.

An estimated 300 square miles, including more than 30,000 acres of fertile farmland, were inundated along the flood's 80-mile path.

Officials fear much more farmland will dry up unless damaged irrigation systems are repaired quickly.

"It is our responsibility to assure that water gets on the land," Asst. Interior Secretary Jack Horton told a news conference in Boise. He said the Bureau of Reclamation, which operated the dam, was being directed to start work immediately.

He said crops on about 400,000 acres are seriously threatened unless irrigation water can be delivered within a few days.

He told Gov. Cecil D. Andrus that President Ford had authorized the Interior Department to let contracts for the irrigation repairs. Officials said they had no estimate of the cost of the repairs.

However, Horton said, the over-all question of whether the federal government is liable for damages as a result of the dam break "is a tricky one. Our most important problem now is to get the flood victims housed and fed and the irrigation canals repaired.

"The question of liability is one which can be deferred until later."

Total flood damage estimates vary but have ranged up to $1 billion.

Andrus has said that, if necessary, he will go to Congress or to the courts to argue the state's claim for compensation. Idaho's members of Congress also plan to work to get the federal government to pay damages.

In Washington, Interior Department officials told Ford the government must act quickly to save the farmland deprived of irrigation by the flood damage.

Gilbert Stamm, head of the Bureau of Reclamation, returned from a tour of the flooded area and told Ford the "No. 1 priority" is to prevent drying out in the lands between Idaho Falls and American Falls that were not flooded but rely on irrigation.

Ford was told builders took extra precautions in sealing the dam's foundation and that the collapse "couldn't happen, but it did."

Stamm said, "I think for the image of the federal government as well as the welfare of the people, we need to move in immediately and start something there."

Idaho officials say they will seriously question any proposal to rebuild the Teton Dam at the same site. Many flood victims appear also to blame the government for damages and want to be reimbursed.

Construction of the Teton Dam originally was delayed for years by court actions of environmentalists.

U.S. Worried About Spread

Washington — The United States expressed concern that the stepped up fighting in Lebanon might escalate into a wider Middle East conflict involving Israel. Reacting to the latest developments in Lebanon, the State Department declined to take sides between the Syrians and their Arab rivals, but did say that the level of fighting has risen, that Syrian aircraft were overflying Lebanon, and that "several thousand" fresh Syrian forces have been recently introduced into Lebanon, bringing up the total conservatively to about one full division of 10,000 men, backed up with 200 tanks.

No Soviet Help — NATO

Brussels — According to high North Atlantic Treaty Organization sources, there is no evidence that the Soviet Union has launched any special supply operation to the sides fighting in Lebanon, as it did to Egypt and Syria immediately after the 1973 Middle East war began.

'Where Do We Go From Here?'

Three members of the Nebraska Public Service Commission attended a telephone industry convention in Kansas City last month at relatively little expense to state taxpayers. Their expense vouchers ran to a total of only $674, which, considering that the three were there for five days, is not a whole lot. But there was precious little work-related activity on the agenda, so it was only right that taxpayers not be overcharged for the party.

The Kansas City excursion also illustrates again how cozy some Nebraska public service commissioners are with an industry they are supposed to regulate. Much of the food, booze and entertainment afforded commissioners was provided free of charge by the telephone industry.

Since the three commissioners — Jack Romans of Ord, James Munnelly of Omaha and Robert Marland of Lincoln (who is retiring in January and who was on the convention program) — were absent, the commission, lacking a majority of its members, had to cancel its May 24 meeting. But the only Mid-America Telephone Convention (MATC) business sessions were held on May 25-26. On the day the Nebraska PSC meeting was cancelled the MATC agenda called for golf, door prizes and a hospitality room.

Compounding the offensiveness of the situation, the commission upon the return of its junketing members refused to allow two PSC staff people permission to attend a regional regulatory meeting at Tulsa. And a move is afoot on the part of at least some of the commissioners to even further restrict professional growth (meetings, seminars, etc.) opportunities for the staff. Romans has suggested that only department heads or above even be considered for such trips. This would be consistent with the effort of some commissioners to downgrade staff capabilities.

The theme of the MATC meet in Kansas City was "Where Do We Go From Here?" While Nebraska's junketing commissioners are trying to figure out their next destination, voters here should also be settling on a new course — one aimed at shaking up the commission majority.

Patrolling The Parks

Changes in the operation of the Lincoln Police Department have been for the better, we believe, since Chief George Hansen assumed control last September. But one new proposal, to receive a public hearing next week, can be viewed with some skepticism.

It involves absorbing the city park rangers into the police department, eliminating the rangers as a distinctive division with their own uniforms and vehicles and transferring their direction from the parks department to the police command.

Under the proposal, more officers would be put to work patrolling Lincoln's parks — a move considered necessary by the mayor, the police chief and some members of the City Council because of increased criminal activity in the parks.

Beefing up park patrol appears to be a good idea, but we're not so sure that absorbing the park rangers into the police department is the best way to go about it. For one thing, as Councilman Max Denney points out, it could end up costing considerably more money than the present arrangement.

Several hundred people reportedly have signed petitions opposing the change with some doing so apparently because they feel that the park rangers are more "people-oriented" than regular police officers.

We have supported the separate arrangement with park rangers having a distinctive identity and image more in keeping with park use and atmosphere.

If the set-up is changed, it should be supported with hard evidence that park rangers can't handle the job of patrolling the parks and keeping order therein, that administratively it is a headache and that the change is well worth the added costs.

If the evidence isn't to be found, the city had bette: go ahead and beef up the park ranger division to the needed level, leaving it separate from the police department.

Beer Garden Up In Air

When it came to counting votes, not enough could be had Monday for City Council approval of a proposal to open up outdoor beer gardens at the municipal golf courses.

Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith had offered the beer garden idea at the behest of golfers apparently tired of cramped clubhouse beerdrinking quarters.

The proposal drew three aye votes (with four needed) and two negatives with two council members absent. The proposal should be brought up again next week.

It is our notion that the council should give the beer gardens a tryout — which brings up Councilman Max Denney's reasons for voting against the proposal.

Denney said one of the reasons he voted against the city golf course beer gardens was because beer gardens have traditionally been denied private licensees.

We've never been able to figure out why there couldn't be a beer garden in Lincoln if a licensee wanted one, other than the fact that such proposed operation was always opposed by the police department under the former chief.

It will be interesting to note official reaction to any new proposal by a private licensee for a beer garden-type operation in the city.

17th & J Apartment Building

Lincoln, Neb.

Even the crane at 17th and J Streets looks out of place. I can't even imagine how bad that apartment building is going to look when it is done.

Once again the elected city officials and Mr. Brogden's department have shown their lack of leadership and direction by allowing this to happen.

When will someone of authority come forward and demand that Mr. Brogden either get the job done or get someone who CAN get the job done, so things like the nine-story apartment building at 17th and J Streets will not be allowed to happen?

Jobs Not Dangerous

Lincoln, Neb.

On the editorial page of The Star for Friday, June 4, the rhetorical question was asked: "Jobs Are Dangerous?" The editorial then went on from there to praise the socialistic Humphrey-Hawkins Bill, and to castigate Messrs. McCollister and Thone for daring to oppose this insidious and dangerous measure.

No, Virginia, it is not the jobs that are dangerous, but the would-be employer. It should be apparent to all but the blind or to those who wear the rose-colored glasses of the so-called liberal ideology that the United States of America has had way too much socialism in the last 40-odd years and that socialism is leading to a gradual but inevitable enslavement of the American people.

It has been ruled by the Supreme Court that what the federal government subsidizes, the government may likewise regulate. Thus we are tied at the beginning by threads of obligations which, ultimately become the cables of control.

Anyone who thinks the government should provide him with a job should go join the Army!

Bells Ringing

WASHINGTON — An epic battle over telephone equipment is raging in the backrooms of Congress. The brouhaha has brought the telephone industry's top brass, led by American Telephone and Telegraph chairman John deButts, to Capitol Hill for some stormy meetings.

At stake is the right of householders to buy their own telephone equipment instead of paying the phone companies. The Federal Communications Commission contends that the freedom to purchase would offer telephone users a better deal. But the companies warn that they would have to raise rates to make up for the revenue loss.

The FCC has issued a series of complex rulings, which has had the effect of eroding the telephone companies' natural monopoly. The Bell System quietly looked around for someone to sponsor legislation that would nullify the FCC rulings.

Bell bigwigs sounded out Senate Commerce Chairman Warren Magnuson, D.-Wash., and Senate Communications chairman John Pastore, D.-R.I. These two key senators finally consented to meet several of the telephone industry's most high-powered executives, with deButts in command.

Pastore can be as feisty as one of his state's red roosters. In sizzling language, he told the telephone executives that he didn't want their legislation in his subcommittee. It was "the wrong time and the wrong place," he snapped.

Undeterred, the deButts group finally persuaded amiable Sen. Vance Hartke, D.-Ind., to sponsor the telephone bill. On the House side, Rep. Teno Roncalio, D.-Wyo., agreed to introduce it.

Once the bill was in the legislative works, the Bell System began a massive lobbying campaign. For the first time in its history, AT&T asked all three million of its stockholders to write their congressmen, urging them to vote for the legislation.

Phone company executives were also summoned in from all corners of the country to pay personal calls on their senators and congressmen.

We spoke to several AT&T executives who argued that their customers will lose if competition is forced on the industry. They said the Bell System loses money on every private home phone line but subsidizes the home service by offering specialized equipment. If competitors are permitted to sell this equipment, said the phone men, then the rates will go up.

But the FCC claims competition can only improve the telephone system, citing a New York State study which shows the phone companies would not lose money from competition.

Similarity In Carter-Kennedy Problems

WASHINGTON — The decision of the Democratic Party on whether to nominate Jimmy Carter goes to the fundamental problem of the South's political relationship with the rest of the nation.

For the last 30 years, two racial developments have proceeded simultaneously in this country. In the South, blacks, with considerable help from the federal government, have broken down segregation. As this struggle proceeded, the once solidly Democratic South has been in political turmoil.

The old solidarity had been based upon the national Democratic Party's tacit acceptance of a segregated, white-dominated South. When in the Truman administration the national party began to intervene on behalf of blacks to disrupt the status quo, whites in the Deep South rebelled. Their rebellion took various political forms, including the Dixiecrat third party in 1948, independent electors in 1960, Goldwater Republicanism in 1964, George C. Wallace's third party in 1968, and Nixon Republicanism in 1972.

Meanwhile, in the North, blacks migrated to large cities where some blacks had always lived and to many smaller cities where they had formerly been almost unknown. Racial problems that had once been thought of as primarily or peculiarly Southern now became familiar in the North.

As racial problems became nationwide, there arose the danger that the politics of the whole country would take on an increasingly Southern character. In the South, discussion of serious economic and social issues had repeatedly been frustrated as demagogues turned every question into a racial issue. Wallace showed how this demagogic technique could be applied in the North. He exploited racial fears and antagonisms in Michigan and Indiana as skillfully as he did in Alabama. As recently as this spring, he swept the city of Boston in the Democratic presidential primary on the busing issue. Thus, there lurked in the national consciousness a nightmare of a nationwide politics based on racial demagogery, of an America become Alabama writ large.

Jimmy Carter's accomplishment has been to put an end to this Wallaceite nightmare. It is logical that the cutting edge of his national candidacy has been his black support. In effect, black voters have had a veto power over the aspirations of Southern white politicians. As long as the South maltreated blacks, the rest of the country would not trust a Southerner with the presidency. The confidence that blacks in Georgia have in Carter is the guarantee to the rest of the nation of his good faith.

It is a profoundly encouraging development for the whole nation that the South has produced a leader that the rest of the country can accept. After wandering down various dead-end streets such as the Goldwater candidacy and the Dixiecrat and Wallaceite third parties, the South is at last moving back into the main road of American politics.

If the Democratic Party were now to reject a Southern politician with a national outlook, centrist convictions, and black support, many Southerners might reasonably conclude that he had been the victim of regional prejudice. In many ways, Carter's situation resembles that of John F. Kennedy in 1960. He, like Kennedy, has shown himself to be a superb politician with the potential to be a creative national leader. He, too, has an ideological problem with some of his party's liberals. He has liberal alliances and commitments without having been a certifiable liberal throughout his career or on all issues.

Kennedy's obstacles were old religious antagonisms and musty fears of the Papacy which, when exposed to the sunlight of contemporary reality, crumbled like Egyptian mummies into dust. Carter's cultural problem is that many Northern Democrats do not readily identify with a rural Southern Baptist from Georgia. He, like Kennedy, has largely stripped himself of the cultural cliches of his region and his religion. He is no more Senator Claghorn than Kennedy was James Michael Curley. Yet unavoidably he remains a somewhat alien figure.

Kennedy could not have won in 1960 without the electoral votes of six Southern states. Furthermore, once elected, he found that he could not govern without at least the minimal cooperation of Southern committee chairmen in Congress.

Similarly, Carter cannot win the election or govern effectively unless he obtains the support and cooperation of the Irish-Italian-Jewish-Slavic coalitions that dominate the urban politics of the Northeast and the industrial Middle West.

Kennedy broke the taboo against Catholics. Now Carter is attempting to do the same for the Deep South. His task is more complicated than merely lining up those 1,505 delegates needed for the nomination. By private negotiation and public gesture, he has to demonstrate that he understands the interests and the needs of those members of his party with whom he has least in common and that he truly seeks to be president of all the people.

Reagan And The Southern Strategy

WASHINGTON — The 1968-72 GOP Southern Strategy may be remembered bitterly by McGovern-Humphrey Democrats trampled under its flashing hoofs. But for those of us who saw it ride to two successful national victories, it was both a sure-footed political warhorse and an accurate trail-blazer of the political power shift from the tired Northeast to the resurging states of the old Confederacy.

Today, however, with Ronald Reagan at the reins, the new Southern Strategy is being handled with less effectiveness and perception. Definitely less. In short, the Reagan boys may be blowing it.

Their first miscalculation pivots on Dixie regionalism. The Cotton Belt, remember, is political light years away from the mile-high Smoky Mountains and Florida condominium country. Barry Goldwater failed to understand this in 1964 and he wound up carrying only the Deep South. There is more than a whiff of the same political geography about Reagan. He has lost fully half of 1976's 10 Southern and border state primaries. Four of George Wallace's 1968-72 bastions went for Reagan (Alabama, Georgia, Arkansas and North Carolina), along with gunslingin' Texas. But Michigan Yankee Gerald Ford managed to beat Reagan in the moderate conservative peripheral states of Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Maryland and West Virginia.

More extraordinarily, the Californian is even repeating Goldwater's critical Dixie policy blunders. Before Florida's primary, for example, Reagan let himself be suckered into mentioning possible changes in the Social Security system. He would have done better passing out pork chops in Miami Beach! Up and down the East and West Coast retirement belts, the ghosts of 1964 promptly climbed out of their musty vaults: clank, rattle; Reagan will do away with Social Security. It wasn't true, of course, but Reagan certainly mishandled the issue.

Then, in Tennessee, the one-time host of the General Electric television theater made another high-voltage local political mistake.

He actually let himself touch on the possibility of selling the federally owned, cheap-power-producing Tennessee Valley Authority to private enterprise.

Exactly the same pair of blunders caused Barry Goldwater to lose tight November, 1964 races in both states. Who says history doesn't repeat?

Despite these obvious sub-Mason-Dixon Line weaknesses, the California conservative is still centering his case for the GOP nomination on Jimmy Carter and the argument that he alone, Ronald Reagan, can beat Carter in the South. This is risky business.

From where I sit, far from being a plus factor in Reagan's blueprint, Carter ought to be considered a major minus factor. After all, the Georgian has won every Southern Democratic presidential primary save Alabama's, and his popular vote totals across Dixie dwarf those of the former governor of California. Moreover, Jimmy Carter, Baptist peanut farmer and 1970 gubernatorial race cheer-leader for George Wallace, undercuts potential Republican appeal to farmers, Wallaceites and evangelical Protestant voters, all of whom were critical participants in Nixon-Era Southern strategies.

My guess is that if the two ex-governors face off in November, a majority of voters in most Southern states will wind up eating goober peas with Brother Jimmy instead of quaffing vodka martinis and New York strip steaks with the Hollywood cowboy.

This is not to knock Reagan. The governor is a sincere, dedicated and intelligent man who has put in a decade of yeoman national service for sensible conservatism. But he's not on the rubber chicken circuit any more. He's on the political hardball circuit, and his 1976 Southern Strategy just doesn't quite measure up.

One caveat: Should the Democrats reject Carter as too Southern and too conservative, which remains a possibility, then Reagan could indeed take on the aura of a Southern winner. Against Hubert Humphrey, Morris Udall, Frank Church or Ted Kennedy, Reagan could probably rally enough alienated Confederate Carterites for a Dixie sweep.

In the meantime, though, if Carter is presumed to be the Democratic nominee, the Republicans might do better pursuing a Northern strategy under the bland, bourgeois banner of Gerald Ford.

'Where Do We Go From Here?'

Three members of the Nebraska Public Service Commission attended a telephone industry convention in Kansas City last month at relatively little expense to state taxpayers Their expense vouchers ran to a total of only $674, which, considering that the three were there for five days, is not a whole lot. But there was precious little work-related activity on the agenda, so it was only right that taxpayers not be overcharged for the party.

The Kansas City excursion also illustrates again how cozy some Nebraska public service commissioners are with an industry they are supposed to regulate Much of the food, booze and entertainment afforded commissioners was provided free of charge by the telephone industry

Since the three commissioners — Jack Romans of Ord, James Munnelly of Omaha and Robert Marland of Lincoln (who is retiring in January and who was on the convention program) — were absent, the commission, lacking a majority of its members, had to cancel its May 24 meeting. But the only Mid-America Telephone Convention (MATC) business sessions were held on May 25-26 On the day the Nebraska PSC meeting was cancelled the MATC agenda called for golf, door prizes and a hospitality room.

Compounding the offensiveness of the situation, the commission upon the return of its junketing members refused to allow two PSC staff people permission to attend a regional regulatory meeting at Tulsa. And a move is afoot on the part of at least some of the commissioners to even further restrict professional growth (meetings, seminars, etc.) opportunities for the staff. Romans has suggested that only department heads or above even be considered for such trips. This would be consistent with the effort of some commissioners to downgrade staff capabilities.

Some commission members seem willing to continue to skim the cream off the top by accepting hospitality at industry conventions while denying staff the opportunity to widen their experience at meetings of regulators

The theme of the MATC meet in Kansas City was "Where Do We Go From Here?" While Nebraska's junketing commissioners are trying to figure out their next destination, voters here should also be settling on a new course — one aimed at shaking up the commission majority.

Patrolling The Parks

Changes in the operation of the Lincoln Police Department have been for the better, we believe, since Chief George Hansen assumed control last September. But one new proposal, to receive a public hearing next week, can be viewed with some skepticism.

It involves absorbing the city park rangers into the police department, eliminating the rangers as a distinctive division with their own uniforms and vehicles and transferring their direction from the parks department to the police command.

Under the proposal, more officers would be put to work patrolling Lincoln's parks — a move considered necessary by the mayor, the police chief and some members of the City Council because of increased criminal activity in the parks.

Beefing up park patrol appears to be a good idea, but we're not so sure that absorbing the park rangers into the police department is the best way to go about it. For one thing, as Councilman Max Denney points out, it could end up costing considerably more money than the present arrangement.

Several hundred people reportedly have signed petitions opposing the change with some doing so apparently because they feel that the park rangers are more "people-oriented" than regular police officers.

We have supported the separate arrangement with park rangers having a distinctive identity and image more in keeping with park use and atmosphere.

If the set-up is changed, it should be supported with hard evidence that park rangers can't handle the job of patrolling the parks and keeping order therein, that administratively it is a headache and that the change is worth the added costs.

If the evidence isn't to be found, the city had bette. go ahead and beef up the park ranger division to the needed level, leaving it separate from the police department.

Beer Garden Up In Air

When it came to counting votes, not enough could be had Monday for City Council approval of a proposal to open up outdoor beer gardens at the municipal golf courses.

Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith had offered the beer garden idea at the behest of golfers apparently tired of cramped clubhouse beerdrinking quarters.

The proposal drew three aye votes (with four needed) and two negatives with two council members absent. The proposal should be brought up again next week.

It is our notion that the council should give the beer gardens a tryout — which brings up Councilman Max Denney's reasons for voting against the proposal.

Denney said one of the reasons he voted against the city golf course beer gardens was because beer gardens have traditionally been denied private licensees.

We've never been able to figure out why there couldn't be a beer garden in Lincoln if a licensee wanted one, other than the fact that such proposed operation was always opposed by the police department under the former chief.

It will be interesting to note official reaction to any new proposal by a private licensee for a beer garden-type operation in the city

Syrians Miles From Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian men and armor thrust to within 12 miles of Beirut and entered the southern port city of Sidon Tuesday after fierce nightlong battles with Lebanese and Palestinian troops.

Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat, in Cairo to enlist Arab aid against the Syrians, said Syrian tanks, jets and rockets were pounding refugee camps in Lebanon "in the bloodiest butchery ever."

In Washington, the State Department said "several thousand" fresh Syrian troops have crossed into Lebanon in the past few days.

Kamal Jumblatt, commander in chief of the Lebanese leftist forces, sent a message to Arab foreign ministers meeting in Cairo accusing Syria of carrying out a "Black September" in Lebanon — a reference to Jordan's bloody expulsion of Palestinian guerrillas in September 1970.

Palestinian sources said the war with the Syrians has left more than 300 killed and 600 wounded in Beirut, Sidon and the Mediterranean port of Tyre.

Arafat's command in Beirut reported that after an intense battle Syrian tanks had punched through leftist-Palestinian defenses in Sofar, a hillside town 16 miles east of Beirut on the Damascus-Beirut highway.

The Syrian column, estimated at some 200 tanks, was reported on the outskirts of Bhamdoun, 12 miles from the capital. It was getting support from Christian artillery inside Beirut.

Sources said the Syrians were only two miles from Aley, Jumblatt's mountain headquarters.

Reports from Sidon, Lebanon's third largest city and a vital Mediterranean port 25 miles south of Beirut, said Syrian tanks drove in behind a screen of artillery and rockets that sent the population fleeing for shelter in banana and orange groves.

While the Syrians advanced from the east and from the south, Arafat's guerrillas and their Moslem leftist allies battled in the streets of Beirut against commandos of the pro-Syrian Saiqa organization.

They duelled through the night with Soviet-made Katyusha and Grad rockets, breaking power lines in the capital and severing most communications with the outside world.

Guerrilla and leftist spokesmen, however, claimed their forces had "obliterated Saiqa" and halted the Syrian advance on Beirut, knocking out 21 tanks.

Syria sent an estimated 6,000 troops and tanks into Lebanon a week ago in a dramatic bid to choke off the 14-month civil war between right-wing Maronite Christians and leftist Moslems that had taken more than 26,500 lives.

But they ran into determined opposition from the leftists and Arafat's guerrillas, who had been gaining the upper hand in their struggle to wrest more power from the traditionally dominant but outnumbered Maronites. The ensuing struggle has exploded old alliances and forged strange new partnerships.

Italian Investigator Of Extremists Slain

GENOA, Italy (AP) — The Genoa state's attorney, a long-time foe of left-wing extremists, was shot to death on a busy downtown street Tuesday, just 12 days before Italy's crucial national elections. His bodyguard and his driver also were slain.

The prosecutor, Francesco Coco, had been investigating an urban guerrilla group called the "Red Brigades." A government spokesman called his death "a well-prepared, cold political murder." But there were also reports the crime was a Mafia hit.

"An enemy of the people has paid. Now it is the turn of politicians. Beware you rabble," the message said.

All political parties in Genoa agreed to suspend political rallies because of the killings.

It was the second fatal shooting in two weeks as violence between opposing political factions spread throughout the country.

Witnesses reported five gunmen, acting in two separate squads, shot Coco, 67, and his bodyguard as they walked from the car to his home for lunch.

Coco's driver rushed to his side and was also shot to death, witnesses said. The gunmen, all described as in their 30s, fled through the crowd. Two reportedly escaped on a red motorcycle.

Coco's wife and daughter heard the shooting and were among the first to reach the bodies.

Coco became prominent nationally two years ago when he refused to negotiate with left-wing extremists who had kidnaped Mario Sossi, another Genoa prosecutor and one of Coco's closest friends.

The abductors threatened to kill Sossi if Coco refused to release several extremists serving prison terms on various charges, but the prosecutor refused.

Sossi was eventually released unharmed. Coco has been extremely active in investigating the extremists since then and had been threatened repeatedly.

Some police sources, however, speculated it may have been a Mafia execution, since Coco had also investigated the assassination of a prosecutor in the Sicilian capital of Palermo in 1971.

The various political parties have appealed to their voters to keep the election campaign calm, but there have been daily reports of violence, including shootings, from cities and towns.

Two weeks ago in Sezze, a small town south of Rome, a Communist youth was shot to death and another wounded during a right-wing rally led by a member of the upper house of parliament, Sandro Saccucci.

Saccucci has been charged with murder and firearms violations, and parliament voted Tuesday to strip him of his immunity so he could be arrested and brought to trial.

Priest Accused Of Dirty Tricks

Rome (AP) — The Radical Party accused the parish priest in the little town of Sora Tuesday of campaign dirty tricks. It said he kept his church bells ringing during one of its rallies.

The Radicals filed suit in a Rome court charging the priest with disturbing an election rally, an offense punishable by up to three months in jail and a $120 fine.

The Radicals said the audience couldn't hear the speakers Monday because of the church bells.

U.S.-Chile Relations To Be Cool—Kissinger

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger said Tuesday that U.S. relations with Chile will remain cool so long as the military government violates what he termed "elemental international standards of human rights."

Endorsing the findings of the Organization of American States human rights commission, the secretary of state told a meeting of the OAS: "A government that tramples on the rights of its citizens denies the purpose of its existence."

At the same time, Kissinger credited the government of President Augusto Pinochet with offering some "hopeful prospects" of reform. He was not specific, but U.S. officials said the government is preparing constitutional amendments to protect civil rights that may be issued within two or three weeks.

In his speech to the general assembly of the OAS, Kissinger also condemned the "inhuman treatment" of political prisoners in Cuba, target of another report by the human rights commission.

"Respect for the dignity of man is declining in too many countries of the hemisphere," he said. "There are several states where fundamental standards of humane behavior are not observed."

While the report on Chile is still secret, it is known to catalogue executions, torture and other maltreatment of opponents of the government that supplanted Marxist President Salvador Allende after a bloody coup in September 1973 in which Allende died.

Syrians Miles From Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian men and armor thrust to within 12 miles of Beirut and entered the southern port city of Sidon Tuesday after fierce nightlong battles with Lebanese and Palestinian troops.

Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat, in Cairo to enlist Arab aid against the Syrians, said Syrian tanks, jets and rockets were pounding refugee camps in Lebanon "in the bloodiest butchery ever."

In Washington, the State Department said "several thousand" fresh Syrian troops have crossed into Lebanon in the past few days.

Kamal Jumblatt, commander in chief of the Lebanese leftist forces, sent a message to Arab foreign ministers meeting in Cairo accusing Syria of carrying out a "Black September" in Lebanon — a reference to Jordan's bloody expulsion of Palestinian guerrillas in September 1970.

Palestinian sources said the war with the Syrians has left more than 300 killed and 600 wounded in Beirut, Sidon and the Mediterranean port of Tyre.

Arafat's command in Beirut reported that after an intense battle Syrian tanks had punched through leftist-Palestinian defenses in Sofar, a hillside town 16 miles east of Beirut on the Damascus-Beirut highway.

The Syrian column, estimated at some 200 tanks, was reported on the outskirts of Bhamdoun, 12 miles from the capital. It was getting support from Christian artillery inside Beirut.

Sources said the Syrians were only two miles from Aley, Jumblatt's mountain headquarters.

Reports from Sidon, Lebanon's third largest city and a vital Mediterranean port 25 miles south of Beirut, said Syrian tanks drove in behind a screen of artillery and rockets that sent the population fleeing for shelter in banana and orange groves.

While the Syrians advanced from the east and from the south, Arafat's guerrillas and their Moslem leftist allies battled in the streets of Beirut against commandos of the pro-Syrian Saiqa organization.

They duelled through the night with Soviet-made Katyusha and Grad rockets, breaking power lines in the capital and severing most communications with the outside world.

Guerrilla and leftist spokesmen, however, claimed their forces had "obliterated Saiqa" and halted the Syrian advance on Beirut, knocking out 21 tanks.

Syria sent an estimated 6,000 troops and tanks into Lebanon a week ago in a dramatic bid to choke off the 14-month civil war between right-wing Maronite Christians and leftist Moslems that had taken more than 26,500 lives.

But they ran into determined opposition from the leftists and Arafat's guerrillas, who had been gaining the upper hand in their struggle to wrest more power from the traditionally dominant but outnumbered Maronites. The ensuing struggle has exploded old alliances and forged strange new partnerships.

Monster Lurks in Leningrad

Russian artists in Leningrad took their tools and brushes to an enormous tree root next to the Peter and Paul Fortress on the banks of the Neva River and created a ground-hugging monster whose feet are planted firmly in the soil

Italian Investigator Of Extremists Slain

GENOA, Italy (AP) — The Genoa state's attorney, a long-time foe of left-wing extremists, was shot to death on a busy downtown street Tuesday, just 12 days before Italy's crucial national elections. His bodyguard and his driver also were slain.

The prosecutor, Francesco Coco, had been investigating an urban guerrilla group called the "Red Brigades." A government spokesman called his death "a well-prepared, cold political murder." But there were also reports the crime was a Mafia hit.

"An enemy of the people has paid. Now it is the turn of politicians. Beware you rabble," the message said.

All political parties in Genoa agreed to suspend political rallies because of the killings.

It was the second fatal shooting in two weeks as violence between opposing political factions spread throughout the country.

Witnesses reported five gunmen, acting in two separate squads, shot Coco, 67, and his bodyguard as they walked from the car to his home for lunch.

Coco's driver rushed to his side and was also shot to death, witnesses said. The gunmen, all described as in their 30s, fled through the crowd. Two reportedly escaped on a red motorcycle.

Coco's wife and daughter heard the shooting and were among the first to reach the bodies.

Coco became prominent nationally two years ago when he refused to negotiate with left-wing extremists who had kidnaped Mario Sossi, another Genoa prosecutor and one of Coco's closest friends.

The abductors threatened to kill Sossi if Coco refused to release several extremists serving prison terms on various charges, but the prosecutor refused.

Sossi was eventually released unharmed. Coco has been extremely active in investigating the extremists since then and had been threatened repeatedly.

Some police sources, however, speculated it may have been a Mafia execution, since Coco had also investigated the assassination of a prosecutor in the Sicilian capital of Palermo in 1971.

The various political parties have appealed to their voters to keep the election campaign calm, but there have been daily reports of violence, including shootings, from cities and towns.

Two weeks ago in Sezze, a small town south of Rome, a Communist youth was shot to death and another wounded during a right-wing rally led by a member of the upper house of parliament, Sandro Saccucci.

Saccucci has been charged with murder and firearms violations, and parliament voted Tuesday to strip him of his immunity so he could be arrested and brought to trial.

Drought Causes S. Dakota Ruin

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Cattle are being herded to market in record numbers and state agriculture officials are considering disaster relief as hot, dry weather continues to burn pasture and crops in central and northeastern South Dakota.

An emergency meeting was held Tuesdy in Pierre to consider disaster designations.

The Sioux Falls Stockyard received a record 12,000 cattle for auction and slaughter Monday. The previous single-day high was 8,758 on Jan. 14, 1974, although there was a heavy crush last June as well.

Of the total, 6,450 were auctioned to feed lots to be fattened for slaughter. Another 1,500 were kept overnight for auction Tuesday.

Spokesmen said one factor in the heavy run was the dry weather. There is no feed on the farms. Pastures have not grown. Alfalfa crops are falling short of expectations, and much of the grain crops are burning up. With hay approaching $85 a ton, and cash corn prices up 10-cents per bushel, farmers are culling their herds to reduce their expenses.

Milbank was the hardest hit area in the state, according to the National Weather Service. Since the start of the growing season March 9, Milbank has received .97 inch of rain, a shortage of 5.38 from normal.

Weathermen said the northeast corner of the state "was suffering the greatest drought so far." But the east-central was badly hit too. The Sioux Falls area had received 3.7 inches of rain, down 3.43 inch.

State Agriculture Secretary Robert Duxbury said there were probably fewer than 10 counties in the state that have adequate moisture."

In other developments:

—The weather service said the rangeland fire danger was very high to extreme in the eastern and central portions of the state.

—The state Water Rights Commission put a temporary moratorium on irrigation rights in Brookings and Hamlin counties to watch water levels.

—Congressman Larry Pressler said assistance might be needed to transport hay into northeastern South Dakota and he said the drought "had the makings of a great economic disaster."

Sugar Growers Set New Mark

Clewiston, Fla. (AP) — Florida sugar growers produced a record 1.05 million tons in the 1975-76 season, according to the Florida Sugar Cane League.

The league said the crop was worth about $320 million to producers.

NFU: Ford Reduced Value Of Grain

Washington (AP) — The National Farmers Union says that Ford administration policies, primarily the embargo on sales to the Soviet Union and Poland last year, have reduced the value of grain exports $3.3 billion this season.

After Russia bought large quantities of U.S. wheat and corn last summer, further sales were halted while a long-term agreement was worked out. Sales to Poland also were stopped for a time but were resumed after a few weeks.

The embargo on Russian sales was lifted when the new five-year agreement was announced last Oct. 20, but many farmers and their spokesmen have complained that reduced prices were a result.

In a newsletter this week, the NFU noted that the Agriculture Department recently reported that the value of grain exports is down $400 million from a year ago although the volume of grain shipped is up 17%.

Robert G. Lewis, NFU secretary, said that "prices probably would have gone higher than a year earlier if the U.S. government had not intervened to restrict exports" to Russia and Poland.

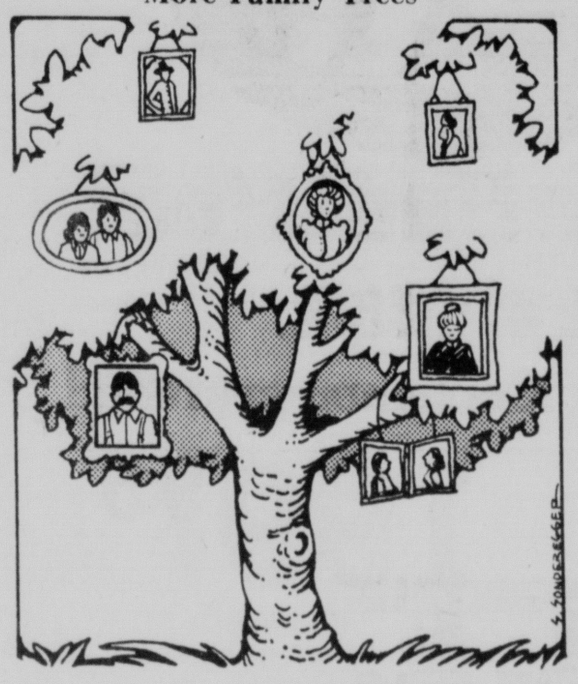
Recycled Center

Whatever happened to the recycling center that used to be located in the East High school parking lot? We used to take material there and now we have to drive downtown. What happened to make them get rid of that center?

— J. W., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The recycling center located in the East High parking lot was closed in February. The reason for its shutdown was that since last Fall several fires had apparently been set in the truck used to collect the recyclable items. According to a spokesman for the company which supplied the truck for the Citizens for Environmental Improvement group, the company couldn't afford to keep paying to repair damaged trucks. The recycling group is looking into other sites in the eastern parts of the city to locate a center.

More Family Trees



ACTION UPDATE: In reference to a question in last Wednesday's column from Debbie Miller about tracing a family tree, ACTION LINE has heard from several other sources who can help trace your family tree. The Lincoln-Lancaster Geneology Club can get you started on plotting your family history according to Lester Rumbaugh. For more information contact Rumbaugh. His phone number is listed in the Lincoln directory. Also, while not available this summer, Southeast Community College will teach a course in geneology again in the Fall.

Bicentennial Publications

When will the Nebraska Bicentennial publications be ready for us to pick up? We sent in our check for the special set that the Sunday Journal and Star offers, but so far no set.

— Stanley Schmegorian, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The special set of the weekly Bicentennial series will not be ready until after July 4, the last day the series is run. If you ordered the magazines to be picked up, they will be available from the Journal-Star Circulation counter during business hours after July 5. For those sets that were to be mailed, a spokesman from the circulation department says they will be mailed probably during the week following the Fourth of July.

Consumer Information Center has several brocheures available this summer on home canning. For 45¢ a copy of "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" is available. The 32-page booklet carries information on how to prepare and process these items for canning and what equipment and ingredients are necessary. Questions are answered on safe canning methods in a free copy of "Home Canning Safety." CARMICHAEL

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Moving often requires a good deal of lifting which should be done properly to avoid injury, says the Nebraska Medical Association.

Back injuries often happen when you stoop with the back arched and with the load out at the end of the arms. This puts the whole strain at the point of the bend of the back where the muscles lack the strength to bear the load.

The Nebraska Medical Association urges you to let your strong leg muscles do the work. If a load is too heavy or awkward, get someone to help you. Make sure you can cope with the weight and size of the load by yourself.

The proper way to lift is to stand with knees bent and get a good grip on the object. Keep the back as straight as possible, as you lift slowly without jerking by pushing up with your legs. This way, the strong muscles do the work rather than the weaker back muscles.

If you are moving sacked materials, grasp diagonal corners and swing to one corner with a boost from the knee. Long objects should be carried over the shoulder with the end held as high as possible to prevent hitting anyone.

Use dollies to move large pieces of home furnishings or appliances.

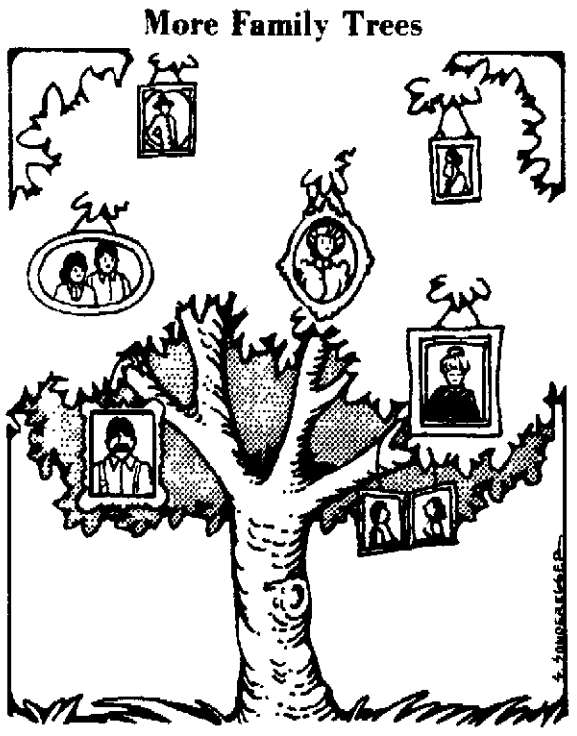
Recycled Center

Whatever happened to the recycling center that used to be located in the East High school parking lot? We used to take material there and now we have to drive downtown. What happened to make them get rid of that center?

— J. W., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The recycling center located in the East High parking lot was closed in February. The reason for its shutdown was that since last Fall several fires had apparently been set in the truck used to collect the recyclable items. According to a spokesman for the company which supplied the truck for the Citizens for Environmental Improvement group, the company couldn't afford to keep paying to repair damaged trucks. The recycling group is looking into other sites in the eastern parts of the city to locate a center.

More Family Trees



ACTION UPDATE: In reference to a question in last Wednesday's column from Debbie Miller about tracing a family tree, ACTION LINE has heard from several other sources who can help trace your family tree. The Lincoln-Lancaster Geneology Club can get you started on plotting your family history according to Lester Rumbaugh. For more information contact Rumbaugh. His phone number is listed in the Lincoln directory. Also, while not available this summer, Southeast Community College will teach a course in geneology again in the Fall.

Bicentennial Publications

When will the Nebraska Bicentennial publications be ready for us to pick up? We sent in our check for the special set that the Sunday Journal and Star offers, but so far no set.

— Stanley Schmegorian, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The special set of the weekly Bicentennial series will not be ready until after July 4, the last day the series is run. If you ordered the magazines to be picked up, they will be available from the Journal-Star Circulation counter during business hours after July 5. For those sets that were to be mailed, a spokesman from the circulation department says they will be mailed probably during the week following the Fourth of July.

Canning Tips

ACTION TIP: With warm weather here, thoughts of home-grown fruits and vegetables will soon turn toward canning the fruits of your labor. Consumer Information Center has several brocheures available this summer on home canning. For 45¢ a copy of "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" is available. The 32-page booklet carries information on how to prepare and process these items for canning and what equipment and ingredients are necessary. Questions are answered on safe canning methods in a free copy of "Home Canning Safety." For 45¢ each, copies can also be obtained of "Making Pickles and Relishes at Home," and "How to Make Jellies, Jams and Preserves at Home." For any of these government publications write Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

CARMICHAEL

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Moving often requires a good deal of lifting which should be done properly to avoid injury, says the Nebraska Medical Association.

Back injuries often happen when you stoop with the back arched and with the load out at the end of the arms. This puts the whole strain at the point of the bend of the back where the muscles lack the strength to bear the load.

The Nebraska Medical Association urges you to let your strong leg muscles do the work. If a load is too heavy or awkward, get someone to help you. Make sure you can cope with the weight and size of the load by yourself.

The proper way to lift is to stand with knees bent and get a good grip on the object. Keep the back as straight as possible, as you lift slowly without jerking by pushing up with your legs. This way, the strong muscles do the work rather than the weaker back muscles.

If you are moving sacked materials, grasp diagonal corners and swing to one corner with a boost from the knee. Long objects should be carried over the shoulder with the end held as high as possible to prevent hitting anyone.

Use dollies to move large pieces of home furnishings or appliances.

To Your Good Health:

Rest, Heat Ease Shoulder Pains

By George C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain the causes and treatment for frozen shoulder. The pain is beyond belief, and the arm is practically useless. Isn't there some sort of cure? — E. B.

"Frozen shoulder" is an indefinite term intended to refer to a shoulder joint which has become stiff (another imprecise term) as a result of injury or prolonged immobilization. The shoulder is a ball and socket structure supported by unusually strong muscles, ligaments and tendons. Wide latitudes of movement make it susceptible to such problems as tendon irritation or inflammation and bursitis, which is inflammation of the tiny sacs that facilitate joint movement.

Rest, application of heat and the use of anti-inflammation drugs is usually sufficient for the average case. Diathermy (high frequency electrical current) is sometimes helpful. If calcium deposits develop, these can be removed surgically when other methods fail.

An orthopedist can detect the precise area of difficulty by expert manipulation of the joint. The shoulder is a remarkably resilient structure which responds well to conservative treatment. If rest and heat produces no relief, then it must be investigated further to avoid development of more permanently disabling conditions.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are nasal polyps? Where do they come from? Are they cancerous? What causes them to grow back? Why should they be treated? — E. L.

Polyps are growths extending from a mucous membrane. They can occur in many places in the body — the ears, mouth, lungs, stomach, uterus, for examples — but the nasal membranes are always prime sites. They can result from either an irritation or an allergy. Often they will grow within sinuses, causing unpleasant nasal problems.

Sometimes polyps will grow in clusters from a single stalk much the way a mushroom does.

Where the cause of polyps cannot be treated, they will tend to recur, as with an alergy. Where the nasal polyps cause an obstruction to breathing they are removed in a rather simple procedure. The growth is snipped off. Often the base is cauterized to prevent recurrence in that spot.

Nasal polyps are usually benign. Polyps elsewhere may be malignant or have the potential to become malignant, which is why they are usually investigated when discovered.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please explain to me what a subcutaneous lipoma is?

I developed these 30 years ago. I am now 54. They are on my arms, legs, back and stomach. Some are small and some are large. I was told back then that, as long as they didn't get any bigger or bother me, I should leave them alone. They have stayed about the same.

My doctor died, and my new doctor would like to take a biopsy. I figure that it's best to leave well enough alone, and that a biopsy would make matters worse. I have a lot of them, and couldn't count the number.

Can you please explain them, how to get rid of them, and whether you think they should be left alone or not? — Mrs. M.J.M.

These are what are called "fatty tumors." They appear in the tissue directly beneath the skin. They are the type of tumors that move freely about in examination and are not attached to sourrounding tissue. Lipomas are composed of fat cells, are more common in fat persons, and are rarely cause for concern, requiring no treatment, unless, as your earlier doctor advised, they change in size or appearance.

Your new doctor, who has not had the advantage of observing them over any length of time, wisely wants to do what your former doctor may well have done years ago — take a biopsy to ease his own mind about them.

A biopsy could not make matters worse. It is a simple procedure. If not extensive, it can be performed in the doctor's office. Don't get yourself in a tizzy about it. Follow your doctor's advice.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

When the Black Generals left the French Army, Napoleon sent 25,000 troops to teach Haiti a lesson.

They were commanded by General LeClerc, Napoleon's own brother-in-law by marriage to Marie Pauline. Marie Pauline was the swinger of her day. She wore see-through blouses. Stayed up all night dancing the meringue with a General. (She described him as "the handsomest man in the French Army!")

Oo-la-la Marie!

The French were based on Cap Haitien — Cap Francais they called it. Mme. LeClerc and her handsome General moved to Port-au-Prince. LeClerc died of yellow fever. The French Army and Marie Pauline sailed home.

The only memory is a new hotel, Habitation LeClerc.

The hotel is built — maybe — on the bedroom grounds where Marie Pauline met the handsome General halfway.

It was backed by all the Beautiful People. Those names that repeat themselves forever in Suzie's New York gossip column: Mick Jagger, Jane Fonda, George Plimpton — you could finish this list yourself.

The advance news on Habitation LeClerc sounded like it had been planned by Marie Pauline on one of her better nights.

All liquor was to be FREE!

Everybody was to get genuine Haiti love beads. (Don't know what these are but they sound like a local catnip.)

There were to be 44 villas. Three servants to each and a private swimming pool.

The only thing I could see they left out was a "handsome French General" to be issued to each female guest.

We went out to see it the other day and it isn't much. It really isn't.

Fielding's Guide to the Caribbean — the best and most accurate — says:

"We must rank this as one of the biggest disappointments of 1975. Bar none."

It hasn't improved so far in 1976.

☆ ☆ ☆

It's a fruity time of year in warm Haiti. Pineapple and mango. Avocado and tomato. Everything ripened on the tree or vine. We look down through spider lilies and bougainvillea. Green trees loaded with green breadfruit.

Far below is the blue Caribbean and the edges of the sky are floating puffs of white clouds.

The morning smells of heavy roast Haitian coffee. The heavy roast you load with sugar. To put cream in it would be criminal.

The primitive painters are up and walking by. Each arm is loaded with the brightest pain splashed on canvas. Everybody's a Grandma Moses of the black tropics.

A Haitian hotel man told me: "I don't know whether this is great 'Art'. I know some of it is pointed out as great stuff. But I tell you, I see the same thing hanging on a public wall down by the market.

"You show them to me side by side, and I couldn't tell you the one that was the masterpiece."

Highwire Act Without Wire

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — State parks officials have all but ruled out the possibility that two French aerialists will be allowed to walk across the Niagara River Gorge on a highwire in September, it was disclosed.

Aerialists Philippe Petit and Henri Rechatin want to make the walk, but George Martin, chairman of the Niagara Frontier State Parks Commission, said, "It's not encouraging at all this year."

He said state officials cited safety factors, legal questions and a lack of adequate preparation time as reasons they are likely to turn down the request.

Exon Says Democrats Are Strong Financially

The Nebraska Democratic Party is "in one of the best financial conditions the party has ever been in, going into a general election," Gov. J. James Exon said Tuesday.

"The party has no outstanding obligations and all loans have been paid in full," Exon said in a prepared statement. "In addition, the party has $25,887 cash in the bank, plus approximately $20,000 in accounts receivable."

Exon said he released the information to "set the record straight, because I have heard that some party officials and some would-be party officials have publicly and privately said the party was in financial trouble, and had indicated (it) had no resources for contribution to its nominees for major office in 1976."

The governor said he "could not speculate on the motives of a few who are making such unfounded statements." He said it's customarily been the party's practice to borrow money during an election year if necessary to assist nominees financially.

"I would certainly support such a proposal for 1976 so long as we agreed, as usual, that the money would be repaid by the proceeds from the next Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner."

That annual spring affair is traditionally the prime fund-raising event for the Nebraska Democratic Party.

Parties For Cutting Back On Delegates

By The Associated Press

State political party leaders Tuesday indicated their support for proposed revisions in Nebraska's delegate selection process, following a meeting Monday of the State Canvassing Board.

The board went on record in favor of trimming the long lists of delegate candidates entered in the May 11 primary election.

State Democratic Chairman Dick White said he would support either a proportional representation proposal or having potential candidates gather petition signatures to qualify for the ballot.

"A petition would require some work, but certainly they could gather the signatures, which would discourage frivolous filings," White said.

Nebraska Republican Party Executive Director Lloyd Herbner echoed those comments, but warned that the state GOP would oppose "any narrowing of opportunities for individuals to take part in the process as candidates."

Both White and Herbner said they favor trimming the list, rather than slating delegates. White said he believes the system is more open zithout slating.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann, a member of the canvassing board, said Monday that the large number of delegates was a contributing factor to eligible voters staying away from the polls last month. Beerman said the board hopes to meet with party leaders later this summer to draw up legislation for a revision of the delegate selection process.

Parents Of Gifted To Be Interviewed

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Parents of students identified as academically gifted will be contacted personally for input into any programs that the public schools plan for their children.

Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for curriculum, told the Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday that the personal contacts, in the form of an interview with the parents of 79 students recommended for special programs, would be made in response to concerns voiced by the parents after recent articles incorrectly said that the students might be segregated from their classmates.

Superintendent John Prasch said the administration felt that the parents of the 79 would be a manageable group which could be interviewed during the rest of the summer. He indicated that the parents would be given at least four alternatives to choose from in planning an accepted procedure for instruction.

The choices, Prasch said, would include: leave them alone; provide regular programs with advanced work in the form of "add-ons" (after school and summer programs); group the students for part of the day and provide individual tutoring and chances for study at the University; or any combination of the other three.

This "face-to-face interview" will enable the staff to know where they stand with the program, Prasch added.

Can Plan Be Ready?

Board member Jo Ann Maxey asked if the staff could still have a plan ready for this fall if they spent all summer on interviewing parents.

Prasch and Brandt said they both feel that a program could still be planned in the allotted time. Brandt noted that current policy involves the parents in planning with their children and teachers.

"We need to respect the parent's concerns about their children in planning any program for gifted students," Brandt said.

Board member Pearl Goldenstein said, "We definitely need some sensitivity training in this area."

Rename Program

In other action, the board heard a recommendation from Prasch that cultural awareness activities for the next school year be renamed multi-cultural education and refunded in the next budget at the current commitment of some $33,000.

It was also recommended that a work schedule of activities, establishing specific targets for the school year in which each area of the advisory committee's recommendations could be utilized, be approved.

Prasch recommended that the board "exercise a little more control over the proliferation of activities" in the area of approving a schedule for extra pay for staffs of the individual schools.

He said that the same reasoning used to limit the number of athletic contests should also apply to a limit on the number of debate contests, concerts and cheerleader practices, as well as other areas of extracurricular activity which normally garner extra pay for teachers.

Bus Discipline Eyed

A brief discussion of discipline on school buses came as the result of Prasch's report on transportation for the next school year.

Prasch said that he felt self-discipline by bus riding students was part of "the overall education of behavior which should extend beyond the classroom experience into other areas."

He added that some problems at bus stops have also been reported by parents and that the solutions often create other problems.

We can make more pickups which would result in fewer students at each stop, but that would create slower routes, Prasch said.

'More Prestigious'

Board member Lou Roper suggested that the job of bus monitor, generally assigned to students who ride the buses, could "somehow be made more prestigious."

Board President Williamette Shafer suggested that the problem "reverts back to parental responsibility for their chidren's behavior."

Prasch noted several other problem areas in the overall busing network that would have to be worked out before final acceptance of the plan. One involves a strip of houses in the area between North 56th and Cotner Blvd. Students in that area live close enough to schools to walk, but they have to cross several busy streets, Prasch noted.

"If we'd provide busing for these students we'd be setting a precedent that would create problems in other parts of town," Prasch said.

Roper mentioned that the board may have to look to the construction of pedestrian overpasses sometime in the future, especially in the areas of Old Cheney Road and Capital Parkway.

The school budget for the next year occupied a work session which followed the regular meeting. A hearing on the budget will be held on July 19.

Lincoln School Board OKs New Principals

Three administrative changes in the Lincoln Public Schools were approved by the Board of Education Tuesday.

A former Lincoln resident, Dr. Clifford Sibley, was approved as principal of the school he attended as a child, Randolph Elementary. The Lincoln High grad received his bachelor of arts degree from Nebraska Wesleyan before moving to Michigan where he obtained master's and doctor's degrees in education.

Sibley is presently an elementary principal in Port Huron, Mich. He and his wife Barbara have two children.

David Van Horn, currently assistant principal at Lefler Junior High, was approved as the principal of Everett Junior High. Van Horn received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. He also received his six-year certificate at UNL.

Van Horn was previously a teacher at Goodrich Junior High and took the Lefler post in 1974.

Dr. William Moss, presently the principal at Boys Town High School in Omaha, was approved as the new principal of Lincoln East High School.

Board member Jo Ann Maxey asked Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Carroll Sawin if there had been any women applicants for administrative positions.

Sawin said that in at least one case there had been a female applicant among the four finalists. He noted that he is concerned about getting women into administrative positions and said that at least seven women had been involved in an administrative training session held by the district during the past year.

Several board members urged Sawin to make an extra effort to get women involved.

'More Prestigious'

Board member Lou Roper suggested that the job of bus monitor generally assigned to students who ride the buses, could ' somehow be made more prestigious "

Board President Willamette Shafer suggested that the problem "reverts back to parental responsibility for their chidren s behavior "

Prasch noted several other problem areas in the overall busing network that would have to be worked out before final acceptance of the plan One involves a strip of houses in the area between North 56th and Cotner Blvd Students in that area live close enough to schools to walk but they have to cross several busy streets, Prasch noted

' If we d provide busing for these students we'd be setting a precedent that would create problems in other parts of town." Prasch said

Roper mentioned that the board may have to look to the construction of pedestrian overpasses sometime in the future, especially in the areas of Old Cheney Road and Capital Parkway

The school budget for the next year occupied a work session which followed the regular meeting A hearing on the budget will be held on July 19.

CARIL FUGATE . . . on way to hearing.

She Just Wanted To Say 'Thanks'

By The Associated Press

Caril Fugate had few words to say after being granted parole Tuesday, some 18 years after she accompanied Charles Starkweather on a journey of death in which 10 people were killed.

She was composed and articulate during and after the hearing.

"I would just like to say thanks," Miss Fugate said Tuesday.

That was a far cry from the teenage girl who was convicted of murder in 1958.

Her reaction to the verdict, according to new files, was very strong.

"Why couldn't they have given me the electric chair?" she said between sobs. "Why didn't they give me the chair."

In a moment she answered her own question. "They couldn't because they knew I wasn't guilty.

"Someday they are going to know," she said then.

She was convicted of first degree murder but received a recommendation of life imprisonment.

She was comforted by her grandmother who said, "You've got hope and you've got your life."

Miss Fugate will start a new life with a new identity in another state, believed to be Michigan.

She told the Parole Board Tuesday she wanted to work, perhaps one day get married, and "have a couple kids."

Robinson Changes Plea, Confesses To Robbery

Lincolnite Bruce Robinson changed his plea from innocent to guilty during his robbery trial, and Lancaster District Judge Dale Fahrnbruch found him guilty.

Robinson, 22, of 506 B St., is charged in connection with an April incident in which he and another man entered a house at 1926 Pepper and reportedly stole around $200. The two guarded the residents of the house with a Doberman Pinscher and a machete.

Judge Rahrnbruch continued the case pending a pre-sentence investigation. The judge set bail at $10,000 and Robinson was returned to the custody of the sheriff.

Lincoln Woman Is Hospitalized After Running Into Parked Car

A 61-year-old Lincoln woman was taken to a local hospital Tuesday afternoon after she lost control of her car and smashed into a parked car near 40th and E St.

Police said that Estle L. Goosic, of 4001 G St., received facial lacerations. Police reported that she said she took her eyes off the road momentarily and inadvertently swerved into a parked car owned by Lawrence Vontz, of 1001 S. 40th.

The accident caused about $1,000 worth of damage to the front end of the Goosic vehicle and about $900 in damage to the Vontz car. Police issued a citation to Mrs. Goosic for negligent driving.

Police After Thieves, Vandals

Police are investigating $700 worth of damage and thefts which occured at the city's Easterday Recreation Center, at 6130 Adams.

Vandals got into the center by breaking a skylight, causing $278 worth of damage, according to police reports. The thieves broke into four coin operated machines, and took around $400 in coins.

Vandals also threw rocks at windows at Everett Junior High School, at 11th and C St., causing $90 worth of damage.

Omaha Pair Held In Suit Thefts

Lincoln police officers apprehended two Omaha men who stole $1,200 worth of men's suits from four downtown stores Monday.

The men allegedly stole eight suits from Magee's, Miller & Paine, Jason's and Brandeis. The pair are to be charged in Lancaster County Court with the thefts.

Building Items Taken In Thefts

Two separate thefts of building equipment and fixtures valued at nearly $1,500 from the Lincoln High School Media Center site, at 3715 N. 44th, have been reported by Lincoln police.

Sometime during May, 25 electric exit signs were apparently taken from the site, Glen H. Cronk of Brightway Electric reported. The signs were valued at $1,000.

Between May 8 and June 8, $490 worth of lumber and scaffold jacks were apparently also taken. Police said they were reported missing by Philip Hoyt of Paul Kess Inc.

Lower Building Heights Sought

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Capitol Environs Committee agreed unanimously Tuesday to ask the Lincoln City Council to adopt more restrictive zoning ordinances in the Statehouse area.

Committee members decided to urge adoption of an architect's study in the Capitol environs proposed plan, after considering but hedging on Lincoln State Sen. Wally Barnett's insistence on even stricter downzoning.

Barnett and committee vice chairman Douglas Bereuter, state senator of Utica, pushed and shaped the proposed council action, with the proviso that the committee's final plan after further study would be worked out with council members.

As recommended, building height limits would be 57 feet immediately near the Capitol, and graduated downward further away from the building. The 15th St. corridor north (Centennial Mall) limit would be 100 feet; 15th St. corridor south to Washington, 45 feet; J St. east to 17th, 45 feet, and J west to 10th, 75 feet.

Current zoning ordinances allow buildings 57 feet near the Statehouse, with nearby outward limits checkerboarded from 75 to 130 feet, and 275 feet in the downtown area.

The proposal came after W. Don Nelson told the committee, "If we're not gong to get involved in down-zoning, we're wasting our time."

'Much Too Liberal'

Director of the State Office of Planning and Programming (SOPP), Nelson said Lincoln zoning now is "much too liberal." The City Council must be "willing to confront the political-economic issue" perpetuating building heights that detract from the Capitol, and address them "parcel by parcel" if necessary.

"That's going to raise a pretty good-sized flap in Lincoln," Nelson predicted, saying officials will require "bravery" to face it.

Bereuter suggested the City Council "could avoid making the decision" by having "the people make it for them" via a city charter amendment decreeing Capitol area protection.

Committee members fretted aloud about their advisory capacity and lack of authority, and any plans they develop being subject to political maneuvers as office-holders change.

The down-zoning proposal won unanimous approval, after Barnett and Bereuter tried repeatedly but were rebuffed in seeking to recommend even more restrictive height limits. One idea was a temporary building moratorium.

Nelson said the timing's "perfect" since the committee's final plan could then be included in the Comprehensive Plan. But committee member Steve Cook, a city councilman, opposed those avenues, citing possible legal problems and lawsuits.

However, Cook added, council members are "very serious about the Capitol environs." Since little new building is projected during the drafting of the integrated buliding height plan, he said when that's ready, "I'm sure the council will do something."

The committee also agreed to request SOPP staff assistance, plus University of Nebraska Architecture College help, to organize all Capitol environs documents and proposals to consider in developing their full-range goals.

High-Rise For Elderly

It was the committee's third meeting. At its second, members formally objected to a new high-rise elderly housing complex under construction at 17th and J. Some Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funding is involved.

Marvin Kivett, state historical preservation officer, said if the elderly housing project were nullified, "HUD would be obligated to pay off the contract," but "from a federal standpoint, it has not been settled."

Kivett said second-quarter federal funding for the building has been frozen, that a HUD inspection survey team will visit Lincoln and a public hearing will be held.

Regarding the 17th and J unit, to be 86 feet high, Nelson said "any project can be stopped" if the city's willing to pay for it. Losing a lawsuit "is not the worst thing that could happen" to protect the Capitol.

The committee agreed to explore all legal avenues available. Architect Linus Burr Smith said the environs plan will "take more than lawnmower thought" in holding down building heights. He urged some exceptions since a vertical spire here and there "adds spirit."

Compliance By 1982

Nelson maintained that the city could decree lower height limits by a certain year, say 1982, for example telling Sky Park Manor, at 1301 J, that it must be torn down by then.

Smith replied that's an "entirely new idea of government." Nelson charged that public bodies are "reluctant to engage in adventurous litigation."

The committee discussed but took no action on policy positions regarding land use, occupancy, building area, historical preservation and all lands offering visual perspectives of the Capitol. It can be seen from Seward.

The committee delayed action on a proposal to endorse and put into action a $10,000 landscaping plan for the Capitol block itself.

O St. Intersection May Open Soon

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Downtown merchants received some welcome news Tuesday, although several persistent critics of the speed of the O St. improvements are still unhappy.

The intersection at 14th and O will be open in two or three weeks if weather is good, Richard Erixson of the Public Works Department told businessmen Tuesday at a briefing on project status.

He said engineers had devised a shortcut in storm sewer installation to accomplish the early opening.

Opening of the intersection will permit implementation of the downtown bus loop system, in which all buses will make a loop around downtown between trips to other parts of the city.

Nonetheless Gene Leach of Ace Furniture and Art Trehearn of Penney's continued to be vocal in urging faster work.

"There hasn't been a hole dug or a ditch dug between 13th and 14th in the last three and one-half weeks," Leach said.

"Put on more crews, work 16 hours a day," urged Trehearn.

The biggest factor in the time needed for the project is the amount of utility work being done while the paving is torn up, according to Erixson and Rob Butler of Construction Sciences, contractor of the paving.

Replacement of gas lines, water mains and storm sewers, complicated by existing telephone ducts and steam lines, must be done before other steps can be taken in the project, the two said.

The contract for the work calls the paving from 12th to 16th to be done by Sept. 1 or the contractor will pay $500 per day, the biggest penalty in the city's history.

Although there are mixed feelings among downtown merchants, most appear to be in favor of the project, for which property owners agreed to pay $165 for each frontage foot.

Most observers feel the most unhappy merchants are those who lease rather than own their space along O St.

The $1.9-million project will line downtown O St. with 55 ash trees and 70 Bradford pears, benches, shrubs and other amenities.

The ash trees will be well beyond the sapling stage according to architect Deon Bahr. He said the trunks of the trees will be about five inches in diameter.

Sidewalks will be extended 10 feet in many parts of the street, creating areas for park benches and backless conversational benches.

Bahr told the merchants the trees would not be planted until after frost has set in the ground this fall.

By Christmas, he said, there should be a dramatic change in the street's appearance.

Along with the street side improvements, paving is being installed. Crosswalks will be brick.

Highlighting the new paving will be the intersection of 13th and O St., where multi-hued bricks will be laid in a geometirc pattern.

Lower Building Heights Sought

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Capitol Environs Committee agreed unanimously Tuesday to ask the Lincoln City Council to adopt more restrictive zoning ordinances in the Statehouse area.

Committee members decided to urge adoption of an architect's study in the Capitol environs proposed plan, after considering but hedging on Lincoln State Sen. Wally Barnett's insistence on even stricter downzoning.

Barnett and committee vice chairman Douglas Bereuter, state senator of Utica, pushed and shaped the proposed council action, with the proviso that the committee's final plan after further study would be worked out with council members.

As recommended, building height limits would be 57 feet immediately near the Capitol, and graduated downward further away from the building. The 15th St. corridor north (Centennial Mall) limit would be 100 feet; 15th St. corridor south to Washington, 45 feet; J St. east to 17th, 45 feet, and J west to 10th, 75 feet.

Current zoning ordinances allow buildings 57 feet near the Statehouse, with nearby outward limits checkerboarded from 75 to 130 feet, and 275 feet in the downtown area.

The proposal came after W. Don Nelson told the committee, "If we're not gong to get involved in down-zoning, we're wasting our time."

'Much Too Liberal'

Director of the State Office of Planning and Programming (SOPP), Nelson said Lincoln zoning now is "much too liberal." The City Council must be "willing to confront the political-economic issue" perpetuating building heights that detract from the Capitol, and address them "parcel by parcel" if necessary.

"That's going to raise a pretty good-sized flap in Lincoln," Nelson predicted, saying officials will require "bravery" to face it.

Bereuter suggested the City Council "could avoid making the decision" by having "the people make it for them" via a city charter amendment decreeing Capitol area protection.

Committee members fretted aloud about their advisory capacity and lack of authority, and any plans they develop being subject to political maneuvers as office-holders change.

The down-zoning proposal won unanimous approval, after Barnett and Bereuter tried repeatedly but were rebuffed in seeking to recommend even more restrictive height limits. One idea was a temporary building moratorium.

Nelson said the timing's "perfect" since the committee's final plan could then be included in the Comprehensive Plan. But committee member Steve Cook, a city councilman, opposed those avenues, citing possible legal problems and lawsuits.

However, Cook added, council members are "very serious about the Capitol environs." Since little new building is projected during the drafting of the integrated buliding height plan, he said when that's ready, "I'm sure the council will do something."

The committee also agreed to request SOPP staff assistance, plus University of Nebraska Architecture College help, to organize all Capitol environs documents and proposals to consider in developing their full-range goals.

High-Rise For Elderly

It was the committee's third meeting. At its second, members formally objected to a new high-rise elderly housing complex under construction at 17th and J. Some Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funding is involved.

Marvin Kivett, state historical preservation officer, said if the elderly housing project were nullified, "HUD would be obligated to pay off the contract," but "from a federal standpoint, it has not been settled."

Kivett said second-quarter federal funding for the building has been frozen, that a HUD inspection survey team will visit Lincoln and a public hearing will be held.

Regarding the 17th and J unit, to be 86 feet high, Nelson said "any project can be stopped" if the city's willing to pay for it. Losing a lawsuit "is not the worst thing that could happen" to protect the Capitol.

The committee agreed to explore all legal avenues available. Architect Linus Burr Smith said the environs plan will "take more than lawnmower thought" in holding down building heights. He urged some exceptions since a vertical spire here and there "adds spirit."

Compliance By 1982

Nelson maintained that the city could decree lower height limits by a certain year, say 1982, for example telling Sky Park Manor, at 1301 J, that it must be torn down by then.

Smith replied that's an "entirely new idea of government." Nelson charged that public bodies are "reluctant to engage in adventurous litigation."

The committee discussed but took no action on policy positions regarding land use, occupancy, building area, historical preservation and all lands offering visual perspectives of the Capitol. It can be seen from Seward.

The committee delayed action on a proposal to endorse and put into action a $10,000 landscaping plan for the Capitol block itself.

O St. Intersection May Open Soon

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Downtown merchants received some welcome news Tuesday, although several persistent critics of the speed of the O St. improvements are still unhappy.

The intersection at 14th and O will be open in two or three weeks if weather is good, Richard Erixson of the Public Works Department told businessmen Tuesday at a briefing on project status.

He said engineers had devised a shortcut in storm sewer installation to accomplish the early opening.

Opening of the intersection will permit implementation of the downtown bus loop system, in which all buses will make a loop around downtown between trips to other parts of the city.

Nonetheless Gene Leach of Ace Furniture and Art Trehearn of Penney's continued to be vocal in urging faster work.

"There hasn't been a hole dug or a ditch dug between 13th and 14th in the last three and one-half weeks," Leach said.

"Put on more crews, work 16 hours a day," urged Trehearn.

The biggest factor in the time needed for the project is the amount of utility work being done while the paving is torn up, according to Erixson and Rob Butler of Construction Sciences, contractor of the paving.

Replacement of gas lines, water mains and storm sewers, complicated by existing telephone ducts and steam lines, must be done before other steps can be taken in the project, the two said.

The contract for the work calls the paving from 12th to 16th to be done by Sept. 1 or the contractor will pay $500 per day, the biggest penalty in the city's history.

Although there are mixed feelings among downtown merchants, most appear to be in favor of the project, for which property owners agreed to pay $165 for each frontage foot.

Most observers feel the most unhappy merchants are those who lease rather than own their space along O St.

The $1.9-million project will line downtown O St. with 55 ash trees and 70 Bradford pears, benches, shrubs and other amenities.

The ash trees will be well beyond the sapling stage according to architect Deon Bahr. He said the trunks of the trees will be about five inches in diameter.

By Christmas, he said, there should be a dramatic change in the street's appearance.

Along with the street side improvements, paving is being installed. Crosswalks will be brick.

Governor's Races Taught 'Em Plenty

By BOB REEVES
Star Staff Writer

Renee Wessels and Mark Knight have had an exciting experience which has taught them a lot about politics, they both agree. Each waged a successful campaign for governor, and won.

Renee was elected governor of Girls State Sunday. Mark captured the Boys State governorship in a Tuesday election.

Boys State and Girls State give specially selected high school students who will be seniors next fall a chance to try their hand at running their own state and local government.

When they arrive in Lincoln, each boy and girl is assigned political party (National or Federal), and each is assigned a town and a county. Citizens of the same town live together during the seven-day event.

No two people from the same home school are placed in the same town.

All In A Week

Their task then is to organize their parties, write a platform, hold primary elections and general elections, and then carry on the business of government. All within one week's time.

Mark said he didn't use "hard sell" tactics in getting elected. But he put in a lot of hard work in the time he had, and he got his "town" organized behind him. He went door-to-door in the dormitory, shaking hands with everyone he could.

Renee also attributes her success to door-to-door campaigning.

Renee said she learned something about team spirit when one of the girls she had defeated in the primary helped her write a speech.

Mark, of Millard, wants to be a tax lawyer. He now works part-time in a tax law office as a legal clerk, a rare opportunity for a high school student.

Renee is from Weeping Water. When she was chosen to go to Girls State, the selection committee told her," We'd like to see you try for governor — we've never had a Girls State governor from Weeping Water."

"There was no backing out once I got into it," Renee admitted.

Renee has won awards in extemporaneous speaking, and last summer she was the one girl from Nebraska selected to attend the Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation seminar in New York City.

Renee said she wants to go to college and then go into some phase of government work.

Not As Effective

Mark's opponent, Kenneth Siemek of Columbus, has also won awards in public speaking. He staked his campaign on his ability to sway the audience at an assembly Tuesday morning. He felt he "got a chemistry going", but it evidently wasn't as effective as Mark's door-to-door technique.

Cindy Beach, of Hastings, was appointed chief justice of the Girls Stae Supreme Court after being defeated by Renee in her bid for the governorship. She had the privilege of swearing Girls State officials into office at a ceremony in the legislative chamber of the State Capitol.

She then officiated at a mock Supreme Court session in the Supreme Court chamber.

At Boys State the chief justice is not chosen from among defeated candidates. Kenneth Allen, of Omaha, came to Boys State prepared to try for this important post. "It's one of the offices you can really get your teeth into," he said.

Kenneth, a high school debate champion, is interested in a career in law, but confides, "It's only one of about 12 different things I'd like to do."

Omahan Doug Dunning, present governor of Boys State, was elected last year. He came back this year as a junior counselor. He cites the main things he has gained from participating these two years:

"You learn how to work with people, and you learn leadership. You can't help but learn something about government. And you have fun."

Dunning, who will be a premed student at UNO next fall, said he is very grateful to the American Legion for making Boys State possible.

The Nebraska American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary sponsored both events.

Liquor Sales At Pershing Crop Up Again

The issue of selling liquor at Pershing Municipal Auditorium during public events attended by minors came up once again at Tuesday's meeting of the Auditorium Advisory Council.

Pershing manager Ike Hoig told council members "we'd like to serve beer . . . at certain events "— such as closed circuit television broadcasts of sporting events — which are attended by minors.

However, a city ordinance which states that youths under 16 years of age cannot be present after 9 p.m. in an establishment serving liquor, all but makes that impossible, Hoig said.

In 1974, after considerable discussion, the City Council voted to permit the sale of alcoholic beverages during certain public events at Pershing.

At that time, the advisory council decided to limit the sale of liquor to events which were not attended by minors.

The council is now looking at the possibility of changing that policy for events like those mentioned by Hoig.

City Atty. Charles Humble suggested advisory council members "run the policy through the City Council again." And those in attendance agreed to request a meeting with the city lawmakers in the near future.

Advisory council members indicated that they would like to see the 9 p.m. limitation extended to a later hour.

In order to comply with the law, auditorium liquor sales would have to stop at 9 p.m. when minors are present at an event.

According to advisory council member Mrs. Dale Fahrnbruch, that would not be feasible because "they (adult patrons) would still be drinking after that."

During the meeting, Hoig also told council members the auditorium's current $58,806 operating deficit is due, in large part, to the fact that "we're getting more competition out of Omaha" than in the past.

The operating deficit — calculated for the nine-month period ended May 31, 1976 — compares with a $34,642 deficit last year.

Hoig said auditorium income is down $15,000 from last year in performance receipts and the same ratio in concessions.

"And our expenses stay right up there."

It appears that Omaha is attracting more performances because of its larger population base and the availability of lower insurance rates for performing groups.

State Sends Out 14,000 Of Final Refund Checks

The State Revenue Department Tuesday mailed 14,000 of 83,000 personal, sales and corporate tax refund checks delayed by the state's cash flow problems, Tax Commissioner William Peters said.

Another 14,000 will be mailed Wednesday, he said. More may be mailed late this week.

The department held back refund checks when it realized tax receipts were coming in slower than expected. Gov. J. James Exon said last week all refund checks will be mailed by June 30.

Sioux Nations Plan Historic Meet At Waterloo

Waterloo (AP) — The seven councils of the United Sioux Nation are to gather Friday through Sunday at the Douglas County Fairgrounds in Waterloo for what is billed as the first meeting in 100 years that involves all seven councils.

Officials say they see no security problem in conjunction with the meeting which is described as a peaceful religious and social festival.

"We're coming in here for a ceremony, not to create a problem," said Al Fast Horse. "The problem is to get the people to see how nice it is to live in harmony."

Fast Horse, director of the Indian culture related Return of the Sun; the Horse Foundation, said members of the militant American Indian Movement are welcome to attend. "If they want to come, they can, but they must behave," he said, adding that they are being advised to "leave their feelings at home."

W.G. McCubbin, Douglas County Fair Board chairman, said some persons from Waterloo called and asked if they should lock their doors.

"I can't understand what all the hullabaloo is about," he said. "We can't make ourselves believe they (Indians) are going to be more of a threat to the people of Waterloo than people who go to the county fair."

Mark Hallgren, who is helping to coordinate publicity, said no alcohol or drugs will be permitted on the fairgrounds.

Fairgrounds security will be provided by a 20- to 30-man private security force that includes Indian policemen from reservations.

The Douglas County sheriff's department will provide five two-man cruisers to patrol the Waterloo area outside the fairgrounds.

Deputies will be available for assistance on the fairgrounds if requested, said Chief Deputy Joseph Thornton.

Up to 5,000 Indians from tribes throughout the United States and Canada are expected to attend, including 400 chiefs and medicine men. Most Indians are expected to camp on the fairgrounds, Hallgren said.

"The sanitary facilities will be just as good as during the fair when we have 100,000 people," McCubbin said.

All seven councls of the Sioux Nation haven't met together since Gen. George Custer's fall at the Battle of the Little Big Horn in 1876, said Hallgren.

"The medicine men do think this is the beginning of a new era for the Sioux Nation," Hallgren said.

The weekend is keyed to the sacred "Horse Dance" that was last performed 40 years ago. White men will be invited for the first time to watch Indians perform the ritual on 18 rare Spanish Barb horses, descended of horses brought over by the Spanish conquistadors, he said.

The horse dance will be performed at mid-afternoon each day.

Indian Olympics will start the festivities each morning, followed by a noontime speaker, Gov. J. James Exon will speak on Friday.

Singer-composer Phillip White Hawk is to perform at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. daily and there will be evening pow-wows and dancing.

Florida Man To Stand Trial For Manslaughter

Grand Island (UPI) — The Hall County Court Tuesday ordered Dennis Brumbaugh, 25, of Okeechobee, Fla., to stand trial in district court on manslaughter charges.

The charges stem from the death of James Patton, 61, of Grand Island.

Patton died May 31 after he and Brumbaugh were involved in a fight in front of the Savoy Hotel May 28.

At Tuesday's preliminary hearing, witnesses said they saw Brumbaugh kick Patton several times and said Patton made no attempt to defend himself.

Dr. John Liles, who performed an autopsy on Patton's body, said Patton died of heart failure directly related to trauma suffered from blows to the head and a broken nose.

Brumbaugh sat emotionless as several prosecution witnesses testified. The defense had no witnesses.

Brumbaugh was being held in the Hall County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond. District Judge Donald Weaver has set no trial date.

Suit Against Gering For $1.4 Million

Gering (AP) — A case that started 16 months ago as an alleged parking violation has grown into a $1.4 million claim against the City of Gering.

Businessman Donald Mackrill of Morrill has charged he was "falsely imprisoned, maliciously prosecuted, assaulted and battered" in a claim filed with the city clerk.

Named as defendants were three Gering policemen, Chief Walt Burroughs, Mayor John McLellan Jr., the City Council and the City of Gering.

The filing is required prior to a court suit under the Political Subdivision Tort Claims Act of Nebraska.

Mckrill contends he was driving his car on Feb. 23, 1975, along a Gering street when he was stopped. He maintains that during his arrest he suffered injuries and was knocked to the street and struck numerous times.

He later was charged with a parking violation, assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest. The claim notes the charges were later dismissed on a motion by the county attorney.

Sculpture Nears Completion Date

York (AP) — The sculpture "Crossing The Plains," one of 10 Bicentennial Interstate 80 works, is expected to be completed by the middle of this month at the westbound rest stop east of here.

Sculptor Brad Graves, an assistant professor of art at Fairleigh Dickinson College in New Jersey, said he hopes it will be the first completed of the five sculptures scheduled for dedication on July 4.

Graves has several reasons to hurry the emplacement. Until Wednesday, the National Crane Corp. of Lincoln is donating a giant crane and operator to lift the remaining pieces of his 11-feet high, 22-ton creation into place.

Another reason, Graves said, is the wrong impression created by the first three stones that rest on a concrete pad.

One tourist asked if it was part of a pioneer cemetery, Graves said.

Graves is especially interested in the shadow effect created by the first installment of his work, which is made of white Indiana limestone.

He said the piece is designed for the ever-changing shadow effects created by the sun as it arches across the sky.

Graves spends much of his extra time talking to local schools and groups. He said he doesn't mind the frequent inquiries about the work.

"There is genuine interest," he said. "It has always been here since I first arrived and the cooperation has just been great."

Oregon Man In Line For Law College

Chancellor Roy A. Young will recommend the appointment of Dr. John W. Strong of Eugene, Ore., as the next dean of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Law College at the Board of Regents' June 26 meeting.

Strong, 40, is a professor of law at the University of Oregon. He would succeed Dr. Henry M. Grether Jr., who asked to return to teaching and researching.

Strong graduated from Yale University with a B.A. in English literature and received his doctorate from the University of Illinois. He has been on the law faculty at the University of Kansas, Duke University and served as associate dean of the University of Oregon's law college from 1971 to 1973.

His professional experience includes serving as clerk in the Offices of the Attorney General of Ohio and in two law firms in New York and Illinois.

Strong's appointment would become effective January 1977.

Funds Sought For Black Elk-Neihardt Tower

Omaha (AP) — A drive to raise $250,000 to build an 85-foot steel tower in Blair to honor the spiritual unity of all men and the spiritual heritage of the plains Indians is beginning.

Officials of the Black Elk-Neihardt Park Board told a news conference Tuesday that foundations, businesses and individuals throughout Nebraska will be contacted for donations. There also will be an advertising campaign.

Dr. Earl Mezoff, president of Dana College at Blair and treasurer of the fund drive, said he hopes work on the tower can begin this year, with completion in 18-24 months.

The Tower of the Four Winds will honor the memory and ideas of Black Elk, an Indian holy man whose vision inspired the late Nebraksa poet laureate John Neihardt, said the Rev. F.W. Thomsen, a retired Dana College art professor and Lutheran minister who suggested the monument.

It will feature mosaics by the Rev. Mr. Thomsen depicting Black Elk's vision of a universal messiah and his other spiritual ideas.

The tower will be built at the top of a hill in Black Elk-Neihardt Park, which is the highest point in Washington County, the Rev. Mr. Thomsen said. The 80-acre park near Dana College is under construction. Land was donated by the college and the City of Blair.

Mezoff said the project already has received $130,000 from the National Bicentennial Commission and $10,000 from the State Bicentennial Commission.

Robert Handy, director of the Douglas County Bicentennial Commission, said he thinks the tower is the area's most significant Bicentennial project.

Nebraska Humanities Committee Hands Out $56,000

Scottsbluff (UPI) — The Nebraska Committee for the Humanities has allotted some $56,000 for seven projects.

The largest stipend, $20,331, was awarded to the Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women for a series of four programs on educational television followed by public dialogues on women's roles in government and industry.

The United Methodist Ministries will receive $850 to develop a working script for a 30-minute film on capital punishment in Nebraska. If the script is approved, the commission said $17,500 in additional funds would be provided to make the film for distribution through Nebraska commercial television stations.

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union and the Nebraska Indian Commission were awarded a $2,200 grant for a series of public programs, "In Perspective: The Bill of Rights and Government." The public programs are scheduled for Gordon, Fremont, Alliance, Grand Island and Scottsbluff.

The Tax Dollars for History Committee of Omaha was awarded a $3,365 grant to support a program on educational television and citizen dialogues at six regional sites around the state to examine how public funds could best be used in the development of historical sites and resources.

The St. Paul United Methodist Church of Lincoln will receive a $5,713 grant for a 20-part series, "Humanistic Education and Senior Leadership."

The University of Nebraska Extension Division was awarded $3,230 for a two-day seminar in December on the rights of the terminally ill.

The Washington County Bicentennial Committee was allotted $2,882 to develop a series of slide tape presentations and public discussions on the significance today of prominent persons in the American Revolutionary period.

The commission said the next deadline for submitting proposals would be Oct. 1.

Sculpture Nears Completion Date

York (AP) — The sculpture "Crossing The Plains," one of 10 Bicentennial Interstate 80 works, is expected to be completed by the middle of this month at the westbound rest stop east of here

Sculptor Brad Graves, an assistant professor of art at Fairleigh Dickinson College in New Jersey, said he hopes it will be the first completed of the five sculptures scheduled for dedication on July 4

Graves has several reasons to hurry the emplacement Until Wednesday, the National Crane Corp of Lincoln is donating a giant crane and operator to lift the remaining pieces of his 11-feet high, 22-ton creation into place

Another reason Graves said is the wrong impression created by the first three stones that rest on a concrete pad

One tourist asked if it was part of a pioneer cemetery, Graves said

Graves is especially interested in the shadow effect created by the first installment of his work, which is made of white Indiana limestone

He said the piece is designed for the ever-changing shadow effects created by the sun as it arches across the sky

Graves spends much of his extra time talking to local schools and groups He said he doesn t mind the frequent inquiries about the work

"There is genuine interest " he said "It has always been here since I first arrived and the cooperation has just been great "

'Blackberry Winter' Runs Into Mountain

Del Norte, Colo. (AP) — A bus carrying a Nebraska rock group to a club date in western Colorado crashed down a mountainside just east of the Continental Divide Tuesday.

Doctors at Del Norte's St. Joseph's Hospital said there were no serious injuries among the eight bandsmen and a soundman aboard the bus, although one person had a broken finger.

Gary Hattan, 23, a member of the Blackberry Winter band, said everybody but he and the driver were asleep when the bus left the eastern side of Wolf Creek Pass, rolled several times and ended up beside Beaver Creek.

The accident happened in south-central Colorado.

Hattan said he was standing in the rear of the bus, "and the next thing I knew, we were rolling down the mountainside. We ended up right next to the river."

The bus was demolished, its body shorn from its frame.

The rock group's manager in Lincoln, Neb., said it was en route to Cortez, Colo., to appear at the Club '76. Members of the Blackberry winter are from Kearney, Hastings, Lincoln and Wahoo, Neb., and one from Spain. The band has appeared in 20 states in the last four years, from Texas to Canada and from California to Louisiana.

The accident happened about 12 miles west of South Fork and 28 miles west of Del Norte in south-central Colorado.

Power Group Slates Coal Supply Meeting

Grand Island (UPI) — The Great Plains Power Agency is inviting six coal companies to meet with it to discuss supplying coal for a proposed $80 million, 150-megawatt, power plant for Hastings and Grand Island.

The agency set July 7 and 8 as the dates for the coal supply discussions.

John Carpenter, a member of the agency and Grand Island city manager, said after the presentations are made a coal contract consultant may be hired to review the offers.

Carpenter also said the agency stands by its site recommendation of a 640-acre tract next to Doniphan as the best place for the plant.

With that indication, the agency board authorized its attorney to apply for the necessary construction permits.

Doniphan residents are against the location and have vowed to take the matter to court if necessary. A public hearing on the site location and recommendation to buy the site is set for July 6 in Grand Island.

The six coal companies were selected from a list of 12. The six are Atlantic Richfield Co., of Denver; Kerr-McGee Corp., of Oklahoma City, and Amex Coal Co., of Indianapolis, all served by the Burlington Northern Railroad; Sunflower Energy Co., of Denver, served by both Burlington Northern and Union Pacific Railroad; and Arch Mineral Co., of St. Louis; and Northern Natural Gas Co., of Omaha, which are served by Union Pacific.

Carpenter said a meeting was scheduled July 9 for a discussion with Western Fuels, a coal contract consultant that acts as a broker in securing coal for utilities.

Members of the Doniphan Village Board attended the meeting, but did not participate in the discussion. They were invited by the power agency to take a bus trip to three coal plants June 15.

Doniphan Mayor Robert LaBrie said he feels Gov. J. James Exon is looking for a compromise on the issue. LaBrie said he had been contacted by various state agencies that wanted to become involved in studying the power plant proposal.

In addition, he said, a spokesman for the Nebraska Historical Society received permission to conduct a historical survey of the site for the proposed power plant. The survey was to start early next week, LaBrie said.

Ruling On Branch Bank Back In Appeals Court

Washington (AP) — A dispute over whether a drive-in and walk-in facility located across the street from an Omaha bank is or is not a branch was handed back to the appeals court by the Supreme Court Monday.

The justices told the U.S. Circuit court in St. Louis to reconsider the case in the light of a new Nebraska law redefining the "auxiliary teller offices" or branches. Under Nebraska law, a state-chartered bank is limited to two "detached auxiliary teller offices."

The Omaha case arose after the Omaha National Bank moved its drive-in unit from a parking garage next door to the bank building to a location across the street.

An examiner for the regional Administrator of National Banks ruled that the drive-in unit at the new location would be "an integral part of the main bank office operation" rather than a branch office.

The circuit court however, ruled that the facility was a branch which the bank was not permitted to operate.

Beet Growers Will Help Decide Purity Standards

Scottsbluff (AP) — Representatives of the Nebraska Beet Growers Association and Great Western Sugar Co. (GWS) are expected to meet with three nonpartisan committee members by July to determine standards for judging the purity of sugar beets, according to James L. Mark, GWS executive vice president.

A contract agreed upon April 14 by the company and growers establishes the committee. Purity affects the amount of sugar extracted, therefore affecting payment growers receive for their beets.

On another topic, Mark told a news conference here a cooperative plant proposed by farmers in the Alliance-Hemingford area would "not help" area GWS plants. "We would prefer to retain the acreage that we already have, as it is adequate to support the factories on a good, balanced operation," Mark said.

However, G. Michael Boswell, executive vice president of Great Western United, parent company of GWE, said the company would "welcome the competition." He added that Great Western does not have any plants for sale, a response to a suggestion that farmers buy a working plant rather than build a new one.

Unlikely Packers To Meet Sewage Handling Deadline

Omaha (AP) — Omaha meat packers probably won't meet a June 15 deadline imposed by the city to decide on a solution for handling paunch manure, a packer spokesman said Tuesday.

The deadline was given during a meeting last week between the city and packers' representatives.

Unless Omaha meets an August deadline in getting packers to pay the full costs of operating the present packing house waste treatment plant, the city could lose more than $1 million a month in sewage plant construction funds from the federal government.

Federal officials contend that the packers, not residential sewer users, should pay the cost of operating the plant.

Packers now have contracts with the city calling for payment of 10 cents per head for cattle slaughtered. Mayor Edward Zorinsky said cost to the city is abuot 59 cents per head.

'Blackberry Winter' Runs Into Mountain

Del Norte, Colo (AP) — A bus carrying a Nebraska rock group to a club date in western Colorado crashed down a mountainside just east of the Continental Divide Tuesday.

Doctors at Del Norte's St. Joseph's Hospital said there were no serious injuries among the eight bandsmen and a soundman aboard the bus, although one person had a broken finger.

Gary Hattan, 23, a member of the Blackberry Winter band, said everybody but he and the driver were asleep when the bus left the eastern side of Wolf Creek Pass, rolled several times and ended up beside Beaver Creek.

The accident happened in south-central Colorado.

Hattan said he was standing in the rear of the bus, "and the next thing I knew we were rolling down the mountainside. We ended up right next to the river."

The bus was demolished, its body shorn from its frame.

The rock group's manager in Lincoln, Neb., said it was en route to Cortez, Colo., to appear at the Club '76. Members of the Blackberry winter are from Kearney, Hastings, Lincoln and Wahoo, Neb., and one from Spain. The band has appeared in 20 states in the last four years, from Texas to Canada and from California to Louisiana.

The accident happened about 12 miles west of South Fork and 28 miles west of Del Norte in south-central Colorado.

Power Group Slates Coal Supply Meeting

Grand Island (UPI) — The Great Plains Power Agency is inviting six coal companies to meet with it to discuss supplying coal for a proposed $80 million, 150-megawatt, power plant for Hastings and Grand Island.

The agency set July 7 and 8 as the dates for the coal supply discussions.

John Carpenter, a member of the agency and Grand Island city manager, said after the presentations are made a coal contract consultant may be hired to review the offers.

Carpenter also said the agency stands by its site recommendation of a 640-acre tract next to Doniphan as the best place for the plant.

With that indication, the agency board authorized its attorney to apply for the necessary construction permits.

Doniphan residents are against the location and have vowed to take the matter to court if necessary. A public hearing on the site location and recommendation to buy the site is set for July 6 in Grand Island.

The six coal companies were selected from a list of 12. The six are Atlantic Richfield Co., of Denver; Kerr-McGee Corp., of Oklahoma City, and Amex Coal Co., of Indianapolis, all served by the Burlington Northern Railroad; Sunflower Energy Co., of Denver, served by both Burlington Northern and Union Pacific Railroad; and Arch Mineral Co., of St. Louis; and Northern Natural Gas Co., of Omaha, which are served by Union Pacific.

Carpenter said a meeting was scheduled July 9 for a discussion with Western Fuels, a coal contract consultant that acts as a broker in securing coal for utilities.

Members of the Doniphan Village Board attended the meeting, but did not partucipate in the discussion. They were invited by the power agency to take a bus trip to three coal plants June 15.

Doniphan Mayor Robert LaBrie said he feels Gov. J James Exon is looking for a compromise on the issue. LaBrie said he had been contacted by various state agencies that wanted to become involved in studying the power plant proposal.

In addition, he said, a spokesman for the Nebraska Historical Society received permission to conduct a historical survey of the site for the proposed power plant. The survey was to start early next week, LaBrie said.

Ruling On Branch Bank Back In Appeals Court

Washington (AP) — A dispute over whether a drive-in and walk-in facility located across the street from an Omaha bank is or is not a branch was handed back to the appeals court by the Supreme Court Monday.

The justices told the U.S Circuit court in St. Louis to reconsider the case in the light of a new Nebraska law redefining the "auxiliary teller offices" or branches Under Nebraska law, a state-chartered bank is limited to two "detached auxiliary teller offices."

The Omaha case arose after the Omaha National Bank moved its drive-in unit from a parking garage next door to the bank building to a location across the street.

An examiner for the regional Administrator of National Banks ruled that the drive-in unit at the new location would be "an integral part of the main bank office operation" rather than a branch office.

The circuit court however, ruled that the facility was a branch which the bank was not permitted to operate.

Beet Growers Will Help Decide Purity Standards

Scottsbluff (AP) — Representatives of the Nebraska Beet Growers Association and Great Western Sugar Co. (GWS) are expected to meet with three nonpartisan committee members by July to determine standards for judging the purity of sugar beets, according to James L. Mark, GWS executive vice president.

A contract agreed upon April 14 by the company and growers establishes the committee. Purity affects the amount of sugar extracted, therefore affecting payment growers receive for their beets.

On another topic, Mark told a news conference here a cooperative plant proposed by farmers in the Alliance-Hemingford area would "not help" area GWS plants. "We would prefer to retain the acreage that we already have, as it is adequate to support the factories on a good, balanced operation," Mark said.

However, G. Michael Boswell, executive vice president of Great Western United, parent company of GWE, said the company would "welcome the competition." He added that Great Western does not have any plants for sale, a response to a suggestion that farmers buy a working plant rather than build a new one.

Unlikely Packers To Meet Sewage Handling Deadline

Omaha (AP) — Omaha meat packers probably won't meet a June 15 deadline imposed by the city to decide on a solution for handling paunch manure, a packer spokesman said Tuesday.

The deadline was given during a meeting last week between the city and packers' representatives.

Unless Omaha meets an August deadline in getting packers to pay the full costs of operating the present packing house waste treatment plant the city could lose more than $1 million a month in sewage plant construction funds from the federal government.

Federal officials contend that the packers, not residential sewer users, should pay the cost of operating the plant.

Packers now have contracts with the city calling for payment of 10 cents per head for cattle slaughtered. Mayor Edward Zorinsky said cost to the city is about 59 cents per head.

'Liberal Establishment' Holding Out, Carter Says

©The New York Times

By CHARLES MOHR

Atlanta — Jimmy Carter said Tuesday he believed that most elements of the Democratic Party were reconciled to the possibility of his nomination for president with the exception of "the Eastern liberal establishment." He said he hoped these liberals would take the hand of friendship he intended to offer them.

After campaigning formally for 16½ months, the former Georgia governor came home to hear the results of the last three primary elections in California, New Jersey and Ohio, and told members of his staff at headquarters that together they had fashioned what he felt was "the strongest and best campaign ever conducted leading up to a national convention in the history of this country." He added: "If we don't win, it won't be your fault, it will be my fault; but, together, I don't believe anybody can beat us."

After appearing at a steel company plant gate early Tuesday in New Jersey, Carter boarded his chartered jet for Atlanta and strolled back to chat informally with reporters in the plane.

In the course of the wide-ranging discussion he said that what he called the liberal establishment seemed to him to be the only major bloc he had not yet been able to win over, but added, "Of course, we've made some very important gains there, too."

Carter, who has seemed increasingly relaxed and serene in recent days, said he understood clearly that the "establishment" was not a homogenous or cohesive group. And, he said, he understood the coolness that existed.

For one thing, "they don't know me," he said. They felt he had been late in condemning the war in Vietnam and was not liberal enough. There was some uneasiness about his Southern and fundamentalist Christian background.

When a journalist asked if their continued opposition mattered much, Carter was quick to say it did. While fervent liberals might not control many delegates or sway many votes, they were an important part of the heart and mind of the party, he said.

Carter said he believed that such liberals wanted a role in the general election campaign, in formulating issues for the Democratic Party and in building a new administration, and said he intended to invite them to play such roles along with other Democrats.

He seemed reconciled to the possibility that some liberals would probably not abandon their opposition to him until after the nomination. He recalled that figures like the late Sen. Herbert Lehman of New York and the late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt had waged a "futile" last ditch stand in 1960 against the late John F. Kennedy because "he simply was not acceptable to them."

Carter skillfully turned aside questions about what person he might want as a vice presidential running mate, but at one point said it appeared that "the West" was where he personally has shown the least strength as a campaigner.

Federal Antitrust Chief Resigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assistant Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Kauper has resigned as the government's chief attorney for enforcing laws against price-fixing and illegal monopolies and business collusion.

"I'm getting tired of it, and it's time to go back to teaching," Kauper told reporters Tuesday as the White House announced that President Ford has accepted his resignation effective July 30.

After four years as head of the Justice Department's antitrust division, he will return to the faculty at the University of Michigan Law School.

The resignation was announced a few weeks after Ford withdrew administration support from legislation to strengthen enforcement of antitrust laws at both the federal and state levels. Ford outlined that position shortly after Kauper had testified in support of the bill.

Ford's decision prompted speculation that Kauper would resign in protest. But Kauper asserted, "That whole business has nothing do with my getting out."

Kauper acknowledged that Ford's position "was clearly a different signal than I had given in testimony."

And he added, "I suppose anybody is disappointed if his views don't prevail. On the other hand, it's his right to take that position."

Kauper said he had contemplated resigning a year ago but decided to stay on to complete some pending projects, including proposed legislation altering government regulation of certain industries.

At that time, he agreed to remain in the job for only one more year, he said.

15 Occupy The Statue Of Liberty

New York (UPI) — A 15-man group from the Vietnam Veterans Against the War occupied the Statue of Liberty Tuesday night, protesting the cutoff of GI Bill educational benefits, police said.

A VVAW spokesman said it "seized the Statue of Liberty in opposition to the Memorial Day cutoff of the GI Bill which has made 3.7 million of our brothers ineligible and forced thousands of us onto the street with no jobs to be found and no income."

The island's caretaker, Luis Garcia, said the protesters have locked themselves inside and chained the entrance doors at the base.

Man Confesses To Killing Prof In Hall Bombing

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — David S. Fine, 24, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of third-degree murder Tuesday in connection with the Aug. 24, 1970, bombing of Sterling Hall on the University of Wisconsin Madison campus.

Earlier in the day, Fine pleaded guilty and was convicted of federal charges of conspiracy and unlawful flight to avoid prosecution in connection with the bombing which killed Robert Fassnacht, a 33-year-old physicist.

The guilty pleas followed negotiations between prosecutors and defense attorneys.

Californians Vote Against Curbs On Nuclear Power

Los Angeles (UPI) — California's first-in-the-nation statewide initiative placing stringent restrictions on nuclear power plants appeared doomed Tuesday. Consumer activist Ralph Nader conceded defeat saying "it is only the first round."

In an early rush of returns, the controversial proposition was going down to defeat by a 2-to-1 margin, 178,545 no votes to 92,836 yes.

Nader, who conducted a television blitz in California last weekend, said a multimillion-dollar campaign conducted by big utilities and oil companies "to spread grossly distorting and inaccurate information on Proposition 15 prevailed this time.

Lobby To Try Again In 1978

A spokesman for People's Lobby, a California consumer protection group, said there would be another initiative attempt on the subject of nuclear power plants in 1978.

Opponents flatly charged that Proposition 15, if passed, would shut down atomic power facilitites in the nation's largest state and deprive its 21 million residents of needed energy sources.

But proponents of the initiative said the measure merely would guarantee Californians safe nuclear power plants.

More than $3 million is reported to have been spent by both sides in the campaign, one of the most expensive and bitter initiative drives ever in a state that often has hotly contested propositions on the ballot.

Foes Outspend Supporters

Opponents, bankrolled by utility companies and other concerned corporations, outspent supporters 2 to 1.

The utility and nuclear industries put major emphasis on defeating the California initiative for fear passage would trigger similar action elsewhere. Nuclear initiatives already are on the fall ballot in Colorado and Oregon, and have been proposed in many other states.

California's initiative was designed to prohibit nuclear power plant construction after one year and force the phasing out of existing plants unless the utilities assumed full financial responsiblity for damages in the event of an accident.

Liability Limit Is $560 Million

Currently, liability for such an unforeseen nuclear accident is limited by the federal government to $560 million.

Under the proposal, existing plants also would have to cut their power output 10% annually after five years unless the legislature certified by a two-thirds vote the safety of reactors and the adequacy of atomic waste disposal methods.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., in the midst of his presidential campaign, took no position on the issue, pointing instead to three bills he signed last week to prohibit construction of new plants until waste disposal and reprocessing of nuclear fuel are approved by a majority vote of the legislature.

Rubber Strike Talks Resume Wednesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two days of exploratory talks in the seven-week rubber industry strike were very productive and resulted in an agreement to resume full negotiations in Cleveland on Wednesday, Chief Federal Mediator James F. Scearce said Tuesday.

"I think eventually we'll find a compromise, and I'm confident we'll get there," said Scearce after meeting with union and management officials here.

But he admitted negotiations to end the strike "are probably the toughest this year."

About 60,000 members of the United Rubber Workers union struck four major rubber producers on April 21. Union President Peter Bommarito has said the union is prepared to continue the strike through the summer, if necessary.

Bommarito said Tuesday that the rubber companies, Firestone, Goodyear, B.F. Goodrich Co. and Uniroyal Inc., are maintaining a "very obstinate position" on the key question of cost-of-living allowances for rubber workers.

"I don't see any indications of any breaks," he said, but then added quickly:

"Of course, judging from the past history of rubber workers' negotiations, if we get over some of the key problems, we can always put the thing together in a hurry."

Management representative Joseph Cairns, vice president of industrial relations for Firestone, said he is "optimistic every day" that agreement can be reached soon.

"These things move along very rapidly when we get a break, and that could come any time," he said.

The talks here apparently focused almost entirely on the union's demand for cost-of-living increases that could amount to about 95 cents during the next three years, compared with about 35 cents offered by the company, according to Boommarito's calculations.

"The company must address itself in a responsible manner to the cost-of-living allowance," he said. "They are not going to weaken us."

Person-To-Person Services At Issue

By VINCE BOUCHER
Star Staff Writer

A sharp exchange of views Tuesday evening focused on the extent of person-to-person services provided by the Lincoln-Lancaster County Board of Health.

At issue was a request for relocation of a branch office of the board and a health station in the Havelock area. The relocation could possibly combine the two and expand the services provided by nurses at the health station from the present one-half day per week to daily.

In response to that suggestion, board member Dr. William Nye read a letter criticizing such services from the County Medical Society, signed by its president, Dr. Russell Gorthey.

Dr. Nye said the traditional role of public health boards was to be responsible for public health affairs and not private patient care.

"We don't really belong in a position of doctor-patient services," Dr. Nye said. "This is a philosophical matter the board is going to have to wrestle with."

Health Director Dr. Edward Lyman countered that Dr. Nye had played a part in endorsing nursing stations some time back when he was president of the Medical Society.

"I have no memory of this in detail," Dr. Nye said, adding that if he did approve expanding health station services, it was not well understood and was done only to aid Dr. Lyman when he was getting started in his job.

Board member Ruth Egner said the service had been a help to older people, who sometimes had trouble getting to a private physician.

City Councilman Dick Baker, who also sits on the health board, recounted the lack of success of recruiting doctors for private practice in the Havelock area, as well as noting the largely elderly population.

"I know from being there that health care is a genuine concern in the area," Baker said.

The issue was tabled after board President George Preece asked for a survey of activity in nursing stations.

The board also approved a $1,751,831 budget request for the City-County Health Department's 1977 fiscal year. That request is a 28.7% increase over the 1976 fiscal year budget of $1,360,790. The request was forwarded to the City Council.

The City Detox Center treated 97 persons in May, its first month of operation, Dr. Lyman said. He said other information about the treatment center was still lacking, but that only two of the patients were women.

Plans for a subcommittee to coordinate the fall immunization against swine influenza were also approved by the committee.

The scramble is on for the post of House majority leader, which will be vacated if Rep. Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts moves up to Carl Albert's post as speaker.

North Platte Man Died Of Asphyxiation

North Platte (UPI) — Lincoln County Atty. Milton Larson Tuesday released the results of an autopsy on the body of a North Platte man who hung himself May 12 while in a county jail cell with nine other prisoners.

Larson said Harold Kunce, 52, who initially had been arrested for intoxication, hung himself from a bunk bed. The autopsy indicated Kunce died of asphyxiation.

"He had to be awfully determined," Larson said at a news conference.

Larson said Kunce ripped up several towels, tied them to the bottom of the bunk above his head and "laid down as if he were taking a nap with his head just a few inches off the bed."

He said none of the others in the cell block "noticed him. No one else paid any attention to him." He said the bunks are located in a smaller room off the cell's main assembly area.

Larson said the Lincoln County Mental Health Board had determined there was "probable cause" that Kunce was dangerous to others and he was turned over the the county sheriff and placed in the county jail.

"There's no reason that at any time a mentally ill person should be held in jail," Larson said. However, he said, "There wasn't anything else that could be done. It did not appear he (Kunce) needed emergency admittance to the hospital, but if he had been released from custody, he could do harm to others."

He said Kunce initially was arrested for intoxication and beating his landlady. He was arraigned in county court, and a petition was filed later alleging that Kunce presented a substantial risk to harm others.

He was given a hearing before the County Mental Health Board, which determined "probable cause that he (Kunce) was mentally ill and a dangerous person to others," Larson said.

Kunce was placed in a large cell at the county jail, and on May 12, the county attorney's office was notified of an emergency at the jail.

Larson said facilities should be available to house a mentally ill person on a temporary basis. Such facilities would not be economically feasible for Nebraska's smaller populated counties, Larson said.

In retrospect, Larson said, "We would have done it exactly the same again. If we had advanced warnings of what would happen, obviously, we would have used emergency admittance to the hospital."

South Salt Creek Folks See Red Over Longsdorf 'Red Line' Plan

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Residents of the South Salt Creek community are seeing red.

But it isn't the red line, a new proposal for the routing of an increased load of rail traffic through their neighborhood, offered by the executive director of the Railroad Transportation Safety District, John Longsdorf, during a public hearing Tuesday night.

The hearing, not unlike others before it, except for the proposal by Longsdorf, was the latest in a continuing struggle to reach a workable solution to the proposed routing of up to 50 coal-carrying trains a day through the South Salt Creek neighborhood, south of O and west of 9th St.

The Longsdorf proposal, to run a new line through the Coddington yards of Burlington Northern on West O and then south adjacent to Salt Creek along the western edge of the residential area of the neighborhood, would call for the use of the existing tracks on 3rd St., at the discretion of the dispatcher in the yards.

Longsdorf explained that the red line, so called because it was represented by a red line on a map, would be the suggested alternate route for coal trains, but that a situation might exist where the track would be occupied by other traffic and an occasional coal train would have to use the 3rd St. tracks.

The apparent wishes of the South Salt Creek Community Organization, represented by president Gwen Peterson, and supported by the murmurs of the near capacity crowd in the city council chambers, were to have the 3rd St. tracks removed.

District chairman Steve Cook suggested the RTSD and the community organization form a joint group to study the red line, which would cost $6 million to engineer and build, according to Longsdorf.

When the community group balked, Longsdorf pointed out that using the red line only, and eliminating the 3rd St. tracks, would cost in the neighborhood of $60 million because the West O hump would have to be moved at a cost of nearly $45 million alone.

The group still refused to accept the proposal, so Longsdorf pointed out that the RTSD could simply include the red line plan in the environmental impact statement and let federal officials and railroad officials make the final determination, thus taking the matter out of the hands of local politicians.

At that remark, Ms. Peterson said the group would be amendable to serving on a joint committee to study the red line alternative.

Longsdorf then said that delays in the project, based on a $20 million federal demonstration grant proposal, would cost in the neighborhood of $3.04 an hour, based on 8% inflation.

That remark brought criticism from RTSD member Bruce Hamilton who said that he appreciated Longsdorf's candid comments, but asked that he limit his remarks to "a straight statement of the facts."

Cook noted problems of communication and asked that the neighborhood group expedite the suggestion of names of persons willing to serve on the proposed committee which will be announced later this week.

The committee, when formed, will study the feasibility of the red line alternative, he indicated.

Iowa In The Black

Des Moines (UPI) — Iowa will have a balance of about $220 million in the treasury when the current fiscal year ends June 30, State Comptroller Marvin Selden estimated. But he said the balance can be expected to drop to $102 million by June 30, 1977.

Fire Damages Basement; Residents Left Homeless

Fire of undetermined origin did considerable damage to the basement of a house at 1225 S. 17th and left it's residents homeless for the night late Tuesday.

District Fire Chief Bud Malcolm said that the fire apparently started in some furniture in the basement of the house which is used as a halfway house for mentally handicapped persons. The building is owned by Mrs. Jack O'Shea who was going to provide housing for the residents, according to firemen.

Police Arrest Man In Alabama In Furniture Theft In Lincoln

Alabama police have arrested a man in connection with the apparent theft of more than $3,000 worth of furniture from a Lincoln household. Edward Lambert, 35, was arrested Tuesday.

The furniture was apparently taken from the Floyd M. Pemberton home at 5251 Stockwell. The Pembertons were out of town and the theft was reported by their daughter, Bonnier Hergenrader, of 1900 S. 24th, police said.

Bobby Hackett Dies; Cornetist

©The New York Times

New York — Bobby Hackett, the cornetist whose mellow tone and graceful style made him a favorite of both jazz and pop music audiences, died Monday of a heart attack at his home in West Chatham, Mass. He was 61.

Although Hackett had just returned from a two-week stay in a hospital for the removal of fluid from his lungs, he had maintained a busy schedule of performances and was due to appear in Boston on June 17 with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops.

Hackett's playing often reminded some listeners of that of Bix Beiderbecke, one of the great pioneer jazz musicians of the 1920s. But his basic jazz inspiration was Louis Armstrong.

"I heard my first Armstrong record in a Providence department store when I was a kid," he once said, "and it turned me around. The sound never left me."

Whitney Balliett described Hackett in The New Yorker as "a unique and extremely successful alloy of Beiderbecke and Armstrong. His tone, which is quiet and shining, resembles Beiderbecke's and so does his three-steps-up, two-steps-down method of improvising. But his sustained notes and way of playing just behind the beat and of occasionally slipping into double time are straight out of Louis Armstrong."

Beyond these sources, Hackett had his own philosophy of music.

"Music should be pretty," he said. "You should hear and recognize the melody. And real greatness is in simplicity. Simple things are the hardest to play and the easiest to listen to."

Robert Leo Hackett was born in Providence Jan. 31, 1915, the sixth of nine children of a blacksmith. He started playing guitar at 8, picked up the violin two years laters and left school at 14 to play in an orchestra in a Chinese restaurant.

He acquired a cornet, which his brother had bought for $5 in a pawn shop, and made his first money as a cornetist with Cab Calloway's band at the ballroom. He came to New York in the mid-1930s and in his first recording was part oa studio group backing the Andrew Sisters. He played a brief solo.

Hackett spent two years with the Glenn Miller band at the height of its popularity. His most notable contribution was on a 12-bar cornet, a solo in the middle of "A String of Pearls."

After World War II, which he spent in the Army Air Corps, he spent 15 years as a studio musician with ABC. In 1951 he made a series of six mood-music albums released under Jackie Gleason's name, on which he played melodies anonymously against a setting of strings.

For the last 15 years, Hacket led various groups of his own or worked as a soloist.

He is survived by his wife; Edna; a son, Ernest; a daughter, Barbara Traynor, and three grandchildren.

Louise Lasser Is Placed On Drug Diversion

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actress Louise Lasser, star of television's "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," was placed in a six-month drug diversion program Tuesday after appearing in Municipal Court on a cocaine possession charge.

Miss Lasser, 37, the deadpan star of the comedy soap opera, was ordered by Municipal Court Judge Leonard Wolf to return to court Dec. 1 for a progress report.

Diversion is a drug education program under which all criminal proceedings are dropped if first offenders successfully complete the program.

She was picked up May 1 after a boutique manager complained to police that she was creating a disturbance. She was arrested on two outstanding traffic warrants and a routine search turned up a vial of white powder in her purse.

Laboratory analysis determined that the white powder was 80 milligrams of cocaine and the drug possession charge was filed.

Comedienne Fields In Therapy

Los Angeles (AP) — Comedienne Totie Fields, whose left leg was amputated in April, is undergoing physical therapy at Cedars-Sinai Hospital, her manager said Tuesday.

Miss Fields, 46, entered the hospital last Tuesday after transferring from Sunrise Hospital in Las Vegas.

Her manager, Howard Henderstein, said the therapy was expected to take about three weeks. She then is expected to transfer to the UCLA Medical Center to be fitted with an artificial leg.

Miss Fields's left leg was amputated above the knee on April 21 in Columbia Presbyterian Hospital in New York after an unsuccessful operation for phlebitis.

D. C. Hotel Has Family Special

Washington, D.C. (UPI) — Bicentennial visitors might check the three-night star-spangled special rate offered by the centrally located Loews L'Enfant Plaza here, $17.76 per person per night for a double room, or about one-third the normal rate. Children stay free in the same room with parents.

Hays' Committee Bypassed

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a telltale move, a House panel decided to bypass the House Administration Committee in setting procedures Tuesday for financing the sex-scandal probe of Rep. Wayne Hays.

The action is significant because Hays heads the Administration Committee on whose payroll Elizabeth Ray said she was kept to serve as Hays' mistress.

The House Rules Committee's decision means the issue now goes to the House itself, which is expected to vote later this week on funds to pay for the congressional probe.

Under normal procedures, the House Administration Committee would have decided whether to forward the request to the full House for action.

The House Ethics Committee is preparing to hold hearings on Miss Ray's allegations that Hays gave her a $14,000-a-year committee staff job to provide sexual favors.

Hays, an Ohio Democrat, has acknowledged a liaison with Miss Ray but insisted that the job was a genuine one.

Meanwhile, House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona criticized as "woefully inadequate" the appointment by Speaker Carl Albert of a task force of the Democratic Steering Committee to study the House accounting system and suggest improvements to avoid improprieties and the appearance of improprieties.

Rhodes also said the Ethics Committee is not properly set up for an investigation. He suggested creating a special committee made up equally of Democrats and Republicans.

Rhodes said in an interview he has not discussed his ideas with Albert.

The chairman and senior Republican member of the Ethics Committee, Reps. John J. Flynt Jr., D-Ga., and Floyd D. Spence, R-S.C., jointly introduced the resolution to allow the Ethics Committee to bypass the administration committee in seeking funds to conduct the probe. The resolution would authorize disbursal of House funds on vouchers drawn by the chairman and senior Republican.

The Rules Committee sent the resolution to the House. However, after listening to arguments that it would provide indefinite "blank check" authority and set a dangerous precedent, the committee attached a proviso limiting the exception to this year only. This would be sufficient time to conduct the Hays investigation.

Rhodes referred in his comments to Albert appointing three Democratic Steering Committee members, headed by Rep. David R. Obey of Wisconsin, to a task force to study House accounts. It would focus not only on the Hays affair, but on stories of double-charging for transportation and other abuses.

"I think the Speaker's response is woefully inadequate," Rhodes said. "I do believe it is necessary for us to take the whole matter as a possible red light and a signal that we may be in some trouble, and to appoint a select committee made up of half Republicans and half Democrats in order to determine just how far this situation does extend."

He said the books of the Administration Committee should be audited "to determine if there might be other people who are on payrolls who aren't doing any work."

Porno Flick Helps Campus Magazine

Stanford, Calif. (UPI) — Stanford University students turned out in droves to help a campus literary magazine — or was it only to see the movie "Behind the Green Door?"

It hadn't been a good year financially for the magazine Sequoia so editor Michael Smith decided to stage a film festival as a fund raiser.

"Casablanca," "A Man For All Seasons" and "On the Waterfront" attracted few viewers and little or no profit.

"We wanted to see what would happen if we showed an unconventional film," Smith said. He selected "Green Door," depicting the sexual gymnastics of Marilyn Chambers.

A total 1,853 put up $1.50 each to view the porno flick.

Ray Book Character 'Playmate'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elizabeth Ray's book, just coming off the presses, describes the main character as "the playmate of some of the country's most powerful men. . ."

The book is a first-person, fictionalized narrative of sexual high jinks in high places, an account which Miss Ray says she started long before her current notoriety.

The Washington Star published portions of the book, titled "The Washington Fringe Benefit," and said the first-run printing by Dell Publishing Co., will run to 600,000 copies. It is expected to be on sale at bookstands within a few days.

The book jacket pledges to "blow the cover off the seamy secrets of Washington's mightiest."

But while some of the mightiest are named by the principal character, also named Elizabeth, they are not identified in connection with love affairs.

For example, Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who has acknowledged having a personal relationship with Miss Ray, is mentioned only innocuously as a politician who arranged for one character's parking spot on Capitol Hill.

There is however, a fictional Sen. Otis Battle, described as "the most vengeful" man in Washington," the principal character's "peppery, flowery, nemesis," with whom she had the "most flamboyant love-hate affair in the scandalous annals of our nation's capital."

Bobby Hackett Dies; Cornetist

The New York Times

New York — Bobby Hackett the cornetist whose mellow tone and graceful style made him a favorite of both jazz and pop music audiences died Monday of a heart attack at his home in West Chatham Mass He was 61

Although Hackett had just returned from a two week stay in a hospital for the removal of fluid from his lungs he had maintained a busy schedule of performances and was due to appear in Boston on June 17 with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops

Hackett's playing often reminded some listeners of that of Bix Beiderbecke one of the great pioneer jazz musicians of the 1920s But his basic jazz inspiration was Louis Armstrong

I heard my first Armstrong record in a Providence department store when I was a kid he once said and it turned me around The sound never left me

Whitney Balliett described Hackett in The New Yorker as a unique and extremely successful alloy of Beiderbecke and Armstrong His tone which is quiet and shining resembles Beiderbecke's and so does his three-steps up two-steps-down method of improvising But his sustained notes and way of playing just behind the beat and of occasionally slipping into double time are straight out of Louis Armstrong

Music should be pretty he said You should hear and recognize the melody And real greatness is in simplicity Simple things are the hardest to play and the easiest to listen to

Robert Leo Hackett was born in Providence Jan 31 1915 the sixth of nine children of a blacksmith He started playing guitar at 8 picked up the violin two years laters and left school at 14 to play in an orchestra in a Chinese restaurant

He acquired a cornet which his brother had bought for $5 in a pawn shop and made his first money as a cornetist with Cab Calloway's band at the ballroom He came to New York in the mid 1930s and in his first recording was part oa studio group

Bobby Hackett

backing the Andrew Sisters He played a brief solo

Hackett spent two years with the Glenn Miller band at the height of its popularity His most notable contribution was on a 12 bar cornet a solo in the middle of A String of Pearls

After World War II which he spent in the Army Air Corps he spent 15 years a a studio musician with ABC In 1951 he made a series of six mood music albums released under Jackie Gleason's name on which he played melodies anonymously against a setting of strings

For the last 10 years Hacket led various groups of his own or worked as a soloist

He is survived by his wife Edna a son Ernest a daughter Barbara Traynor and three grandchildren

Hays' Committee Bypassed

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a telltale move, a House panel decided to bypass the House Administration Committee in setting procedures Tuesday for financing the sex-scandal probe of Rep Wayne Hays

The action is significant because Hays heads the Administration Committee on whose payroll Elizabeth Ray said she was kept to serve as Hays mistress

The House Rules Committee's decision means the issue now goes to the House itself, which is expected to vote later this week on funds to pay for the congressional probe

Under normal procedures, the House Administration Committee would have decided whether to forward the request to the full House for action

The House Ethics Committee is preparing to hold hearings on Miss Ray s allegations that Hays gave her a $14,000-a-year committee staff job to provide sexual favors

Hays, an Ohio Democrat, has acknowledged a liaison with Miss Ray but insisted that the job was a genuine one

Meanwhile, House Republican Leader John J Rhodes of Arizona criticized as "woefully inadequate" the appointment by Speaker Carl Albert of a task force of the Democratic Steering Committee to study the House accounting system and suggest improvements to avoid improprieties and the appearance of improprieties

Rhodes also said the Ethics Committee is not properly set up for an investigation He suggested creating a special committee made up equally of Democrats and Republicans

Rhodes said in an interview he has not discussed his ideas with Albert

The chairman and senior Republican member of the Ethics Committee, Reps John J Flynt Jr , D-Ga , and Floyd D Spence, R-S C , jointly introduced the resolution to allow the Ethics Committee to bypass the administration committee in seeking funds to conduct the probe The resolution would authorize disbursal of House funds on vouchers drawn by the chairman and senior Republican.

The Rules Committee sent the resolution to the House However, after listening to arguments that it would provide indefinite "blank check" authority and set a dangerous precedent, the committee attached a proviso limiting the exception to this year only This would be sufficient time to conduct the Hays investigation

Rhodes referred in his comments to Albert appointing three Democratic Steering Committee members, headed by Rep David R Obey of Wisconsin, to a task force to study House accounts It would focus not only on the Hays affair, but on stories of double-charging for transportation and other abuses

"I think the Speaker's response is woefully inadequate," Rhodes said "I do believe it is necessary for us to take the whole matter as a possible red light and a signal that we may be in some trouble, and to appoint a select committee made up of half Republicans and half Democrats in order to determine just how far this situation does extend "

He said the books of the Administration Committee should be audited "to determine if there might be other people who are on payrolls who aren't doing any work "

Ray Book Character 'Playmate'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elizabeth Ray s book, just coming off the presses, describes the main character as 'the playmate of some of the country s most powerful men

The book is a first-person, fictionalized narrative of sexual high jinks in high places an account which Miss Ray says she started long before her current notoriety

The Washington Star published portions of the book titled "The Washington Fringe Benefit, and said the first-run printing by Dell Publishing Co will run to 600,000 copies It is expected to be on sale at bookstands within a few days

But while some of the mightiest are named by the principal character also named Elizabeth, they are not identified in connection with love affairs

For example, Rep Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who has acknowledged having a personal relationship with Miss Ray, is mentioned only innocuously as a politician who arranged for one character's parking spot on Capitol Hill

There is however, a fictional Sen Otis Battle, described as 'the most vengeful" man in Washington, ' the principal character s "peppery flowery, nemesis, ' with whom she had the 'most flamboyant love-hate affair in the scandalous annals of our nation's capital

Playground Equipment Naturalized

Wooden spools, railroad ties, large tree stumps, concrete culverts and other assorted, indestructible natural materials are giving youngsters in the Arnold School area an alternative for playtime hours this summer.

The imaginative, alternative equipment was installed on the school grounds, 5300 W. Knight, just in time for summer.

The "safe" playground equipment came about through a combined effort of parents and teachers.

Arnold's physical education instructor, Joann Churley, and several parents attended a workshop in Seward last fall and got the playground ideas from a presentation they saw there. They obtained slides from the project and presented them to the Arnold School parents group and won support.

From there it's been a volunteer effort with materials and manpower coming from all sides, Mrs. Churley said. The public schools staff studied the equipment ideas to ensure safety and, with final approval, the project became a reality in April.

A couple of stockades, about four feet high, are going to be built as parts of the grounds are landscaped, Mrs. Churley said. A slope slide, described as a flat piece of slippery metal placed flush with the ground on a hillside is also in the works.

Mrs. Churley thinks it will be an idea that will catch on as other schools, somewhat lacking in playground equipment, study the Arnold project.

Exon Notices More Determined Attitude In Israel Since Last War

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Israelis are a changed people, Gov. J. James Exon said, observing they seem to be willing to make land concessions if only that would guarantee them more secure lives.

During a trip of almost three weeks as Israel's guests, plus a stopover in Italy, the Exons toured historic sites, informally meeting the public as well as visiting state officials.

"I noticed a change in the Israeli people from 1972 to 1976," the governor said, recalling his first trip to the Jewish nation. Four years ago, "there was a tremendous spirit of optimism, almost a carefree attitude of the Israeli, as a result of the Six-Day War."

But this time, Exon said, those he encountered are "serious, more determined since the Yom Kippur War of 1973."

Everywhere, Exon noted a "determination to hold the Israeli state."

In meetings with foreign and agriculture ministry leaders, Knesset (Parliament) members, experimental farm visits and citizens generally, Exon said the "common question was, 'How does the Midwest feel about Israel?' "

Exon said he replied that Americans want "fair treatment of all people," and declared, "Israel is the only outpost of freedom as far as the West is concerned, in the tinderbox of the Mideast."

Don't Want Troops

And that tiny stronghold thus serves U.S. interests worldwide, he said, expressing admiration for Israel's requests not for troops but only for aid and loans.

Internally, the Sinai agreement is "under attack by some forces in Israel," the governor said. But generally, the populace is "really making an effort" to keep the peace.

"I think there is some progress being made" in easing Middle East tensions, Exon said, noting there are 3.5 million Israelis standing up to 75 million Arab neighbors.

That would be the same as conflict of all Nebraskans with a third of all surrounding Americans, from the Rockies to the Appalachians, Canada to Mexico.

Arabs Do Well

He explained that Israel has "done well for Arabs" living there, who play "an important part as farmers, who own and control land" and have expanded businesses. Seven Knesset members are Arabs.

Exon said he was surprised at how many Arab children live in Israel, but added there's a "dedicated effort" in the education system to "promote better understanding."

He cited a wide "appreciation of America's defense of Israel in the U.N.," without which Israelis "recognize and realize their predicament would be a precarious one, indeed."

"It's surprising to me to see the Western world and the United Nations not the least bit concerned" about what Exon described as the Moslem-Christian "massive bloodbath." "How the world can wink at that is almost unbelievable."

PLO Main Worry

In Israel, "The main concern is the PLO (Palestinian Liberation Organization), the problem with the Palestinians and what can be created to solve that."

Meanwhile, Exon said, the problem is compounded because the Jewish state is "racked by inflation" while taxes, "the heaviest in the world," go mainly for defense.

However, while Israeli newspapers are full of controversy over official posturing, Exon said, "all Israelis agree on one thing. National defense is a prime concern."

No Violence Seen

"We saw no violence whatsoever" during the tour, Exon said. Hosted by Joseph Sarid, the second-youngest member of the Knesset, the Exon party was unrestricted in its travels.

They toured famous Holy Land sites. The trek ranged from the south to Haifa on the north, east to the Golan Heights and the Jordan/Israel truce line manned by U.N. forces, to the Sea of Galilee and the Sermon on the Mount site, and into the Sinai Desert where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found.

Exon felt an even greater span of time in Italy, from dusty sites dating to 9,000 B.C. and up to the contemporary society of Rome.

The time contrast of his trip "gives you more of an appreciation than ever before of what the U.S. has done in 200 years."

Exon recalled an eerie feeling seeing "hammers and sickles painted on buildings" throughout Italy. He discussed with U.S. Ambassador John Volpe (former Massachusetts governor) the June 20 elections in which Communists hope to increase their strength to gain a coalition government role.

Italians Speculate

There's speculation in Italy about whether the Catholic church opposition "is going to help or hurt the Communists' chances," Exon said.

Seeing the ancient beauty of Roman sculptures, Michaelangelo's painting, the Vatican museum, catacombs and the intricacies of ancient construction and aquaducts, Exon was struck again at America's place in history as "almost a snap of the fingers."

Availability In His Mind

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged divorcee. For the last two years I've been dating a very attractive single man.

We are not officially engaged, but since we've been seeing each other I haven't dated anyone else, and the only time he has is when one of his friends or relatives fixes him up with a "lovely lady" they think he should meet, or when he's asked as a favor to escort a lady somewhere.

I very much resent others casting my gentleman friend in the role of a single available man. When I tell him that I don't appreciate his accommodating others by escorting another lady, or agreeing to accept an arranged date, he tells me I'm being foolish.

How can I handle this annoying situation without appearing possessive and jealous?

NUMBER ONE LADY

DEAR LADY: You can't. Don't blame others for casting your gentleman friend "in the role" of an available man. He doesn't have to accept that role unless he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: Do they sell donkey blinders anymore? If so, I would like to buy a pair for my husband. He never looks at the road when he drives. Instead, he is busy gawking at the young women who are walking along the streets.

He slows down to about five miles an hour to be sure he doesn't miss anything. We've come within inches of having accidents more times than I can count.

How can I get this old coot to keep his eyes on the road? He's 62 and I'm 60.

GAWKER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Even donkey blinders would be useless for this breed of donkey. If you can't get him to keep his eyes on the road, take the wheel. And if he doesn't like it, let him trot!

DEAR ABBY: A friend of ours who is a married woman with children recently lost her mother.

My mother and I disagree on how the condolence card should be addressed.

I say condolences should be addressed to: "Mr. and Mrs. John Jones and family."

My mother insists that the condolence card be addressed only to my friend whose mother died.

Is it proper to console only the party directly bereaved? Or shouldn't my friend's husband and children also receive condolences? After all, her husband lost his mother-in-law, and the children lost their grandmother.

FRIEND OF THE FAMILY

DEAR FRIEND: I vote with you.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for your very sound advice to FRIENDLY PARTING, who insisted, in obtaining a divorce, that she and her husband agreed on absolutely everything, and they didn't see why they needed a lawyer just to fill out a few forms. (You said, "Some of those do-it-yourself divorces are more expensive in the long run than the regular kind. See a lawyer!")

My wife and I decided we didn't need a lawyer because we agreed on everything. It was true; we agreed on everything we could think of. The problem was that there were four or five very important things we DIDN'T think of. What a mess!

We made no absolute provisions for community property. And nothing was done about spousal support or alimony. Visitation rights were not clearcut, and we ended up with an inexpensive, but very unfair divorce.

I wish I had written to you before I decided to save a few dollars on a do-it-yourself divorce. I hope FRIENDLY PARTING takes your advice.

FOOLISH IN MARYLAND

DEAR FOOLISH: It's strange that when a person has a physical problem he goes to a physician and is glad to pay him for what he knows, but when he has a legal problem, he resents paying a legal fee.

A competent lawyer is worth every dime he charges.

DEAR ABBY: In response to your decision to sign the Living Will, Dr. Peale asserted that there is a variety of opinions on this issue, but that the prevailing Protestant view would be that "God alone should determine life and death. The individual should be in the hands of God, who gave life and whose function it is to take it."

Human beings are not puppets. God has endowed us with minds that He expects us to use wisely and responsibly. We decide when to consult a doctor and whether or not to have surgery performed.

The decision to keep patients alive by artificial means is not made by God, but by doctors. They assume they are carrying out God's will and have been supported by the courts. They become arbiters in life and death.

To declare that "God alone should determine life and death" is simplistic and naive. We must accept responsibility for our actions and be guided by what we believe is God's will and purpose.

The Psalmist did not ask that God keep him alive forever on earth, but said: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten, and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

More Public Involvement Is Sought

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Unless Americans get more involved as citizens, the country will see a continuing erosion of individual liberties, an increase in legislative and regulatory totalitarianism and further politicizing of science for partisan ends, according to Cornell Maier, president and chief executive of Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corporation.

Citing a Roper poll reporting that 71 per cent of the people believe the country is on the wrong track, Maier told the American Business Press annual meeting that "in one sense, this could be an encouraging report. It might just mean that the American people are about ready to say 'enough of this foolishness' and themselves get on with the job of getting this country rolling again."

The current lack of citizen involvement, said Maier, has spawned a group he called the "dismantlers." This group, he said, would tear down the American system and establish a new one based on their ideas of what's best for the nation.

Dear Mr. Becker: I suffer from nightmares — bridge nightmares, that is. I have this recurring dream where I hold the West hand and find myself on lead against seven diamonds.

I always lead a trump and South draws four rounds of trumps. I discard a club on the third trump lead, and so does dummy, but on the next lead I run into a serious problem.

Sometimes I discard the eight of hearts. When I do, South plays a heart to the ace and ruffs a heart, establishing the J-10 as tricks. He then plays the K-A of spades and cashes dummy's two high hearts, whereupon I get squeezed and declarer makes the rest of the tricks — to the tune of 2,440 points.

Sometimes I discard a spade at trick four. When I do, South cashes the K-A of spades and ruffs a spade, establishing two spade tricks in dummy. He then plays a heart to dummy's ace and cashes the 6-5 of spades. I discard a heart on the fourth round of spades, but on the fifth spade I'm again hopelessly squeezed. Whether I discard my king of hearts or a club from the K-Q, South makes the rest of the tricks.

Sometimes I discard the queen of clubs at trick four, hoping declarer won't realize I've unguarded the king. But South is a real smart cookie and invariably sees through my scheme. He nails the king and I wind up shelling out the same 2,440 points.

Now the fact is I can't afford to lose that many points on one deal — even though the stakes are nominal and the whole thing's only a dream — but I was wondering whether you can suggest any way for me to escape from this awful dilemma. I would appreciate it very much. Cordially yours, Constant Reader.

Dear C.R.: Happy to oblige. The next time this terrible situation arises, I suggest that you ask for a new deal. You have only 12 cards! Cordially yours, BJB.

"I think there is some progress being made" in easing Middle East tensions, Exon said, noting there are 3.5 million Israelis standing up to 75 million Arab neighbors.

That would be the same as conflict of all Nebraskans with a third of all surrounding Americans, from the Rockies to the Appalachians, Canada to Mexico.

Arabs Do Well

He explained that Israel has "done well for Arabs" living there, who play "an important part as farmers, who own and control land" and have expanded businesses. Seven Knesset members are Arabs.

Exon said he was surprised at how many Arab children live in Israel, but added there's a "dedicated effort" in the education system to "promote better understanding."

He cited a wide "appreciation of America's defense of Israel in the U.N.," without which Israelis "recognize and realize their predicament would be a precarious one, indeed."

"It's surprising to me to see the Western world and the United Nations not the least bit concerned" about what Exon described as the Moslem-Christian "massive bloodbath." "How the world can wink at that is almost unbelievable."

PLO Main Worry

In Israel, "The main concern is the PLO (Palestinian Liberation Organization), the problem with the Palestinians and what can be created to solve that."

Meanwhile, Exon said, the problem is compounded because the Jewish state is "racked by inflation" while taxes, "the heaviest in the world," go mainly for defense.

However, while Israeli newspapers are full of controversy over official posturing, Exon said, "all Israelis agree on one thing. National defense is a prime concern."

No Violence Seen

"We saw no violence whatsoever" during the tour, Exon said. Hosted by Joseph Sarid, the second-youngest member of the Knesset, the Exon party was unrestricted in its travels.

They toured famous Holy Land sites. The trek ranged from the south to Haifa on the north, east to the Golan Heights and the Jordan Israel truce line manned by U.N. forces, to the Sea of Galilee and the Sermon on the Mount site, and into the Sinai Desert where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found.

Exon felt an even greater span of time in Italy, from dusty sites dating to 9,000 B.C. and up to the contemporary society of Rome.

The time contrast of his trip "gives you more of an appreciation than ever before of what the U.S. has done in 200 years."

Exon recalled an eerie feeling seeing "hammers and sickles painted on buildings" throughout Italy. He discussed with U.S. Ambassador John Volpe (former Massachusetts governor) the June 20 elections in which Communists hope to increase their strength to gain a coalition government role.

Italians Speculate

There's speculation in Italy about whether the Catholic church opposition "is going to help or hurt the Communists' chances," Exon said.

Seeing the ancient beauty of Roman sculptures, Michaelangelo's painting, the Vatican museum, catacombs and the intricacies of ancient construction and aquaducts, Exon was struck again at America's place in history as "almost a snap of the fingers."

Senate Narrowly Defeats Hruska Antitrust Offering

Washington (UPI) — The Senate defeated an amendment Tuesday which limited a state's use of private attorneys in bringing antitrust and price-fixing cases on behalf of its citizens.

No final vote on the antitrust reform bill, to which the amendment would have been attached, is in sight.

The amendment, by Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., prohibited states from hiring outside lawyers on a contingency fee basis. It was rejected 49 to 42 and an effort to reconsider was killed 49 to 42.

Under the contingency fee concept, the outside attorney is not paid unless he or she wins the case. The fee is based on a percentage of the damages recovered.

The percentage fee was attacked as providing a million-dollar financial windfall for lawyers hired by states. Hruska maintained that lawyers should be paid on a flat fee basis for actual work done regardless of the suit's outcome.

After Hruska's amendment was rejected, the bill's main sponsor, Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., pledged that when the bill gets to a House-Senate conference committee to resolve differences, he will work to prohibit outside attorneys from collecting a percentage fee.

But Hart said states must be allowed to hire private attorneys and pay them contingent to winning the suit. Without this provision, he said, the "vast majority of attorneys general offices that are understaffed and underfunded" would be prohibited from bringing class action antitrust suits.

Other sponsors said paying lawyers contingent to winning a case would guard against "frivolous" lawsuits.

Hart failed twice to secure a unanimous consent agreement to get a vote on his compromise amendment to outlaw percentage fees but still allow the lawyers to be paid contingent to winning the suit.

Hruska's amendment was originally tabled Friday, but conservative opponents rallied enough support late Monday to revive the proposal and pass it. Rather than face certain defeat, sponsors of the bill were forced to recess the Senate and delay a vote until Tuesday in hopes of finding more "no" votes.

Hart said opponents of the legislation were trying to portray the bill's sponsors as against big business and free enterprise. Instead, he said, the legislation is aimed "at the poison introduced into the free enterprise system by hard core price fixing."

Firm Raises Stink, Pays $500 Fine

Jacksonville, Fla. (AP) — A company which produces such smells as lemon and lime for shampoo, candy and furniture polish gave up a fight against charges that it made the city stink.

One resident said the odor coming from the Union Camp Corp. twice in January smelled like rotten cabbage.

The company did not explain how such a foul odor might have come from a plant known for sweet smells but changed its plea from innocent to no contest on two charges of disseminating a pollutant.

County Judge Raymond L. Simpson fined the company $500.

The firm uses turpentine derivatives to create highly potent odors called mercaptans, which are used to provide scents in other products. Several parts of mercaptans in a billion parts of air can be smelled hundreds of feet away.

Availability In His Mind

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged divorcee. For the last two years I've been dating a very attractive single man.

We are not officially engaged, but since we've been seeing each other I haven't dated anyone else, and the only time he has is when one of his friends or relatives fixes him up with a "lovely lady" they think he should meet, or when he's asked as a favor to escort a lady somewhere.

I very much resent others casting my gentleman friend in the role of a single available man. When I tell him that I don't appreciate his accommodating others by escorting another lady, or agreeing to accept an arranged date, he tells me I'm being foolish.

How can I handle this annoying situation without appearing possessive and jealous?

NUMBER ONE LADY

DEAR LADY: You can't. Don't blame others for casting your gentleman friend "in the role" of an available man. He doesn't have to accept that role unless he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: Do they sell donkey blinders anymore? If so, I would like to buy a pair for my husband. He never looks at the road when he drives. Instead, he is busy gawking at the young women who are walking along the streets.

He slows down to about five miles an hour to be sure he doesn't miss anything. We've come within inches of having accidents more times than I can count.

How can I get this old coot to keep his eyes on the road? He's 62 and I'm 60.

GAWKER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Even donkey blinders would be useless for this breed of donkey. If you can't get him to keep his eyes on the road, take the wheel. And if he doesn't like it, let him trot!

DEAR ABBY: A friend of ours who is a married woman with children recently lost her mother.

My mother and I disagree on how the condolence card should be addressed.

I say condolences should be addressed to: "Mr. and Mrs. John Jones and family."

My mother insists that the condolence card be addressed only to my friend whose mother died.

Is it proper to console only the party directly bereaved? Or shouldn't my friend's husband and children also receive condolences? After all, her husband lost his mother-in-law, and the children lost their grandmother.

FRIEND OF THE FAMILY

DEAR FRIEND: I vote with you.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for your very sound advice to FRIENDLY PARTING, who insisted, in obtaining a divorce, that she and her husband agreed on absolutely everything, and they didn't see why they needed a lawyer just to fill out a few forms. (You said, "Some of those do-it-yourself divorces are more expensive in the long run than the regular kind. See a lawyer!")

My wife and I decided we didn't need a lawyer because we agreed on everything. It was true; we agreed on everything we could think of. The problem was that there were four or five very important things we DIDN'T think of. What a mess!

We made no absolute provisions for community property. And nothing was done about spousal support or alimony. Visitation rights were not clearcut, and we ended up with an inexpensive, but very unfair divorce.

I wish I had written to you before I decided to save a few dollars on a do-it-yourself divorce. I hope FRIENDLY PARTING takes your advice.

FOOLISH IN MARYLAND

DEAR FOOLISH: It's strange that when a person has a physical problem he goes to a physician and is glad to pay him for what he knows, but when he has a legal problem, he resents paying a legal fee.

A competent lawyer is worth every dime he charges.

DEAR ABBY: In response to your decision to sign the Living Will, Dr. Peale asserted that there is a variety of opinions on this issue, but that the prevailing Protestant view would be that "God alone should determine life and death. The individual should be in the hands of God, who gave life and whose function it is to take it."

Human beings are not puppets. God has endowed us with minds that He expects us to use wisely and responsibly. We decide when to consult a doctor and whether or not to have surgery performed.

The decision to keep patients alive by artificial means is not made by God, but by doctors. They assume they are carrying out God's will and have been supported by the courts. They become arbiters in life and death.

To declare that "God alone should determine life and death" is simplistic and naive. We must accept responsibility for our actions and be guided by what we believe is God's will and purpose.

The Psalmist did not ask that God keep him alive forever on earth, but said: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten, and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

More Public Involvement Is Sought

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Unless Americans get more involved as citizens, the country will see a continuing erosion of individual liberties, an increase in legislative and regulatory totalitarianism and further politicizing of science for partisan ends, according to Cornell Maier, president and chief executive of Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corporation.

Citing a Roper poll reporting that 71 per cent of the people believe the country is on the wrong track, Maier told the American Business Press annual meeting that "in one sense, this could be an encouraging report. It might just mean that the American people are about ready to say 'enough of this foolishness' and themselves get on with the job of getting this country rolling again."

The current lack of citizen involvement, said Maier, has spawned a group he called the "dismantlers." This group, he said, would tear down the American system and establish a new one based on their ideas of what's best for the nation.

Dear Mr. Becker: I suffer from nightmares — bridge nightmares, that is. I have this recurring dream where I hold the West hand and find myself on lead against seven diamonds.

I always lead a trump and South draws four rounds of trumps. I discard a club on the third trump lead, and so does dummy, but on the next lead I run into a serious problem.

Sometimes I discard the eight of hearts. When I do, South plays a heart to the ace and ruffs a heart, establishing the J-10 as tricks. He then plays the K-A of spades and cashes dummy's two high hearts, whereupon I get squeezed and declarer makes the rest of the tricks — to the tune of 2,440 points.

Sometimes I discard a spade at trick four. When I do, South cashes the K-A of spades and ruffs a spade, establishing two spade tricks in dummy. He then plays a heart to dummy's ace and cashes the 6-5 of spades. I discard a heart on the fourth round of spades, but on the fifth spade I'm again hopelessly squeezed. Whether I discard my king of hearts or a club from the K-Q, South makes the rest of the tricks.

Sometimes I discard the queen of clubs at trick four, hoping declarer won't realize I've unguarded the king. But South is a real smart cookie and invariably sees through my scheme. He nails the king and I wind up shelling out the same 2,440 points.

Now the fact is I can't afford to lose that many points on one deal — even though the stakes are nominal and the whole thing's only a dream — but I was wondering whether you can suggest any way for me to escape from this awful dilemma. I would appreciate it very much. Cordially yours, Constant Reader.

Dear C.R.: Happy to oblige. The next time this terrible situation arises, I suggest that you ask for a new deal. You have only 12 cards! Cordially yours, BJB.

Senate Narrowly Defeats Hruska Antitrust Offering

Washington (UPI) — The Senate defeated an amendment Tuesday which limited a state's use of private attorneys in bringing antitrust and price-fixing cases on behalf of its citizens.

No final vote on the antitrust reform bill, to which the amendment would have been attached, is in sight.

The amendment, by Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., prohibited states from hiring outside lawyers on a contingency fee basis. It was rejected 49 to 42 and an effort to reconsider was killed 49 to 42.

Under the contingency fee concept, the outside attorney is not paid unless he or she wins the case. The fee is based on a percentage of the damages recovered.

The percentage fee was attacked as providing a million-dollar financial windfall for lawyers hired by states. Hruska maintained that lawyers should be paid on a flat fee basis for actual work done regardless of the suit's outcome.

After Hruska's amendment was rejected, the bill's main sponsor, Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., pledged that when the bill gets to a House-Senate conference committee to resolve differences, he will work to prohibit outside attorneys from collecting a percentage fee.

But Hart said states must be allowed to hire private attorneys and pay them contingent to winning the suit. Without this provision, he said, the "vast majority of attorneys general offices that are understaffed and underfunded" would be prohibited from bringing class action antitrust suits.

Other sponsors said paying lawyers contingent to winning a case would guard against "frivolous" lawsuits.

Hart failed twice to secure a unanimous consent agreement to get a vote on his compromise amendment to outlaw percentage fees but still allow the lawyers to be paid contingent to winning the suit.

Hruska's amendment was originally tabled Friday, but conservative opponents rallied enough support late Monday to revive the proposal and pass it. Rather than face certain defeat, sponsors of the bill were forced to recess the Senate and delay a vote until Tuesday in hopes of finding more "no" votes.

Hart said opponents of the legislation were trying to portray the bill's sponsors as against big business and free enterprise. Instead, he said, the legislation is aimed "at the poison introduced into the free enterprise system by hard core price fixing."

Firm Raises Stink, Pays $500 Fine

Jacksonville, Fla. (AP) — A company which produces such smells as lemon and lime for shampoo, candy and furniture polish gave up a fight against charges that it made the city stink.

One resident said the odor coming from the Union Camp Corp. twice in January smelled like rotten cabbage.

The company did not explain how such a foul odor might have come from a plant known for sweet smells but changed its plea from innocent to no contest on two charges of disseminating a pollutant.

County Judge Raymond L. Simpson fined the company $500.

The firm uses turpentine derivatives to create highly potent odors called mercaptans, which are used to provide scents in other products. Several parts of mercaptans in a billion parts of air can be smelled hundreds of feet away.

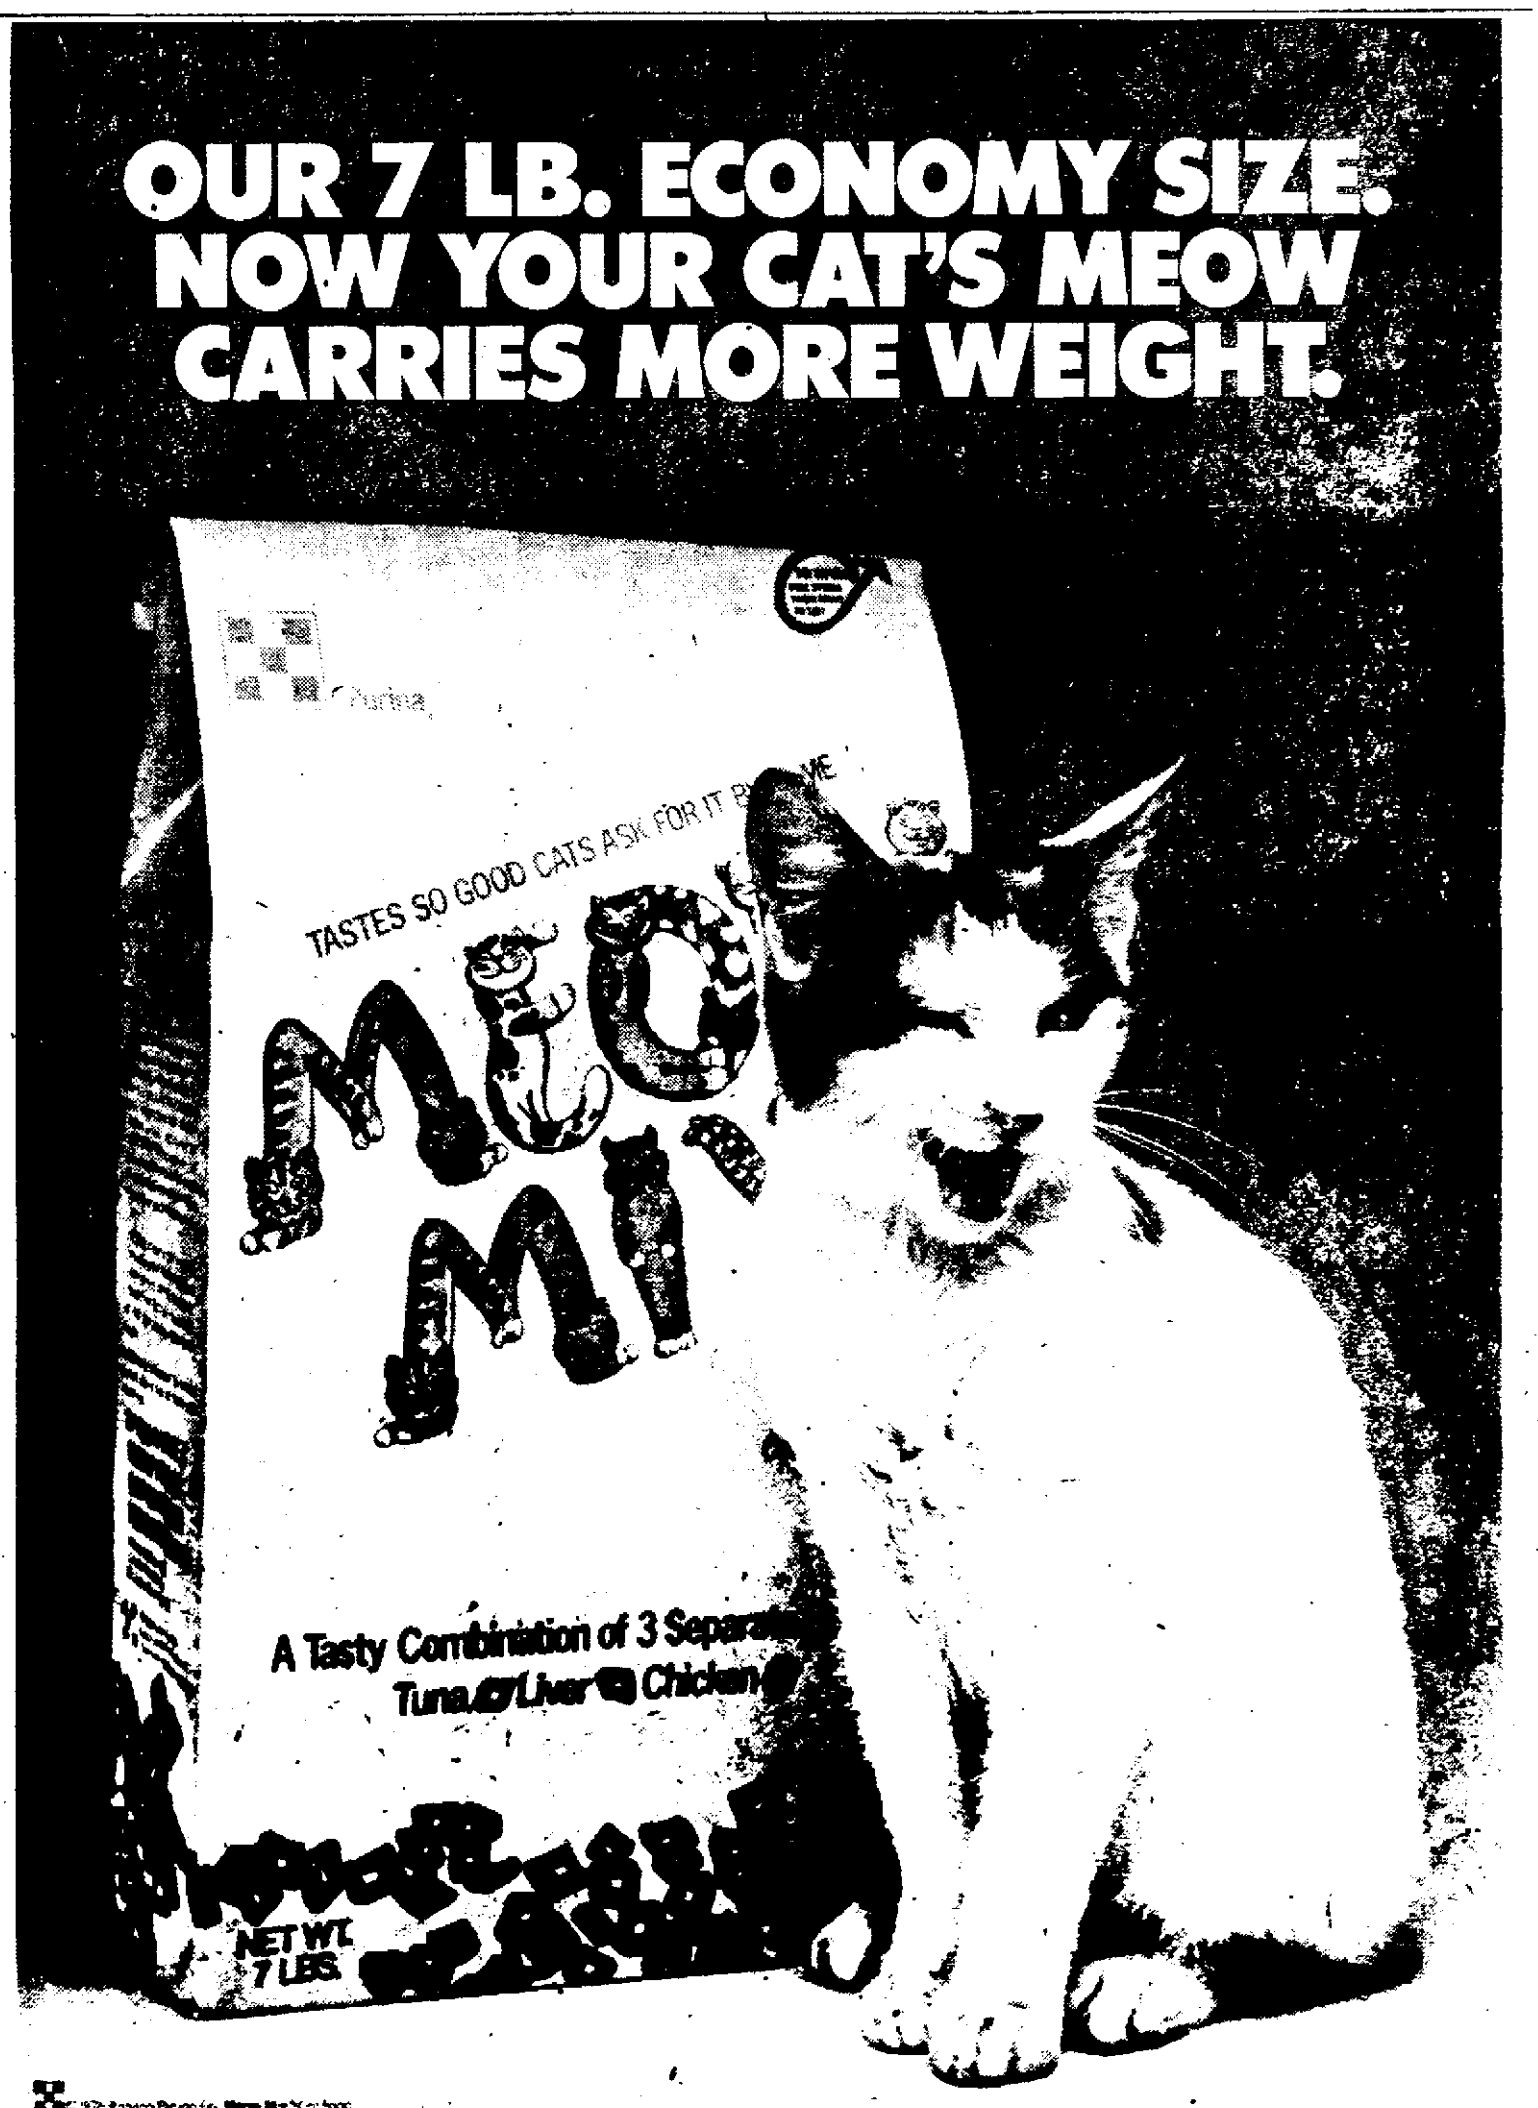
OUR 7 LB. ECONOMY SIZE. NOW YOUR CAT'S MEOW CARRIES MORE WEIGHT.



Until recently, a cat's meow could be loosely translated as a request for either the 18 oz. box of Meow Mix or the 3½ lb. bag.

Now, however, Meow Mix cat food also comes in a 7 lb. bag.

We call it our large, economy size.

It's perfect for cats with large, not so economy size appetites. And for families with more than one cat.

DICK AND LIZ . . . their love runs deep but terribly turbulent.

Elizabeth And Richard
No Hollywood Movie Ever

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of six articles excerpted from a book by the authors of the best-selling "Jackie and Ari.")

By LESTER DAVID
and JHAN ROBBINS

The marriage, like the superstars themselves, was outside a larger-than-life story so crammed with love, rage of jealous mates, farce and near-tragedy that no movie audience would ever swallow it.

Yet it all happened!

It was the kind of relationship in which Richard Burton got socked in the jaw in public by both his wives.

Once Elizabeth became incensed because her husband had flirted...or so she thought, with a pretty girl in a Los Angeles club. She left in a fury, fumed all night long and next day, still angry, went looking for him. She found him drinking with pals at the Polo Lounge of the posh Beverly Hills Hotel. In full view of the movie celebrities who gather there daily, she drew back her clenched fist and delivered a roundhouse squarely on Burton's jaw. Then, her anger released, she kissed him tenderly.

Sybil Burton, then married to Richard, attended a Hollywood New Year's party with her husband. At the stroke of midnight, she saw him take Elizabeth in his arms and kiss her. Sybil marched up to Burton and delivered a thirteenth stroke, her own, a sharp slap across his face which left a reddened imprint of every finger. Then she wheeled, left the room and went home.

Together, Elizabeth and Richard amassed an estimated thirty million dollars and traveled more than one million miles. They have vacationed in Mexico, gone on safari into Africa, journeyed deep into Russia, spent much time on both American coasts and sailed their yacht almost everywhere.

Yet Elizabeth once said she would give up all her wealth to bear Richard's child — the one thing in the world denied to her. All three of her natural children were born by Caesarian section. In view of her many illnesses — she has had 30 operations and once was 15 minutes from death from pneumonia — doctors have warned her against another pregnancy.

She amazes, amuses and constantly confounds Burton. He admits she is totally unlike him.

"We have different personalities," he said after their separation earlier this year. "When we're together, things seem to happen. To put it mildly — we clash. When I say up, she says down. My white is her black, my night her day. How that woman bossed me about!"

Like many husbands, he tended to forget birthdays and anniversaries, but only at the very beginning. Elizabeth let him know forthrightly that these occasions were to be remembered.

Once taxi driver Basil Ward, driving Burton alone one night, confessed he had forgotten his own wedding anniversary. Burton told him: "You should know that you can never understand a woman — they're really mysterious, but we can't do without 'em. If I ever forgot my anniversary, Elizabeth would throw the piano at me."

If not the piano, then something she could lift. Because Elizabeth is enchantingly, disarmingly frank. Unlike other celebrity women who talk piously, and mostly untruthfully, to the press about their harmonious home lives, she frankly admits that battling is good for a marriage and that she has done her share with Richard.

"I think fighting is very healthy," she says. "It clears the air. I think there's nothing worse than one partner sulking, especially if the other person wants to get the problem out in the open and cleared away. I have quite a temper myself, so I've been told."

London friends report that amidst the cooing and doving there was plenty of needling and nagging.

Item: Talking about their 130-foot yacht Kalizma, Burton said: "She is beginning to show her age and her bottom needs scraping." He couldn't resist adding: "The boat, not Elizabeth."

Item: When he would upset her, she would tell him of her displeasure at once, no matter who was listening. "Elizabeth," Burton once remarked, "tries to be a shrew, wants to be an autocrat and unsuccessfully attempts tyranny in little things."

Item: On location in California's Big Sur region for the film "The Sandpiper," a dreadful movie which nevertheless grossed $14 million because of its stars, Burton missed several lines. Elizabeth giggled.

"I'm so henpecked," Burton sighed, "I don't know why I bother to act."

"You don't, dear," Elizabeth swiftly replied.

He glared. "I can get a divorce on the grounds of that."

Item: Burton, an omniverous reader and Oxford graduate who studied English and Italian literature, prides himself on not having to resort to swear words. Elizabeth, however, can curse like a longshoreman. For years, he has been trying to cure her of using four-letter words. One day, Elizabeth proudly told an acquaintance as Richard looked on: "You know, he has finally succeeded in making me stop using four-letter words."

Said Elizabeth: "You bet your ass."

Burton sighed. "Well anyway, that was a three-letter word."

Each has a high degree of tolerance for the other's imperfections. "Despite what you may believe," said Emlyn Williams, "their brink is much higher than that of most people."

In a brief remark that summed up the key to their relationship, Burton defined love: "Love," he said, "is a high degree of tolerance carried almost to excess. If you love somebody really, truly, and he or she turns out to be a murderer, you love that person despite everything. You love the faults as well as the things of which you are proud. And if one is intolerant, the other must be tolerant of that intolerance."

'Accept, Love Faults'

Elizabeth agreed. "There's no such thing as an ideal man or woman," she said. "We're all just too human to be ideal. It's the faults one has to accept and love . . ."

They loved deeply. Sometimes she would become tense and anxious, wondering if she would some day have to pay for the happiness she had with him, wondering what would happen to her if she lost him.

Once she actually heard herself telling him: "If you get killed or die before me, I'll never speak to you again."

For his part, Richard was enormously proud of her. Happily, he brought her to his home of Pontrhydyfen and introduced her to the gnarled Welshmen at the Miner's Arms, a small stone pub near the house in which Richard was born.

A dart board, a staple in all pubs of the British Isles, hung on one wall, across the room from the bar. Young Burton had been an expert at the game. After introducing Elizabeth to the townsfolk, he told her proudly of his skill.

"How do you do it?" she asked, picking up a dart. "Like this?" She tossed it 15 feet, striking the bull's eye dead center. The entire pub rocked with applause, Burton leading.

"Say," he howled above the tumult, "didn't I pick myself a talented wife?" Then, as everyone watched, he kissed her full on the lips. Elizabeth blushed and Richard ordered drinks for the house.

A woman patron who was there recalled: "That's Richie for you. A good lad. I remember him when he spoke only Welsh, not a word of English. Aye, and he's still a good lad and married such a fine, fine lady."

Burtons Are Rich

Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton are rich — very rich.

"They say we generate more business activity than one of the smaller African nations," Richard explained.

And Elizabeth added, "Perhaps, not so small?"

When they are living together the couple's combined wealth exceeds $30 million. Her fortune is estimated at upwards of $20 million, his at $10 million plus. The Taylor-Burton joint yearly income is about $3 million. Expenditures, however, often surpass that staggering sum, and despite the couple's great riches they often find themselves short of cash.

"Seventy-five percent of our income goes before we see it," Richard said. "We need so many people to help us and they need to be paid. For example, we need four guards to watch the villa or someone will try to crawl over the wall to photograph us in the lavatory."

Annually, the Burtons contribute more than $1 million to charities — and not all tax exempt. A great many contributions have been made in Great Britain where tax write-offs are difficult to come by, but this hasn't discouraged the couples' philanthropy. While accountants rant and pound the table, Elizabeth says sweetly, "Donations give me such a warm glow in my private parts, so why stop to worry about deductions?"

A great part of Elizabeth's wealth resides in her red leather jewel boxes. Among her favorite gems are:

● The Cartier-Burton diamond is the piece de resistance of the collection. It weighs 69.42 carats and is considered to be the world's most expensive single bit of jewelry ever placed in auction. Elizabeth desperately wanted it and bid $1 million. But she was outbid by the Cartier's jewelry firm. Soon after the sale, however, Richard went to the new owner and purchased the perfect precious stone as a present for his wife. (Onassis had considered buying it as a wedding gift for Jackie.)

● The 32-carat Krupp diamond that has been appraised at $300,000. It comes from the estate of Vera Krupp, the ex-wife of the German munitions magnate. Elizabeth, who is extremely fond of the diamond, said: "It's so nice that a little Jewish girl owns it now."

● On Elizabeth's 40th birthday Richard gave her a heart-shaped pendant that once belonged to Shah Jehan who built the Taj Mahal. It is valued at $100,000 and is inscribed: "Eternal love 'till death."

● The Ping-Pong diamond weighs less than a quarter of a carat and is worth about $35, but Elizabeth treasures it. Richard bought it with earnings he won from a ping-pong game.

Both Elizabeth and Richard delighted in thrusting presents upon each other. Elizabeth explained: "We get such great pleasure out of spending money. So why not enjoy it?"

In addition to the fabulous gems, the presents have included:

● A white hand-built Panther automobile that cost $25,000. Burton gave it to his wife last Christmas.

● Her present to him was a helicopter that cost more than $50,000.

● Richard gave his wife a twin-jet airplane. Cost: $1 million. Contents: Ultra-modern kitchen, lounge, bar, built-in movie projector. Name: Naturally, it was called, "Elizabeth."

● Three Rolls-Royces: white, grey and green.

Elizabeth, the daughter of a very knowledgeable art dealer, knows a great deal about paintings and owns many rare canvases. The multi-million dollar collection contains original paintings by Van Gogh, Monet, Renoir, Modigliani, Roualt, Utrillo, Degas, Pissarro.

Richard has said that his paintings are on the pound notes he has given his family. All his immediate relations have received equal sums from Burton and he has helped them to purchase their own homes. He has given each of them an automobile and issued pensions to all of retiring age. The contributions have run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The Burtons have provided extravagantly for their children. Sizable trust funds have been set up for Elizabeth's four children: Michael Jr., Christopher, Liza, Maria; and for Richard's two daughters: Kate and Jessica. Liza already has more than a million dollars.

Michael Wilding Jr., has presented some financial problems. Elizabeth and Richard gave him a lavish London townhouse, but he prefers a commune in Wales, not far from Burton's birthplace.

The commune, called Pfyon Wen, Welsh for White Spring, is a large, beige-colored farmhouse near the village of Ystumtuen, set in a valley where sheep graze and small creeks run. Not far away is an unused lead mine, now in ruins. Twenty-two-year-old Michael Wilding Jr., lives here with 23-year-old Johanna Lykke Dahn, and their daughter, Naomi, and a small number of other young people.

"I try not to interfere in his lifestyle," Richard said. "But sometimes I get goddamned mad when I think what it took to climb out . . . I made it up and the boy's trying to make it down."

Liz Blocks Divorce Plans

Port au Prince, Haiti (UPI) — An associate of Richard Burton said Tuesday the actor failed to get a scheduled "quickie" divorce in Haiti and plans to return to Hollywood Wednesday still married to Elizabeth Taylor.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said Miss Taylor's refusal to give consent frustrated Burton's plan to divorce her and marry Susan Hunt, former wife of British racing car driver James Hunt.

He said Miss Taylor had not submitted a notarized statement of her agreement to the divorce, which is required under Haitian law, although only one of the pair has to be present at the proceedings.

The Hotel El Rancho confirmed Tuesday that both a Richard Burton and a Mrs. Susan Hunt were guests there, "sharing the same room," and that both had left orders not to be disturbed.

SAMPSON . . . as Chief Crazy Horse. AP

Sampson Started Film Career Late

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "My father is 73 going on 30. An Indian who is full of life. He always told me, 'Whatever you do, be the best.' "

Will Sampson seems to have followed his daddy's counsel, three times. During his youth he was a star on the rodeo circuit. When he reached the point where "it was too hard to get off the ground," he turned to art. His paintings hang in the Smithsonian Institute and major galleries and museums of the Southwest.

With the Oscar-winning movie, "One Flew over the Cuckoo's Nest," he turned actor. His role as the speechless Chief Bromden proved one of the strong features of the film.

In quick succession Will Sampson has appeared in films with four superstars: Jack Nicholson in "Cuckoo's Nest;" Paul Newman in "Buffalo Bill and the Indians;" Clint Eastwood in "The Outlaw, Josey Wales;" and now Charles Bronson in "The White Buffalo."

Sampson attracted the interest of the entire commissary when he arrived from the "White Buffalo" set for lunch. He is a commanding figure, a strong, athletic six feet five, with broad, handsome face. Perfect casting for the quintessential Indian chief.

He is 43, a latecomer to acting. It happened by accident, said Sampson, who never had ambitions to act.

"The producers of 'Cuckoo' asked a friend of mine, a rodeo announcer named Mel Lambert, to be on the lookout for a big Indian. We had worked together many times on the rodeo circuit, and he thought of me. But he didn't know how to find me.

"He found me in Washington. I was directing an art show in Yakima and Mel was announcing a rodeo nearby. I asked him to announce my show. That's when he told me about the movie."

Producer Michael Douglas' brother Joe flew to Washington to confer with Sampson and recognized his obvious qualifications. Sampson read the Ken Kesey book and agreed to sign on — "I always like new projects."

Sampson is a full-blooded Creek, proud of his heritage but far from a zealot. He declined to echo the Brandovian line about how miserably Indians have been portrayed on the screen.

"That's something that is past," he commented. "It can be corrected in the future. Indians laugh at how they are shown in movies. They know it isn't true so they don't take it seriously."

Nor is he militant about the fact that until recent times major Indian roles were usually played by non-Indians. Producers long clung to the belief that Indians were too stoical to display emotion on the screen.

"That is wrong," said Sampson. "There are good Indian actors. Indians can laugh and cry, just like anyone else. They laugh very easily, in fact. They have needed a sense of humor to endure what they have."

Sampson admits to being a wanderer, having left home in Okmulgee, Okla., when he was in the seventh grade. He always returned, and he has six children at home in Tulsa. But he indicated he is rarely there, and he has another residence in Yucca Valley, in the high desert north of Palm Springs, Calif.

He seems a natural actor, but Will Sampson prepares for his work.

"I go about it the same way I do my painting," he explained. "I research thoroughly. For instance, I've done painting of all the great Indian chiefs, and I studied everything about them."

Now he finds himself portraying one of his portrait subjects — he's Chief Crazy Horse to Charles Bronson's Wild Bill Hickok. "There are no known photographs of Crazy Horse, but I found out what he looked like from descriptions at the time.

"He was six feet tall and had light hair, light skin and blue eyes, making some people wonder if he didn't have some Viking in him."

Computers Which Hear Wanted For Controllers

Pomona, N.J. (AP) — Donald Connolly talks to his computer, but that's his job.

Connolly, an engineering psychologist, is working on a way — through voice command — to let air traffic controllers keep their eyes on your airliner instead of their computer keyboards.

Today, information about an airplane's identity, speed, altitude and course must be fed into a computer by controllers using conventional keyboards. When a pilot makes a change, the controller must take his eyes off the radar screen to enter the new data.

"The important thing is to absolutely minimize the distraction of the controller," Connolly said. "A guy can punch a keyboard pretty fast, but we don't want to distract him."

If controllers could talk to their computers, he says, they could keep their eyes on the airplanes.

Spoken word recognizers are nothing new. Some businesses have been using them for years to route packages on conveyor belts or for quality control on auto assembly lines. But those systems use only a few words.

Working at the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center near Atlantic City, Connolly has already taught his computer to understand 102 words controllers frequently use. These words are divided into "parts of speech," or commands, that are normal in any message between pilots and controllers.

The computer must be taught through repetition to recognize the voice of each speaker. Changes in a controller's voice because of a cold, allergy, tension or fatigue must also be programmed.

And talking to a computer is not like talking to a friend.

Lucas Signs 5-Year Pact With Houston

NEW YORK (AP) — John Lucas, the multi-talented athlete from the University of Maryland, signed a five-year, no-cut contract with the Houston Rockets Tuesday, moments after being the No. 1 pick in the National Basketball Association draft.

But the prized All-American guard, described by pro scouts as the top backcourt player in the nation, also indicated he would sign a contract with a franchise in World Team Tennis next week.

Lucas, in Houston, said via telephone during the NBA draft that he was negotiating with a WTT member, which he declined to identify, and would make an attempt to play both sports professionally.

While the Rockets were signing the highly-sought 6-foot-4 Lucas, who averaged 18.3 points a game for Maryland in four varsity seasons, the 17 other NBA teams were buzzing through the 10-round draft, which was completed in just over two hours.

Among the other first-round picks were All-Americans forward Scott May of Indiana and Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame. May, the College Player of the Year and a member of the U.S. Olympic squad, was the No. 2 pick, going to the Chicago Bulls, the team with the worst record in the league last season. The 6-7 May, who averaged 24 points per game for Indiana's national champions last season, was one of three Hoosiers chosen on the first round.

The others were guards Quinn Buckner, another Olympian, by the Milwaukee Bucks, and Bobby Wilkerson, by the Seattle SuperSonics.

Dantley, another member of the U.S. Olympic team who decided to forego his final season of collegiate eligibility and turn pro, went to the Buffalo Braves. He averaged 29 points a game for the Fighting Irish as a junior last season and has been called "another Elgin Baylor," one of the NBA's all-time great players.

Also chosen on the first round were forward Richard Washington of UCLA, also a member of the college eligibility list, by the Kansas City Kings; center-forward Leon Douglas of Alabama, by the Detroit Pistons; forward Wally Walker of Virginia, by the Portland Trail Blazers, and 7-0 Robert Parish of Centenary, by the Golden State Warriors.

Parish had been expected to be the No. 1 choice, by Atlanta, but the Hawks traded that pick, along with center Dwight Jones to Houston on Monday for center Joe Meriweather, guard Gus Bailey and the Rockets' first-round selection.

After Golden State made Parish the No. 8 pick, Atlanta took guard Armond Hill of Princeton. Then guard Ron Lee went to Phoenix, Seattle grabbed Wilkerson, Philadelphia selected guard Terry Furlow of Michigan State, Washington had two straight choices and picked Olympic center Mitch Kupchak of North Carolina and guard Larry Wright of Grambling, Cleveland selected guard Chuckie Williams of Kansas State, Boston's champion Celtics took forward Norm Cook of Kansas and Golden State chose forward Sonny Parker of Texas A&M.

The Lakers' first choice was forward Earl Tatum of Marquette.

Meanwhile, the nation's leading scorer last season, guard Marshall Rogers of Pan American University, wasn't chosen until the last pick in the final round, by Golden State, and All-American forward Phil Sellers of Rutgers lasted until the third round, when he was taken by Detroit.

Other noteworthy choices included forward Robert Gray of Wichita State and the brother of Seattle's Leonard Gray, by the SuperSonics; Marcus Leite of Pepperdine and Brazil's national team, by Portland on the final round, and guard Ken Smith of San Diego State, the last player among the 176 selected, by Golden State.

First Round

1, Houston—John Lucas, Maryland, guard. 2, Chicago—Scott May, Indiana, forward. 3, Kansas City—Richard Washington, UCLA, forward. 4, Detroit—Leon Douglas, Alabama, forward-center. 5, Portland—Wally Walker, Virginia, forward. 6, Buffalo—Adrian Dantley, Notre Dame, forward.

7, Milwaukee—Quinn Buckner, Indiana, guard. 8, Golden State—Robert Parish, Centenary, center. 9, Atlanta—Armond Hill, Princeton, guard. 10, Phoenix—Ron Lee, Oregon, guard. 11, Seattle—Bob Wilkerson, Indiana, guard. 12, Philadelphia— Terry Furlow, Michigan State, guard.

13, Washington—Mitch Kupchak, North Carolina, forward-center. 14, Washington, Larry Wright, Grambling, guard. 15, Cleveland—Chuckie Williams, Kansas State, guard. 16, Boston—Norm Cook, Kansas, forward. 17, Golden State—Sonny Parker, Texas A&M, forward.

Thousands of fans crowd City Hall Plaza in Boston Tuesday in a rally to honor the Celtics for winning the 1976 National Basketball Association championship.

Boston Honors Its Champs

BOSTON (UPI) — The world champion Boston Celtics Tuesday did what city leaders have not been able to do for the past two years: bring an air of harmony to this troubled city, if only briefly.

An estimated 30,000 people forgot racial tensions which have divided the city for months to line a two-mile ticker tape parade route between Boston Garden and City Hall Plaza honoring the Celtics' 13th National Basketball Association crown in 20 seasons.

At City Hall another 30-50,000 fans were waiting in the sunny, red-bricked plaza—remembered by many as the site where black attorney Theodore Landsmark was beaten by white students during a protest over court-ordered school busing only months ago.

"You have won for a thousand different reasons. In other arenas we haven't done so well," Mayor Kevin H. White told the players as they stepped onto City Hall balcony to gaze over the sea of faces which erupted into deafening cheers.

"We're number one, We're number one," the crowd chanted as White tried to quiet them to introduce the team members who flew in Monday night from Phoenix where they clinched the title over the Suns on Sunday.

"Today Boston honors the greatest collection of athletes in the world," White yelled through the microphone.

White first presented an award to cigar chomping Celtics' General Manager Red Auerbach, who he called "the creator of the greatest dynasty in sports history."

"Everytime I've been up here I've had a great thrill," said Auerbach, who has played an active role in all 13 crowns as either coach or general manager. "Today it's the greatest thrill."

Jo Jo White, dapper in his beige slacks, a matching v-neck sweater with no shirt and a straw plantation hat, looked to Celtics' center Dave Cowens and said, "Dave, it makes you want to fly."

Coach Tom Heinsohn, criticized by some for his court side tantrums, bellowed to the crowd in his chronically hoarse voice, "We've got a great, great basketball team here, and we're going to do it again next year."

There was prolonged applause for Don Nelson, who has announced his retirement earlier this year. "It's been 11 of the best years of my life," the former University of Iowa star said quietly.

The cheering swelled for Jo Jo White, who sparkplugged the Celtics to the title, winning the Most Valuable Player award along the way. "I'd just like to say one thing," he grinned: "HOW SWEET IT IS!"

But the most enthusiastic eruption was saved for Captain John Havlicek, at 36 the old man of the team who spent more time with his injured foot in an ice bucket as he did on the playing floor during the playoffs.

"This year we're number one, we had injuries, new personnel. But we had togetherness," Havlicek said.

Husker Guard Sets Meeting With Agent

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Jerry Fort admitted he was rooting for the Boston Celtics during the championship playoffs against Phoenix. Who knows — maybe it was a premonition.

"That was even before they drafted me," Fort said Tuesday after learning the National Basketball Association playoff champions had selected him in the third round. "I'm quite happy that I have a chance to make it with probably the best team in basketball."

Fort said he would discuss the matter with his agent, Continental Sports of Houston, Tex., late Tuesday night before deciding upon a possible negotiating figure.

"The third round is a good round," said Nebraska's all-time leading scorer who started all four years under head coach Joe Cipriano. "It's not like the first or second where you're almost assured of making the team.

"I've never been to Boston. I've been to New York City before," said the 6-3 guard from Chicago. "But now I'm mostly concentrating on making the team. They've got Jo Jo White, Charlie Scott and Kevin Stacom for guards. It seems like they'd need another guard on the roster to back them up.

"They have to use Havlicek (all-pro John) at guard a lot during the playoffs," he noted.

Fort said there would be no additional pressure with trying to earn a spot with the NBA champions than with any other pro team.

"I want to play regardless of what team it is. There's going to be the same amount of pressure in trying to make any NBA team," he said.

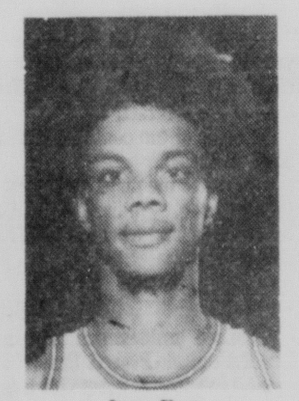
He said he would contact the Celtics before leaving for Los Angeles to participate in the California summer basketball league to make certain the Celtics have no objections.

Boston's second-round pick went to Phoenix as final payment for the Charlie Scott-Paul Westphal trade.

United Press International reported that Boston's assistant coach and head scout John Killilea said of Fort: "He has a good chance to make our ballclub. He likes to run and play defense."

Fort will leave Nebraska with his B.A. degree in history — a point assistant basketball coach Lonnie Porter said is as significant if not more so than being drafted.

"As a coaching staff, we've emphasized to Jerry Fort that pro basketball is very important. But the most important thing is that Jerry graduated. It's fine and good if he gets the chance to play pro ball, but the happiest moment for me is when Jerry or any athlete gets their degree."



Jerry Fort
Third-Round Pick

"A pro career can come to halt anytime, but now Jerry'll have something that no one can take away," Porter said.

Porter termed the Celtic's selection as an honor for Fort, who set every scoring record in Nebraska history over the last four years.

"There's a lot of fine basketball players that go without being drafted. That's a bonus to be drafted, but to be drafted by Boston where tradition speaks for itself, that's just super. I can't say enough about Jerry. I couldn't have happened to a finer person.

"Jerry is an ideal citizen and a fine student. There won't be many to come along like Jerry Fort as far as a total person is concerned," Porter said. "Jerry hasn't changed much since coming here. His personality hasn't changed at all.

"I wish Jerry Fort all the luck in the world as far as the pro career, but more importantly I hope he'll fulfill his dream to be a lawyer," Porter said.

Fort was the first guard taken by Boston and was the Celtics' second pick. The Celtics' first choice was Norm Cook of Kansas who was taken as the 16th player on the first round.

Two other Big Eight players were chosen before Fort. They are Kansas State's Chuckie Williams by Cleveland as the 15th player in the first round and Missouri's Willie Smith as the first player chosen in the second round. Smith was taken by the Chicago Bulls.

Others selected include Iowa State's Hercle Ivy by Houston as the 10th player in the fourth round.

Kansas State's Carl Gerlach was chosen by Atlanta as the second player in the seventh round. Colorado's Dave Logan was taken by Kansas City as the third player in the ninth round and Iowa State's Art Johnson was picked by New Orleans as the seventh player in the tenth round.

A total of eight Big Eight players were chosen with Kansas State and Iowa State each landing two players.

Johnson Withdraws His Name

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Only hours before he might have become a pro, hours which could have cost him his college eligibility, UCLA junior forward Marques Johnson decided Tuesday to shoot for a better deal next year and withdrew his name from the National Basketball Association "hardship" draft.

The 6-foot-7 forward from Los Angeles said in an exclusive interview with The Associated Press that an offer of nearly $1 million over five years by the American Basketball Association's Denver Nuggets was withdrawn Monday and he decided to take his chances in the regular pro draft next year after graduation.

He had cited financial problems in seeking to leave UCLA a year early and be placed on the NBA's "undergraduate eligibility" list, the so-called hardship list.

Besides the Denver deal, Johnson said he'd had a firm offer from the NBA's Detroit Pistons, but it wasn't enough to make him quit school a year early.

Required to withdraw in writing, he was barely able to send a brief signed notice by a telephone copying device just as the draft was getting under way in New York.

Johnson said the reason for the Nuggets' change in plans remains unclear. "They didn't really give any reason, but there was speculation it had something to do with their trying to buy a franchise in the NBA," the soft-spoken Johnson said, adding he was neither happy nor sad about the decision to withdraw his name.

"It's just the decision that had to be made," he said, adding he is just as happy to play another year for UCLA.

"If there was no money involved, I would be staying in school anyway," he said.

Johnson and Rich Washington, both juniors this past season, had filed for eligbility for the NBA draft under the hardship clause. Washington did not withdraw his application and was drafted No. 3 in the first round by the Kansas City Kings.

The five-year Denver deal included an undisclosed sum which Johnson said was "somewhere near $1 million. I'd like to get a comparable offer (next year)," he said, "but there's no guarantee of that."

Johnson said if the deal had gone through he planned to finish college during the off-seasons, graduating in two or three years. Now, he said, the plan is to finish at UCLA next summer.

"We're very very pleased," said UCLA Coach Gene Bartow. "Marques will graduate with his class. We hope it's the right decision."

"If I had a choice, you know, I'd like to stay in Los Angeles," Johnson said. "But it's really kind of an uncontrollable situation. If the (Los Angeles) Lakers really wanted me to play for them they could make some sort of move within a month or two of the draft next year, but that's all speculation.

"I've talked with different people in the organization who have expressed an interest. They would have to either buy or trade in order to obtain a high draft choice. If there's the interest, it could be done."

Astros Pick Bannister 1st

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Bannister, the first pick in the baseball free-agent draft Tuesday, will be on the mound Saturday night for Arizona State. Where he makes his professional debut is not as certain.

Bannister, the left-handed ace for top-ranked Arizona State, was picked by the Houston Astros, who had the coveted No. 1 choice in the annual summer grab-bag of free-agent talent.

In a bumper crop of available pitchers, Bannister was called "something special" by one scout. "Our reports say he can play right now in the major leagues, that he can break in, right off the bat."

The Astros, as a rule, will not feed a first year-professional to the major league wolves. "That's always been our policy," said a Houston spokesman. "But we're going to watch him at the College World Series and see what he does."

An advocate of Bannister going directly to the major leagues is his coach at Arizona State, who takes the Sun Devils into the World Series this weekend in Omaha.

"My advice .. would be to take him right up," said Jim Brock, who has named Bannister to face rival Arizona Saturday night. "Not as the top man, but as No. 6 or 7 on a 10-man staff."

But Monday night, Bannister had said: "I've talked to Houston about starting out in the major leagues and I don't want to. I'd rather start out in the minor leagues and work myself up.

"I've seen too many cases of people starting out in the big leagues and it hurting them. I'd like to start off low and build up my confidence."

Brock says Bannister is an improved pitcher over last season, when, as a sophomore, he was 15-4 with a 1.66 earned run average in 157 innings. He was a first team All-American and led the nation in strikeouts, fanning 217 batters.

"He's much smarter this season," Brock said. "He's got great command of three pitches. His fastball is overpowering but he uses it less now. He only goes to it when he feels he has to. His curveball is very good and his changeup is awesome."

This year, Bannister, who will be 21 on Thursday, pitched in 20 games, winning 18 and losing one. He completed 15 games and had an ERA of 1.35 in 167 innings. Again, he led the nation in strikeouts—with 195— and, again, he was named an All-American.

Arizona State, which sent such stars as Reggie Jackson, Sal Bando and Rick Monday into the pros, offered another slugger to the major leagues, center fielder Ken Landreaux.

The California Angels, selecting sixth, grabbed the power-hitting Landreaux, who batted .413 with 47 home runs and 87 runs batted in for the Sun Devils this season. Playing in all 70 of Arizona State's games, Landreaux never committed an error and led the team in stolen bases with 28.

Pitchers dominated the first-round action.

After Houston went for Bannister, the Detroit Tigers picked Pat Underwood, a lefthanded pitcher from Kokomo, Ind. Underwood's brother, Tom, pitches for the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Milwaukee Brewers picked fourth and took William Bordley, a left-hander from Rolling Hills, Calif. The San Diego Padres then picked Robert Owchinko, a left-hander from Eastern Michigan University.

The Chicago Cubs, selecting seventh, took pitcher Herman Segelke, who throws right-handed and is from South San Francisco. Next, the Chicago White Sox picked Steven Trout, a left-hander from South Holland, Ill., and the son of the late major league hurler Dizzy Trout.

Floyd Bannister
No. 1 Selection

Montreal picked ninth and also went for pitching, taking Robert James, a right-hander from Sunland, Calif.

Leon Durham, a left-hander baseman from Cincinnati was selected 15th, taken by the St. Louis Cardinals. The Kansas City Royals made right-hander Ben Grzybek, Hialeah, Fla., the 18th selection of the first round.

NBA's Tallest Men Short On Comforts

©The New York Times

By JACKIE LAPIN

New York — The long playing season ended officially Sunday, for the tall and the short in the National Basketball Association. But for the tall men, those hovering around 7 feet, there is a season that never ends: when they look back unexpectedly and find a short man measuring himself up against them. It happens to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Tom Boerwinkle, George Johnson and Luke Witte among others.

Ever wonder what it is like to be too big for the bathroom on an airplane? A telephone booth? Or even the tables in a restaurant? The NBA's 7-footers have those problems every day. As Gullivers in a world of Lilluputions, they simply have conceded the world is not big enough for them. They have grown so used to ducking and feeling cramped that they hardly notice it. But they envy the average-sized person who takes the simple comforts for granted.

No matter what he does, Portland's LaRue Martin (6 feet 11 inches) still hangs out of beds. Seldom are hotel beds long enough. The big men will fight for the front seat in the first-class section of an airplane just to get enough leg room. They have trouble fitting in buses and must take up two seats. Theater seats, bathtubs and showers are all awkward.

Milwaukee Elmore Smith (7-0) says he can take one look at a car and know if he can fit into it. By adjusting the driver's seat in his Volvo so far back that it is amost in the back seat — "I look through my rear side windows."

Clothing is perhaps the tall athlete's greatest handicap.

I feel I'm being discriminated against," says Cleveland's Witte (7-0). "I can't find clothes to fit me. Usually I have to have them specially altered. If I didn't have a nice salary, I would have one pair of pants, one shirt and one pair of penny loafers from 1964."

"People always talk about the money we make, but hell, a person over 6-8 has to make a decent buck just to buy his clothes," says Martin. "I have a 42-inch inseam. I can't even buy my pants in a tall man's shop. I have to have them made. I may luck upon some Levis, but that is it. My pants run $45-50 and a decent suit runs me $115-$250. I can't even touch a pair of socks. I put on a little weight each year and I have to give all my old clothes away. Because I'm tall, people notice me on the street. I have to be respectable. I can't dress like a bum except around the house."

Jim Chones of Cleveland (6-11) was rejected by a girl in high school because she thought he was too tall for her.

But, like all the others, Chones would not trade his height for anything, despite all its discomforts.

But being seen is not always a blessing. "In Cleveland, I can't do anything without immediate recognition," notes Witte. "It's really hard to have a personal life. You don't know how nice it is to have a few drinks, listen to the band and talk to your girl friend without someone coming over to you. I long for evenings like that."

Because they are so tall and spend so much time in airports, people simply assume big men are basketball players. That disturbs Johnson, who says:

"It's as if a tall person can't do anything else. With the height, they don't think I could be a doctor or a lawyer."

There is the constant question: "How tall are you?" Once Boerwinkle felt a tug on his jacket and looked down to see a little girl standing there. In the lowest voice she asked, "Baby, how many feets is you?"

ABA Prepared To Rest In Peace

Louisville, Ky. (AP) — If logic prevails in the illogical world of professional sports, the American Basketball Association and two of its franchises will be officially dead by the middle of next week, the president of the ABA said Tuesday.

The National Basketball Association meets next Monday and Tuesday and probably will accept a proposal to allow four ABA teams to enter the senior league, said ABA president John Y. Brown Jr.

"They ought to be locked up if they don't accept," said Brown, whose wife, Ellie, is majority stockholder of the Kentucky Colonels, one of the two apparently-doomed ABA francises. The other is the Spirits of St. Louis, which has been moved to Utah but has yet to be renamed.

The decision to take in the four ABA teams — the New York Nets, Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers and San Antonio Spurs —will have to be accepted by 14 of the 18 NBA team owners.

Brown attended a secret meeting in Chicago Monday at which four of the six remaining ABA teams decided to try to enter the NBA.

The terms, according to Brown, are that each of the four will pay $4.5 million to the NBA, in addition to buying out the Colonels and Spirits.

"They're paying the Colonels and Spirits $3 million each, which is more than they are worth, and then they have league obligations of $2 million each," Brown said. "It will cost them about $7 million each to get in the NBA.

"They may come back with their tails between their legs if the NBA turns them down," Brown said. "But from a practical standpoint, I can't see how they (the NBA) can turn down the offer. But then again, everything in pro sports is an emotional decision."

DICK AND LIZ . . . their love runs deep but terribly turbulent. .

Elizabeth And Richard

No Hollywood Movie Ever

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of six articles excerpted from a book by the authors of the best-selling "Jackie and Ari.")

By LESTER DAVID
and JHAN ROBBINS

The marriage, like the superstars themselves, was outside a larger-than-life story so crammed with love, rage of jealous mates, farce and near-tragedy that no movie audience would ever swallow it.

Yet it all happened!

It was the kind of relationship in which Richard Burton got socked in the jaw in public by both his wives.

Once Elizabeth became incensed because her husband had flirted, or so she thought, with a pretty girl in a Los Angeles club. She left in a fury, fumed all night long and next day, still angry, went looking for him. She found him drinking with pals at the Polo Lounge of the posh Beverly Hills Hotel. In full view of the movie celebrities who gather there daily, she drew back her clenched fist and delivered a roundhouse squarely on Burton's jaw. Then, her anger released, she kissed him tenderly.

Sybil Burton, then married to Richard, attended a Hollywood New Year's party with her husband. At the stroke of midnight, she saw him take Elizabeth in his arms and kiss her. Sybil marched up to Burton and delivered a thirteenth stroke, her own, a sharp slap across his face which left a reddened imprint of every finger. Then she wheeled, left the room and went home.

Together, Elizabeth and Richard amassed an estimated thirty million dollars and traveled more than one million miles. They have vacationed in Mexico, gone on safari into Africa, journeyed deep into Russia, spent much time on both American coasts and sailed their yacht almost everywhere.

Yet Elizabeth once said she would give up all her wealth to bear Richard's child — the one thing in the world denied to her. All three of her natural children were born by Caesarian section. In view of her many illnesses — she has had 30 operations and once was 15 minutes from death from pneumonia — doctors have warned her against another pregnancy.

She amazes, amuses and constantly confounds Burton. He admits she is totally unlike him.

"We have different personalities," he said after their separation earlier this year. "When we're together, things seem to happen. To put it mildly — we clash. When I say up, she says down. My white is her black, my night her day. How that woman bossed me about!"

Like many husbands, he tended to forget birthdays and anniversaries, but only at the very beginning. Elizabeth let him know forthrightly that these occasions were to be remembered.

Once taxi driver Basil Ward, driving Burton alone one night, confessed he had forgotten his own wedding anniversary. Burton told him: "You should know that you can never understand a woman — they're really mysterious, but we can't do without 'em. If I ever forgot my anniversary, Elizabeth would throw the piano at me."

If not the piano, then something she could lift. Because Elizabeth is enchantingly, disarmingly frank. Unlike other celebrity women who talk piously, and mostly untruthfully, to the press about their harmonious home lives, she frankly admits that battling is good for a marriage and that she has done her share with Richard.

"I think fighting is very healthy," she says. "It clears the air. I think there's nothing worse than one partner sulking, especially if the other person wants to get the problem out in the open and cleared away. I have quite a temper myself, so I've been told."

London friends report that amidst the cooing and doving there was plenty of needling and nagging.

Item: Talking about their 130-foot yacht Kalizma, Burton said: "She is beginning to show her age and her bottom needs scraping." He couldn't resist adding: "The boat, not Elizabeth."

Item: When he would upset her, she would tell him of her displeasure at once, no matter who was listening. "Elizabeth," Burton once remarked, "tries to be a shrew, wants to be an autocrat and unsuccessfully attempts tyranny in little things."

Item: On location in California's Big Sur region for the film "The Sandpiper," a dreadful movie which nevertheless grossed $14 million because of its stars, Burton missed several lines. Elizabeth giggled.

"I'm so henpecked," Burton sighed, "I don't know why I bother to act."

"You don't, dear," Elizabeth swiftly replied.

Five-Year Contract

KC Kings Ink UCLA's Washington

UCLA's Richard Washington, who decided to trade his senior year in college for pro basketball, was the Kansas City Kings' first-round choice in the NBA draft Tuesday and he immediately signed a five-year contract.

Terms of the contract signed by the 6-10½ Washington were not announced.

"He was the player who best fit our needs," said Kings' coach Phil Johnson. "We liked him all along. He is a forward and center combination and what we were looking for was a frontline forward and backup center.

Other Basketball

Kurtz Hospitalized

State Game Commission purchasing agent John C. Kurtz is undergong treatment in the intensive care unit of Lincoln's Veterans Hospital for an apparent heart attack he suffered about a week ago.

Kurtz, 58, a 19-year Game Commission veteran and former superintendent of Ft. Robinson State Park, was hospitalized upon return to Lincoln after spending a Memorial Day weekend at a game and fishing lodge he owns at Long Pine.

Kurtz, of 3912 St. Marys Ave., has long been one of Nebraska's strongest advocates of conserving the natural resources of the state.

Had As Much Love, Rage, Pathos As Their Marriage

studied English and Italian literature, prides himself on not having to resort to swear words. Elizabeth, however, can curse like a longshoreman. For years, he has been trying to cure her of using four-letter words. One day, Elizabeth proudly told an acquaintance as Richard looked on: "You know, he has finally succeeded in making me stop using four-letter words."

Said Elizabeth: "You bet your ass."

Burton sighed. "Well anyway, that was a three-letter word."

Each has a high degree of tolerance for the other's imperfections. "Despite what you may believe," said Emlyn Williams, "their brink is much higher than that of most people."

In a brief remark that summed up the key to their relationship, Burton defined love: "Love," he said, "is a high degree of tolerance carried almost to excess. If you love somebody really, truly, and he or she turns out to be a murderer, you love that person despite everything. You love the faults as well as the things of which you are proud. And if one is intolerant, the other must be tolerant of that intolerance."

'Accept, Love Faults'

Elizabeth agreed. "There's no such thing as an ideal man or woman," she said. "We're all just too human to be ideal. It's the faults one has to accept and love . . ."

They loved deeply. Sometimes she would become tense and anxious, wondering if she would some day have to pay for the happiness she had with him, wondering what would happen to her if she lost him.

Once she actually heard herself telling him: "If you get killed or die before me, I'll never speak to you again."

For his part, Richard was enormously proud of her. Happily, he brought her to his home of Pontrhydyfen and introduced her to the gnarled Welshmen at the Miner's Arms, a small stone pub near the house in which Richard was born.

A dart board, a staple in all pubs of the British Isles, hung on one wall, across the room from the bar. Young Burton had been an expert at the game. After introducing Elizabeth to the townsfolk, he told her proudly of his skill.

"How do you do it?" she asked, picking up a dart. "Like this?" She tossed it 15 feet, striking the bull's eye dead center. The entire pub rocked with applause, Burton leading.

"Say," he howled above the tumult, "didn't I pick myself a talented wife?" Then, as everyone watched, he kissed her full on the lips. Elizabeth blushed and Richard ordered drinks for the house.

A woman patron who was there recalled: "That's Richie for you. A good lad. I remember him when he spoke only Welsh, not a word of English. Aye, and he's still a good lad and married such a fine, fine lady."

Burtons Are Rich

Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton are rich — very rich.

"They say we generate more business activity than one of the smaller African nations," Richard explained.

And Elizabeth added, "Perhaps, not so small?"

When they are living together the couple's combined wealth exceeds $30 million. Her fortune is estimated at upwards of $20 million, his at $10 million plus. The Taylor-Burton joint yearly income is about $3 million. Expenditures, however, often surpass that staggering sum, and despite the couple's great riches they often find themselves short of cash.

"Seventy-five percent of our income goes before we see it," Richard said. "We need so many people to help us and they need to be paid. For example, we need four guards to watch the villa or someone will try to crawl over the wall to photograph us in the lavatory."

Annually, the Burtons contribute more than $1 million to charities — and not all tax exempt. A great many contributions have been made in Great Britain where tax write-offs are difficult to come by, but this hasn't discouraged the couples' philanthropy. While accountants rant and pound the table, Elizabeth says sweetly, "Donations give me such a warm glow in my private parts, so why stop to worry about deductions?"

A great part of Elizabeth's wealth resides in her red leather jewel boxes. Among her favorite gems are:

- The Cartier-Burton diamond is the piece de resistance of the collection. It weighs 69.42 carats and is considered to be the world's most expensive single bit of jewelry ever placed in auction. Elizabeth desperately wanted it and bid $1 million. But she was outbid by the Cartier's jewelry firm. Soon after the sale, however, Richard went to the new owner and purchased the perfect precious stone as a present for his wife. (Onassis had considered buying it as a wedding gift for Jackie.)
- The 32-carat Krupp diamond that has been appraised at $300,000. It comes from the estate of Vera Krupp, the ex-wife of the German munitions magnate. Elizabeth, who is extremely fond of the diamond, said: "It's so nice that a little Jewish girl owns it now."
- On Elizabetn's 40th birthday Richard gave her a heart-shaped pendant that once belonged to Shah Jehan who built the Taj Mahal. It is valued at $100,000 and is inscribed: "Eternal love 'till death."
- The Ping-Pong diamond weighs less than a quarter of a carat and is worth about $35, but Elizabeth treasures it. Richard bought it with earnings he won from a ping-pong game.

Both Elizabeth and Richard delighted in thrusting presents upon each other. Elizabeth explained: "We get such great pleasure out of spending money. So why not enjoy it?"

In addition to the fabulous gems, the presents have included:

- A white hand-built Panther automobile that cost $25,000. Burton gave it to his wife last Christmas.
- Her present to him was a helicopter that cost more than $50,000.
- Richard gave his wife a twin-jet airplane. Cost: $1 million. Contents: Ultra-modern kitchen, lounge, bar, built-in movie projector. Name: Naturally, it was called, "Elizabeth."
- Three Rolls-Royces: white, grey and green.

Elizabeth, the daughter of a very knowledgeable art dealer, knows a great deal about paintings and owns many rare canvasses. The multi-million dollar collection contains original paintings by Van Gogh, Monet, Renoir, Modigliani, Roualt, Utrillo, Degas, Pissarro.

Richard has said that his paintings are on the pound notes he has given his family. All his immediate relations have received equal sums from Burton and he has helped them to purchase their own homes. He has given each of them an automobile and issued pensions to all of retiring age. The contributions have run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The Burtons have provided extravagantly for their children. Sizable trust funds have been set up for Elizabeth's four children: Michael Jr., Christopher, Liza, Maria; and for Richard's two daughters: Kate and Jessica. Liza already has more than a million dollars.

Michael Wilding Jr., has presented some financial problems. Elizabeth and Richard gave him a lavish London townhouse, but he prefers a commune in Wales, not far from Burton's birthplace.

The commune, called Pfyon Wen, Welsh for White Spring, is a large, beige-colored farmhouse near the village of Ystumtuen, set in a valley where sheep graze and small creeks run. Not far away is an unused lead mine, now in ruins. Twenty-two-year-old Michael Wilding Jr., lives here with 23-year-old Johanna Lykke Dahn, and their daughter, Naomi, and a small number of other young people.

"I try not to interfere in his lifestyle," Richard said. "But sometimes I get goddamned mad when I think what it took to climb out . . . I made it up and the boy's trying to make it down."

Liz Blocks Divorce Plans

Port au Prince, Haiti (UPI) — An associate of Richard Burton said Tuesday the actor failed to get a scheduled "quickie" divorce in Haiti and plans to return to Hollywood Wednesday still married to Elizabeth Taylor.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said Miss Taylor's refusal to give consent frustrated Burton's plan to divorce her and marry Susan Hunt, former wife of British racing car driver James Hunt.

He said Miss Taylor had not submitted a notarized statement of her agreement to the divorce, which is required under Haitian law, although only one of the pair has to be present at the proceedings.

The Hotel El Rancho confirmed Tuesday that both a Richard Burton and a Mrs. Susan Hunt were guests there, "sharing the same room," and that both had left orders not to be disturbed.

His Old Ball Boy Surprises Ashe

PARIS (AP) — Arthur Ashe said he gorged his old Budapest ball boy on junk food for as long as he could get away with it. When Balacs Taroczy's Hungarian revolt came Tuesday, it was too late for the world's No. 1 player to change tactics and Ashe was ousted from the French Open Tennis Tournament.

Taroczy, a 22-year-old political science student whom Ashe remembered when he served as ball boy for him in 1963, turned the loss of the first two "junk food" sets into a quarter-final berth in the $210,000 tournament, serving murderously and hitting enough sharp back hands to beat Ashe 5-7, 2-6, 6-4, 6-0, 6-4.

Two other Americans, Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., and Eddie Dibbs of Miami, joined Taroczy, Raul Ramirez of Mexico and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in making the quarters. Solomon beat Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 1-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2, Dibbs won over Wojtek Fibak of Poland 76, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, Ramirez eliminated Bernard Mignot of Belgium 6-2, 6-1, 6-1 and Vilas beat Corrado Barzutti of Italy 6-2, 62, 6-3.

Ashe won the first two sets playing a coy, chopping, lobbing game on the red clay at Roland Garros Stadium, heated in the hard sun to above 90 degrees.

Taroczy charged the soft stuff at first, hitting it too hard or volleying into the net. Ashe's idea was to circumvent the edge he usually loses in his serve-and-volley game on the slower clay surface.

"The junk was working," Ashe said afterwards. "Then he got used to it. I found myself in a quandary about what to do. My approach shots were fouled up and I was hitting three yards long all the time. He just got used to the junk diet and by the time I started mixing it up, trying to hit harder, go for the net, it was too late. I thought he was a counter-puncher, but he turned out to be a hitter, too."

It was Taroczy's second big upset of the tournament. On Sunday he had knocked out Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia in straight sets, and he said he came up against Ashe "without any complexes.

"But I didn't think I could really win after the first two sets. I felt very tired and I just said to myself, 'Let's see what happens.' I don't really think Ashe tried very hard in the third set, but it was a time when I don't remember too much.

"I felt much better in the last two. I was attacking harder. All those lobs that I missed at first seemed so easy then. Before I couldn't get them, then they were easy to hit."

The turnaround came in the third set that drifted from the Hungarian's memory. Ashe won the first game, then Taroczy ripped off five in a row, slugging backhands and getting two of his seven service aces. Ashe reacted, though, breaking through in the eighth game and making the score 4-5 with a deep backhand winner. But Taroczy had the momentum. He took the last game to 40-0 and then closed the set with an ace.

The Hungarian dissected Ashe in the fourth set, leaving him only crumbs enough for eight points. The last set began with Ashe in the same situation that Bjorn Borg had found himself the day before—winning the first two sets, then losing two and having to fight back against a gathering force. Francois Jauffret, the 34-yearold Frenchman, cracked before Borg, 20. And it was Ashe, 32, who bent before a player 10 years younger.

The last American woman in the competition, Kathy Kuykrndall of Miami, was eliminated by Florenta Mihai of Romania in the quarter-finals, losing 6-2, 0-6, 6-1, her play becoming steadily less mobile in the heat. Miss Mihai moved into the semi-finals against Renate Tomanova of Czechoslovakia.

If Orr Plays, It's In Chicago

Montreal (UPI) — Bobby Orr, the most decorated player in National Hockey League history, will decide Wednesday whether to sign with the Chicago Black Hawks or retire permanently from hockey, his agent Alan Eagleson said Tuesday.

The Toronto attorney said the 28-year-old defenseman would enter a hospital in Toronto Wednesday for an examination of his damaged left knee and the diagnosis will be the basis for his decision.

Orr, who has won more individual awards than any other player in NHL history, underwent a fourth and fifth operation on his left knee in 1975 and sat out all but 10 games last season.

"He may need a sixth operation and he may never play hockey again," Eagleson told newsmen at the annual NHL meetings here.

Orr had been expected to decide Tuesday whether to join the Hawks, the St. Louis Blues or take a one-year retirement. Eagleson said the decision to be made now is whether to join the Hawks or retire forever.

"He will not join any other team but the Chicago Black Hawks. However, Bobby will enter hospital in Toronto Wednesday for another examination of his knee. He may need a sixth operation and he may never play hockey again," Eagleson said.

"Both the Bruins and the Hawks know this and this is an important part of their discussions," Eagleson said, noting the two clubs were discussing the possibility of Chicago giving Boston compensation if it signs Orr from the Bruins' organization.

"I don't want to keep the suspense going for much longer. I don't want to keep postponing it, but I have no choice," Eagleson said.

"I hope to be able to have a final answer for you by noon on Wednesday. If negotiations are not consummated and if Bobby does have to be admitted to hospital in Toronto Wednesday he will probably announce his retirement from hockey.

"At this point, I am not permitted to announce anything else on the subject because anything I might add may jeopardize the negotiations between the Bruins and the Black Hawks."

Eagleson said at this stage there was only one thing definite—"Bobby will not go back and play for the Boston Bruins."

Namath Loses

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The State Court of Appeals today rebuffed a $2.5 million damage suit by football star Joe Namath regarding the unauthorized use of his picture in an advertisement.

The ruling appears to clarify a freedom of the press issue regarding the use of news articles and photos for commercial promotions.

The state's highest court, in a unanimous decision, upheld an Appellate Division ruling throwing out Namath's suit against Sports Illustrated.

Pair Appeals Coaches Limit

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Two University of Alabama assistant coaches filed a suit in federal court Tuesday, seeking to overturn an NCAA rule limiting the size of coaching staffs.

Assistant football coach Dude Hennessey and assistant basketball coach Wendell Hudson filed the class-action suit, saying about 420 assistant coaches across the nation would be affected by the rule change.

Ten months ago, the NCAA voted to limit coaching staffs to eight assistants for football and two for basketball, effective Aug. 1.

The suit hopes to prove the NCAA violated constitutional rights to equal protection under the law and due process of law. Also, the suit said the new rule violates federal and state antitrust laws.

The two assistant coaches said they have been told by the university that they would be cut from coaching staffs if the rule chang goes into effect.

The suit contends Hudson and Hennessey "are being deprived of their employment as assistant coaches of the university and their rights to earn a living and pursue employment in their chosen profession have been impaired, hindered and restrained."

Also, the suit said, if the plaintiffs are removed from their current positions they will lose salary and "valuable retirement rights, annuity rights, bonus rights, insurance coverage and other fringe benefits."

The suit is to be heard by U.S. District Court Judge Sam Pointer. Last summer Pointer presided in Alabama football Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's suit against the NCAA which attempted to overturn the collegiate sports organization's limits on football and basketball squad sizes.

Pointer struck down the NCAA ruling, but that decision was later overturned by a higher court.

Campbell Reelected By NHL

MONTREAL (AP) — The cloudy status of the Kansas City Scouts cleared Tuesday at the National Hockey League's Board of Governors meeting: the trouble-wracked, 2-year-old franchise will come up with new ownership by July 1 or "We'll have to wind it down," said NHL President Clarence Campbell.

July 1 is the absolute cut-off date for the finalization of a schedule for the 1976-77 season, and Campbell said that lack of new funding by that date would cost the franchise its life.

Hours earlier, Campbell had been elected to yet another term at the held of the league he took over in 1946. A fiveman search committee empaneled to find a successor for the white-haired, 72-year-old Campbell has been unable to produce a candidate, so the board reelected Campbell, who despite his expressed intention of retirement will stay on until a prospect can be agreed upon.

There was no definitive action taken with regard to the California Seals, who have sought to move to another city since plans of owner Mel Swig were voted down to build a new home in downtown San Francisco.

But Campbell insisted at a news conference, "The Seals will operate someplace in 197677. Where, or under whose auspices, I can't say because I don't know."

He was far less optimistic over the status of the Scouts, who are $5 million in debt and have been thwarted continually in efforts to find new backing.

Campbell said Swig was pursuing two alternatives for a potential move of the Seals. Swig said the two were Denver and San Jose, Calif. San Jose, however, can only be considered as in the planning stages since they have not as yet erected an arena. The club could remain in Oakland until construction of that arena is completed.

Campbell also announced that the governors would not permit the names of Montreal players John Van Boxmeer and Don Awrey to be engraved on the Stanley Cup because neither had played in any of the 13 games which took the Canadiens to the Cup. Though Awrey played in 72 regular season games and Van Boxmeer in 46, their names will not be included, but utility player Rick Chartraw, who played in just 22 regular season games but made it into the last two games of the playoffs, will be emblazoned on the silverware.

The governors approved the measure suggested by the rules committee that a player who incurs three game misconduct penalties be suspended for the next game; devised a formula for playoff scheduling next season which would require fewer dark days at home arenas, and also set up a scale of payment to junior teams for players drafted by NHL clubs, with maximum payment for a player drafted set at $20,000.

O'Neill Win To Merwald

O'Neill — Lynn Merwald of Omaha won the 36-hole medley play women's golf tournament here Tuesday at the O'Neill Country Club.

She fired a 148 to defeat Nan Circo of Omaha and Deb Benish of Norfolk, who each tallied a 155 total. Circo took second by winning the playoff.

Dorothy Schwartzkopf of Lincoln was fourth with a 161.

Flight winners included Paula Knipper of Holdrege (1); Sharon Scott of O'Neill (2); Jeanie Keegler of Callaway (3); Virginia Schafferman of Fremont (4) and Ethel Weatherholt of Stanton (5).

Newcombe, Stockton Lose

Beckenham, England (UPI) — Seeded stars John Newcombe and Dick Stockton bowed out Tuesday while favorite Jimmy Connors powered on remorselessly in the Beckenham Robertsons grass court tennis tournament.

Newcombe, the fourth-seeded Australian, arrived from competing in the French championships and was promptly hustled out of the first round by New Zealander Russell Simpson, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Stockton, the sixth favorite, met his match in fellow American Charlie Pasarell, who won their second round duel, 6-4, 6-2.

Connors, favored to regain his Wimbledon crown, did not have things all his own way against 21-year-old Peter Fleming of Chatham, N.J. Fleming, a tall, big server playing his first tournament as a pro, gave the left-hander from Belleville, Ill., plenty to competition for more than an hour before Connors made it into the third round, 8-6, 6-3.

Seventh-seeded Tom Gorman outgunned Erik van Dillen, 6-2, 6-3, in another all-American second round encounter.

Newcombe, three times Wimbledon champion, wrote off his chances of winning back the title and talked about the possibility of retiring after his upset defeat.

"My arm injury is not really any better. I reckon that two weeks ago I was a 12-1 bet for Wimbledon—now I must be about 30-1," he said.

Newcombe's injury problems began almost two years ago and this latest trouble, which flared up in the French championships last week, could bring about an early retirement for the 32-year-old Australian.

"I have been playing on injuries now for 20 months and it is starting to wear a little thin," Newcombe said.

Cubs Acquire Coleman

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs obtained veteran Detroit right-handed pitcher Joe Coleman from the Detroit Tigers Tuesday for an undisclosed amount of cash and a player to be named after the season.

Coleman, 29, had his best season in 1971 when he posted a 20-9 record for the Tigers, striking out 236 batters in 286 innings. In 1972 he had a 19-14 record and the following year he was 23-15.

Coleman, 1-5 after 12 starts this season, was the first selection of the 1965 June free-agent draft.

Outdoor Report

Fishing continues good across most of Nebraska, although things have slowed somewhat at a few of the major reservoirs, according to Game and Parks Commission conservation officers.

Fishing seems to be getting better at ponds, pits, and reservoirs, making up for any slowdown on the big lakes. According to reports from the field, outdoor activity includes:

Panhandle

North Platte River (Lisco to Scottsbluff) — catfish to 6 pounds on setlines baited with minnows;

Bridgeport State Recreation Area — bluegill on flies and worms; a few pike and walleye taking artificials;

Smith Lake (Rushville) — northern pike to 2 pounds and largemouth bass to 3½ pounds, both on artificials; good success on bluegill to 1 pound hitting worms, flies, and artificials; some bullheads at night on worms;

Soldiers Creek (Fort Robinson Wood Reserve) — brown and rainbow trout to 20 inches taking worms and spinners;

SAMPSON . . . as Chief Crazy Horse. AP

Sampson Started Film Career Late

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "My father is 73 going on 30 An Indian who is full of life He always told me, 'Whatever you do, be the best ' "

Will Sampson seems to have followed his daddy s counsel, three times During his youth he was a star on the rodeo circuit When he reached the point where "it was too hard to get off the ground he turned to art His paintings hang in the Smithsonian Institute and major galleries and museums of the Southwest

With the Oscar-winning movie, "One Flew over the Cuckoo's Nest," he turned actor His role as the speechless Chief Bromden proved one of the strong features of the film

In quick succession Will Sampson has appeared in films with four superstars Jack Nicholson in "Cuckoo's Nest ' Paul Newman in "Buffalo Bill and the Indians,' Clint Eastwood in "The Outlaw Josey Wales, and now Charles Bronson in "The White Buffalo '

Sampson attracted the interest of the entire commissary when he arrived from the "White Buffalo" set for lunch He is a commanding figure, a strong, athletic six feet five, with broad, handsome face Perfect casting for the quintessential Indian chief

He is 43, a latecomer to acting It happened by accident said Sampson, who never had ambitions to act

' The producers of 'Cuckoo' asked a friend of mine a rodeo announcer named Mel Lambert, to be on the lookout for a big Indian We had worked together many times on the rodeo circuit, and he thought of me But he didn t know how to find me

"He found me in Washington I was directing an art show in Yakima and Mel was announcing a rodeo nearby I asked him to announce my show That s when he told me about the movie '

Producer Michael Douglas' brother Joe flew to Washington to confer with Sampson and recognized his obvious qualifications Sampson read the Ken Kesey book and agreed to sign on — "I always like new projects '

Sampson is a full-blooded Creek, proud of his heritage but far from a zealot He declined to echo the Brandovian line about how miserably Indians have been portrayed on the screen

' That s something that is past," he commented "It can be corrected in the future Indians laugh at how they are shown in movies They know it isn't true so they don t take it seriously '

Nor is he militant about the fact that until recent times major Indian roles were usually played by non-Indians Producers long clung to the belief that Indians were too stoical to display emotion on the screen

That is wrong said Sampson There are good Indian actors Indians can laugh and cry, just like anyone else They laugh very easily in fact They have needed a sense of humor to endure what they have

Sampson admits to being a wanderer, having left home in Okmulgee, Okla , when he was in the seventh grade He always returned, and he has six children at home in Tulsa But he indicated he is rarely there, and he has another residence in Yucca Valley, in the high desert north of Palm Springs, Calif

"I go about it the same way I do my painting," he explained ' I research thoroughly For instance, I've done painting of all the great Indian chiefs, and I studied everything about them."

Now he finds himself portraying one of his portrait subjects — he's Chief Crazy Horse to Charles Bronson's Wild Bill Hickok. "There are no known photographs of Crazy Horse but I found out what he looked like from descriptions at the time.

"He was six feet tall and had light hair, light skin and blue eyes, making some people wonder if he didn t have some Viking in him "

Computers Which Hear Wanted For Controllers

Pomona, N J (AP) — Donald Connolly talks to his computer but that s his job

Connolly, an engineering psychologist, is working on a way — through voice command — to let air traffic controllers keep their eyes on your airliner instead of their computer keyboards

Today, information about an airplane's identity, speed, altitude and course must be fed into a computer by controllers using conventional keyboards When a pilot makes a change, the controller must take his eyes off the radar screen to enter the new data

The important thing is to absolutely minimize the distraction of the controller," Connolly said ' A guy can punch a keyboard pretty fast, but we don't want to distract him "

If controllers could talk to their computers he says they could keep their eyes on the airplanes

Spoken word recognizers are nothing new Some businesses have been using them for years to route packages on conveyor belts or for quality control on auto assembly lines But those systems use only a few words.

Working at the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center near Atlantic City, Connolly has already taught his computer to understand 102 words controllers frequently use These words are divided into "parts of speech," or commands that are normal in any message between pilots and controllers

The computer must be taught through repetition to recognize the voice of each speaker Changes in a controller's voice because of a cold allergy, tension or fatigue must also be programmed

And talking to a computer is not like talking to a friend

You can t run words together Connolly explained

Lucas Signs 5-Year Pact With Houston

NEW YORK (AP) — John Lucas, the multi-talented athlete from the University of Maryland, signed a five-year, no-cut contract with the Houston Rockets Tuesday, moments after being the No. 1 pick in the National Basketball Association draft.

But the prized All-American guard, described by pro scouts as the top backcourt player in the nation, also indicated he would sign a contract with a franchise in World Team Tennis next week.

Lucas, in Houston, said via telephone during the NBA draft that he was negotiating with a WTT member, which he declined to identify, and would make an attempt to play both sports professionally.

While the Rockets were signing the highly-sought 6-foot-4 Lucas, who averaged 18.3 points a game for Maryland in four varsity seasons, the 17 other NBA teams were burning through the 10-round draft, which was completed in just over two hours.

Among the other first-round picks were All-Americans forward Scott May of Indiana and Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame. May, the College Player of the Year and a member of the U.S. Olympic squad, was the No. 2 pick, going to the Chicago Bulls, the team with the worst record in the league last season. The 6-7 May, who averaged 24 points per game for Indiana's national champions last season, was one of three Hoosiers chosen on the first round.

The others were guards Quinn Buckner, another Olympian, by the Milwaukee Bucks, and Bobby Wilkerson, by the Seattle SuperSonics.

Dantley, another member of the U.S. Olympic team who decided to forego his final season of collegiate eligibility and turn pro, went to the Buffalo Braves. He averaged 29 points a game for the Fighting Irish as a junior last season and has been called "another Elgin Baylor," one of the NBA's all-time great players.

Also chosen on the first round were forward Richard Washington of UCLA, also a member of the college eligibility list, by the Kansas City Kings; center-forward Leon Douglas of Alabama, by the Detroit Pistons; forward Wally Walker of Virginia, by the Portland Trail Blazers, and 7-0 Robert Parish of Centenary, by the Golden State Warriors.

Parish had been expected to be the No. 1 choice, by Atlanta, but the Hawks traded that pick, along with center Dwight Jones to Houston on Monday for center Joe Meriweather, guard Gus Bailey and the Rockets' first-round selection.

After Golden State made Parish the No. 8 pick, Atlanta took guard Armond Hill of Princeton. Then guard Ron Lee went to Phoenix, Seattle grabbed Wilkerson, Philadelphia selected guard Terry Furlow of Michigan State, Washington had two straight choices and picked Olympic center Mitch Kupchak of North Carolina and guard Larry Wright of Grambling, Cleveland selected guard Chuckie Williams of Kansas State, Boston's champion Celtics took forward Norm Cook of Kansas and Golden State chose forward Sonny Parker of Texas A&M.

The Lakers' first choice was forward Earl Tatum of Marquette.

Meanwhile, the nation's leading scorer last season, guard Marshall Rogers of Pan American University, wasn't chosen until the last pick in the final round, by Golden State, and All-American forward Phil Sellers of Rutgers lasted until the third round, when he was taken by Detroit.

Other noteworthy choices included forward Robert Gray of Wichita State and the brother of Seattle's Leonard Gray, by the SuperSonics; Marcus Leite of Pepperdine and Brazil's national team, by Portland on the final round, and guard Ken Smith of San Diego State, the last player among the 176 selected, by Golden State.

Thousands of fans crowd City Hall Plaza in Boston Tuesday in a rally to honor the Celtics for winning the 1976 National Basketball Association championship.

Boston Honors Its Champs

BOSTON (UPI) — The world champion Boston Celtics Tuesday did what city leaders have not been able to do for the past two years: bring an air of harmony to this troubled city, if only briefly.

An estimated 30,000 people forgot racial tensions which have divided the city for months to line a two-mile ticker tape parade route between Boston Garden and City Hall Plaza honoring the Celtics' 13th National Basketball Association crown in 20 seasons.

At City Hall another 30-50,000 fans were waiting in the sunny, red-bricked plaza—remembered by many as the site where black attorney Theodore Landsmark was beaten by white students during a protest over court-ordered school busing only months ago.

"You have won for a thousand different reasons. In other arenas we haven't done so well," Mayor Kevin H. White told the players as they stepped onto City Hall balcony to gaze over the sea of faces which erupted into deafening cheers.

"We're number one, We're number one," the crowd chanted as White tried to quiet them to introduce the team members who flew in Monday night from Phoenix where they clinched the title over the Suns on Sunday.

"Today Boston honors the greatest collection of athletes in the world," White yelled through the microphone.

White first presented an award to cigar chomping Celtics' General Manager Red Auerbach, who he called "the creator of the greatest dynasty in sports history."

"Everytime I've been up here I've had a great thrill," said Auerbach, who has played an active role in all 13 crowns as either coach or general manager. "Today it's the greatest thrill."

Jo Jo White, dapper in his beige slacks, a matching v-neck sweater with no shirt and a straw plantation hat, looked to Celtics' center Dave Cowens and said, "Dave, it makes you want to fly."

Coach Tom Heinsohn, criticized by some for his court side tantrums, bellowed to the crowd in his chronically hoarse voice, "We've got a great, great basketball team here, and we're going to do it again next year."

There was prolonged applause for Don Nelson, who has announced his retirement earlier this year. "It's been 11 of the best years of my life," the former University of Iowa star said quietly.

The cheering swelled for Jo Jo White, who sparkplugged the Celtics to the title, winning the Most Valuable Player award along the way. "I'd just like to say one thing," he grinned: "HOW SWEET IT IS!"

But the most enthusiastic eruption was saved for Captain John Havlicek, at 36 the old man of the team who spent more time with his injured foot in an ice bucket as he did on the playing floor during the playoffs.

"This year we're number one, we had injuries, new personnel. But we had togetherness," Havlicek said.

Johnson Withdraws His Name

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Only hours before he might have become a pro, hours which could have cost him his college eligibility, UCLA junior forward Marques Johnson decided Tuesday to shoot for a better deal next year and withdrew his name from the National Basketball Association "hardship" draft.

The 6-foot-7 forward from Los Angeles said in an exclusive interview with The Associated Press that an offer of nearly $1 million over five years by the American Basketball Association's Denver Nuggets was withdrawn Monday and he decided to take his chances in the regular pro draft next year after graduation.

He had cited financial problems in seeking to leave UCLA a year early and be placed on the NBA's "undergraduate eligibility" list, the so-called hardship list.

Besides the Denver deal, Johnson said he'd had a firm offer from the NBA's Detroit Pistons, but it wasn't enough to make him quit school a year early.

Required to withdraw in writing, he was barely able to send a brief signed notice by a telephone copying device just as the draft was getting under way in New York.

Johnson said the reason for the Nuggets' change in plans remains unclear. "They didn't really give any reason, but there was speculation it had something to do with their trying to buy a franchise in the NBA," the soft-spoken Johnson said, adding he was neither happy nor sad about the decision to withdraw his name.

"It's just the decision that had to be made," he said, adding he is just as happy to play another year for UCLA.

"If there was no money involved, I would be staying in school anyway," he said.

Johnson and Rich Washington, both juniors this past season, had filed for eligibility for the NBA draft under the hardship clause. Washington did not withdraw his application and was drafted No. 3 in the first round by the Kansas City Kings.

The five-year Denver deal included an undisclosed sum which Johnson said was "somewhere near $1 million. I'd like to get a comparable offer (next year)," he said, "but there's no guarantee of that."

Johnson said if the deal had gone through he planned to finish college during the off-seasons, graduating in two or three years. Now, he said, the plan is to finish at UCLA next summer.

"We're very very pleased," said UCLA Coach Gene Bartow. "Marques will graduate with his class. We hope it's the right decision."

"If I had a choice, you know, I'd like to stay in Los Angeles," Johnson said. "But it's really kind of an uncontrollable situation. If the (Los Angeles) Lakers really wanted me to play for them they could make some sort of move within a month or two of the draft next year, but that's all speculation.

"I've talked with different people in the organization who have expressed an interest. They would have to either buy or trade in order to obtain a high draft choice. If there's the interest, it could be done."

Husker Guard Sets Meeting With Agent

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Jerry Fort admitted he was rooting for the Boston Celtics during the championship playoffs against Phoenix. Who knows — maybe it was a premonition.

"That was even before they drafted me," Fort said Tuesday after learning the National Basketball Association playoff champions had selected him in the third round. "I'm quite happy that I have a chance to make it with probably the best team in basketball."

Fort said he would discuss the matter with his agent, Continental Sports of Houston, Tex., late Tuesday night before deciding upon a possible negotiating figure.

"The third round is a good round," said Nebraska's all-time leading scorer who started all four years under head coach Joe Cipriano. "It's not like the first or second where you're almost assured of making the team.

"I've never been to Boston. I've been to New York City before," said the 6-3 guard from Chicago. "But now I'm mostly concentrating on making the team. They've got Jo Jo White, Charlie Scott and Kevin Stacom for guards. It seems like they'd need another guard on the roster to back them up.

"They have to use Havlicek (all-pro John) at guard a lot during the playoffs," he noted.

Fort said there would be no additional pressure with trying to earn a spot with the NBA champions than with any other pro team.

"I want to play regardless of what team it is. There's going to be the same amount of pressure in trying to make any NBA team," he said.

He said he would contact the Celtics before leaving for Los Angeles to participate in the California summer basketball league to make certain the Celtics have no objections.

Boston's second-round pick went to Phoenix as final payment for the Charlie Scott-Paul Westphal trade.

United Press International reported that Boston's assistant coach and head scout John Killilea said of Fort: "He has a good chance to make our ballclub. He likes to run and play defense."

Fort will leave Nebraska with his B.A. degree in history — a point assistant basketball coach Lonnie Porter said is as significant if not more so than being drafted.

"As a coaching staff, we've emphasized to Jerry Fort that pro basketball is very important. But the most important thing is that Jerry graduated. It's fine and good if he gets the chance to play pro ball, but the happiest moment for me is when Jerry or any athlete gets their degree."

Jerry Fort
Third-Round Pick

A pro career can come to halt anytime but now Jerry'll have something that no one can take away," Porter said.

Porter termed the Celtics selection as an honor for Fort, who set every scoring record in Nebraska history over the last four years.

"There's a lot of fine basketball players that go without being drafted. That's a bonus to be drafted, but to be drafted by Boston where tradition speaks for itself, that's just super. I can't say enough about Jerry. It couldn't have happened to a finer person.

"Jerry is an ideal citizen and a fine student. There won't be many to come along like Jerry Fort as far as a total person is concerned," Porter said. "Jerry hasn't changed much since coming here. His personality hasn't changed at all.

"I wish Jerry Fort all the luck in the world as far as the pro career but more importantly I hope he'll fulfill his dream to be a lawyer," Porter said.

Fort was the first guard taken by Boston and was the Celtics' second pick. The Celtics first choice was Norm Cook of Kansas who was taken as the 16th player on the first round.

Two other Big Eight players were chosen before Fort. They are Kansas State's Chuckie Williams by Cleveland as the 15th player in the first round and Missouri's Willie Smith as the first player chosen in the second round. Smith was taken by the Chicago Bulls.

Others selected include Iowa State's Herdie Ivy by Houston as the 10th player in the fourth round.

Kansas State's Carl Gerlach was chosen by Atlanta as the second player in the seventh round. Colorado's Dave Logan was taken by Kansas City as the third player in the ninth round and Iowa State's Art Johnson was picked by New Orleans as the seventh player in the tenth round.

Astros Pick Bannister 1st

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Bannister, the first pick in the baseball free-agent draft Tuesday, will be on the mound Saturday night for Arizona State. Where he makes his professional debut is not as certain.

Bannister, the left-handed ace for top-ranked Arizona State, was picked by the Houston Astros, who had the coveted No. 1 choice in the annual summer grab-bag of free-agent talent.

In a bumper crop of available pitchers, Bannister was called "something special" by one scout. "Our reports say he can play right now in the major leagues, that he can break in, right off the bat."

The Astros, as a rule, will not feed a first year-professional to the major league wolves. "That's always been our policy," said a Houston spokesman. "But we're going to watch him at the College World Series and see what he does."

An advocate of Bannister going directly to the major leagues is his coach at Arizona State, who takes the Sun Devils into the World Series this weekend in Omaha.

"My advice . . would be to take him right up," said Jim Brock, who has named Bannister to face rival Arizona Saturday night. "Not as the top man, but as No. 6 or 7 on a 10-man staff."

But Monday night, Bannister had said: "I've talked to Houston about starting out in the major leagues and I don't want to. I'd rather start out in the minor leagues and work myself up.

"I've seen too many cases of people starting out in the big leagues and it hurting them. I'd like to start off low and build up my confidence."

Brock says Bannister is an improved pitcher over last season, when, as a sophomore, he was 13-4 with a 1.88 earned run average in 157 innings. He was a first team All-American and led the nation in strikeouts, fanning 217 batters.

"He's much smarter this season," Brock said. "He's got great command of three pitches. His fastball is overpowering but he uses it less now. He only goes to it when he feels he has to. His curveball is very good and his changeup is awesome."

This year, Bannister, who will be 21 on Thursday, pitched in 20 games, winning 18 and losing one. He completed 15 games and had an ERA of 1.35 in 167 innings. Again, he led the nation in strikeouts—with 195— and, again, he was named an All-American.

Arizona State, which sent such stars as Reggie Jackson, Sal Bando and Rick Monday into the pros, offered another slugger to the major leagues, center fielder Ken Landreaux.

The California Angels, selecting sixth, grabbed the power-hitting Landreaux, who batted .413 with 47 home runs and 87 runs batted in for the Sun Devils this season. Playing in all 70 of Arizona State's games, Landreaux never committed an error and led the team in stolen bases with 28.

The Chicago Cubs, selecting seventh, took pitcher Herman Segelke, who throws right-handed and is from South San Francisco. Next, the Chicago White Sox picked Steven Trout, a left-hander from South Holland, Ill., and the son of the late major league hurler Dizzy Trout.

Floyd Bannister
No. 1 Selection

Montreal picked ninth and also went for pitching, taking Robert James, a right-hander from Sunland, Calif.

Leon Durham, a left-hander baseman from Cincinnati was selected 15th, taken by the St. Louis Cardinals. The Kansas City Royals made right-hander Ben Grzybek, Hialeah, Fla., the 18th selection of the first round.

NBA's Tallest Men Short On Comforts

The New York Times

By JACKIE LAPIN

New York — The long playing season ended officially Sunday, for the tall and the short in the National Basketball Association. But for the tall men, those hovering around 7 feet, there is a season that never ends when they look back unexpectedly and find a short man measuring himself up against them. It happens to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Tom Boerwinkle, George Johnson and Luke Witte among others.

Ever wonder what it is like to be too big for the bathroom on an airplane? A telephone booth? Or even the tables in a restaurant? The NBA's 7-footers have those problems every day. As Gullivers in a world of Lilliputions, they simply have conceded the world is not big enough for them. They have grown so used to ducking and feeling cramped that they hardly notice it. But they envy the average-sized person who takes the simple comforts for granted.

No matter what he does, Portland's LaRue Martin (6 feet 11 inches) still hangs out of beds. Seldom are hotel beds long enough. The big men will fight for the front seat in the first-class section of an airplane just to get enough leg room. They have trouble fitting in buses and must take up two seats. Theater seats, bathtubs and showers are all awkward.

Milwaukee Elmore Smith (7-0) says he can take one look at a car and know if he can fit into it. By adjusting the driver's seat in his Volvo so far back that it is almost in the back seat — "I look through my rear side windows."

Clothing is perhaps the tall athlete's greatest handicap.

"I feel I'm being discriminated against," says Cleveland's Witte (7-0). "I can't find clothes to fit me. Usually I have to have them specially altered. If I didn't have a nice salary, I would have one pair of pants, one shirt and one pair of penny loafers from 1964."

"People always talk about the money we make, but hell, a person over 6-8 has to make a decent buck just to buy his clothes," says Martin. "I have a 42-inch inseam. I can't even buy my pants in a tall man's shop. I have to have them made. I may luck upon some Levis, but that is it. My pants run $45-50 and a decent suit runs me $115-$250. I can't even touch a pair of socks. I put on a little weight each year and I have to give all my old clothes away. Because I'm tall, people notice me on the street. I have to be respectable. I can't dress like a bum except around the house."

Jim Chones of Cleveland (6-11) was rejected by a girl in high school because she thought he was too tall for her.

But, like all the others, Chones would not trade his height for anything, despite all its discomforts.

But being seen is not always a blessing. "In Cleveland, I can't do anything without immediate recognition," notes Witte. "It's really hard to have a personal life. You don't know how nice it is to have a few drinks, listen to the band and talk to your girl friend without someone coming over to you. I long for evenings like that."

Because they are so tall and spend so much time in airports, people simply assume big men are basketball players. That disturbs Johnson, who says:

"It's as if a tall person can't do anything else. With the height, they don't think I could be a doctor or a lawyer."

There is the constant question: "How tall are you?" Once Boerwinkle felt a tug on his jacket and looked down to see a little girl standing there. In the lowest voice she asked, "Baby, how many feets is you?"

ABA Prepared To Rest In Peace

Louisville, Ky. (AP) — If logic prevails in the illogical world of professional sports, the American Basketball Association and two of its franchises will be officially dead by the middle of next week, the president of the ABA said Tuesday.

The National Basketball Association meets next Monday and Tuesday and probably will accept a proposal to allow four ABA teams to enter the senior league, said ABA president John Y. Brown Jr.

"They ought to be locked up if they don't accept," said Brown, whose wife, Ellie, is majority stockholder of the Kentucky Colonels, one of the two apparently-doomed ABA franchises. The other is the Spirits of St. Louis, which has been moved to Utah but has yet to be renamed.

The decision to take in the four ABA teams — the New York Nets, Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers and San Antonio Spurs —will have to be accepted by 14 of the 18 NBA team owners.

Brown attended a secret meeting in Chicago Monday at which four of the six remaining ABA teams decided to try to enter the NBA.

The terms, according to Brown, are that each of the four will pay $4.5 million to the NBA, in addition to buying out the Colonels and Spirits.

"They're paying the Colonels and Spirits $3 million each, which is more than they are worth, and then they have league obligations of $2 million each," Brown said. "It will cost them about $7 million each to get in the NBA.

"They may come back with their tails between their legs if the NBA turns them down," Brown said. "But from a practical standpoint, I can't see how they (the NBA) can turn down the offer. But then again, everything in pro sports is an emotional decision."

Green Peppers are Cool

The pepper appears to be a native of tropical America. It was cultivated in Mexico and Peru long before the arrival of Columbus. It is recorded that Columbus took green peppers back to Europe with him on his first voyage.

Green peppers are a reservoir of minerals and vitamins. They are particularly rich in vitamin A and vitamin C. One medium pepper contains over 120 milligrams of vitamin C. This is twice the amount recommended by the National Research Council for an adult per day. The green pepper also contains some of the B vitamins necessary for healthy nerve and skin tissues.

This vegetable, like so many other green vegetables, is low in calories. One pepper contains approximately twenty calories and these are derived mainly from the carbohydrate in the vegetable.

Green peppers can be used in many different ways. One unusual and delightful way is to French Fry the green pepper strips.

Wash peppers and slice into strips ¼ inch wide. Dip each strip into batter of flour, egg, and milk for french frying. Place into deep hot fat (380 F) and cook until batter turns golden brown. Drain and serve hot. Send your questions, comments, or suggestions to: Ann Crowley, Box 80699 Lincoln, Ne 68501

His Old Ball Boy Surprises Ashe

PARIS (AP) — Arthur Ashe said he gorged his old Budapest ball boy on junk food for as long as he could get away with it. When Balacs Taroczy's Hungarian revolt came Tuesday, it was too late for the world's No. 1 player to change tactics and Ashe was ousted from the French Open Tennis Tournament.

Taroczy, a 22-year-old political science student whom Ashe remembered when he served as ball boy for him in 1963, turned the loss of the first two "junk food" sets into a quarter-final berth in the $210,000 tournament, serving murderously and hitting enough sharp back hands to beat Ashe 5-7, 2-6, 6-4, 6-0, 6-4.

Two other Americans, Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., and Eddie Dibbs of Miami, joined Taroczy, Raul Ramirez of Mexico and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in making the quarters. Solomon beat Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 1-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2, Dibbs won over Wojtek Fibak of Poland 76, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, Ramirez eliminated Bernard Mignot of Belgium 6-2, 6-1, 6-1 and Vilas beat Corrado Barzutti of Italy 6-2, 62, 6-3.

Ashe won the first two sets playing a coy, chopping, lobbing game on the red clay at Roland Garros Stadium, heated in the hard sun to above 90 degrees.

Taroczy charged the soft stuff at first, hitting it too hard or volleying into the net. Ashe's idea was to circumvent the edge he usually loses in his serve-and-volley game on the slower clay surface.

"The junk was working," Ashe said afterwards. "Then he got used to it. I found myself in a quandary about what to do. My approach shots were fouled up and I was hitting three yards long all the time. He just got used to the junk diet and by the time I started mixing it up, trying to hit harder, go for the net, it was too late. I thought he was a counter-puncher, but he turned out to be a hitter, too."

It was Taroczy's second big upset of the tournament. On Sunday he had knocked out Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia in straight sets, and he said he came up against Ashe "without any complexes.

"But I didn't think I could really win after the first two sets. I felt very tired and I just said to myself, 'Let's see what happens.' I don't really think Ashe tried very hard in the third set; but it was a time when I don't remember too much.

"I felt much better in the last two. I was attacking harder. All those lobs that I missed at first seemed so easy then. Before I couldn't get them, then they were easy to hit."

The turnaround came in the third set that drifted from the Hungarian's memory. Ashe won the first game, then Taroczy ripped off five in a row, slugging backhands and getting two of his seven service aces. Ashe reacted, though, breaking through in the eighth game and making the score 4-5 with a deep backhand winner. But Taroczy had the momentum. He took the last game to 40-0 and then closed the set with an ace.

The Hungarian dissected Ashe in the fourth set, leaving him only crumbs enough for eight points. The last set began with Ashe in the same situation that Bjorn Borg had found himself the day before—winning the first two sets, then losing two and having to fight back against a gathering force. Francois Jauffret, the 34-yearold Frenchman, cracked before Borg, 20. And it was Ashe, 32, who bent before a player 10 years younger.

Ousted In Paris

The last American woman in the competition, Kathy Kuykrndall of Miami, was eliminated by Florenta Mihai of Romania in the quarter-finals, losing 6-2, 0-6, 6-1, her play becoming steadily less mobile in the heat. Miss Mihai moved into the semi-finals against Renate Tomanova of Czechoslovakia.

If Orr Plays, It's In Chicago

Montreal (UPI) — Bobby Orr, the most decorated player in National Hockey League history, will decide Wednesday whether to sign with the Chicago Black Hawks or retire permanently from hockey, his agent Alan Eagleson said Tuesday.

The Toronto attorney said the 28-year-old defenseman would enter a hospital in Toronto Wednesday for an examination of his damaged left knee and the diagnosis will be the basis for his decision.

Orr, who has won more individual awards than any other player in NHL history, underwent a fourth and fifth operation on his left knee in 1975 and sat out all but 10 games last season.

"He may need a sixth operation and he may never play hockey again," Eagleson told newsmen at the annual NHL meetings here.

Orr had been expected to decide Tuesday whether to join the Hawks, the St. Louis Blues or take a one-year retirement. Eagleson said the decision to be made now is whether to join the Hawks or retire forever.

"He will not join any other team but the Chicago Black Hawks. However, Bobby will enter hospital in Toronto Wednesday for another examination of his knee. He may need a sixth operation and he may never play hockey again," Eagleson said.

"Both the Bruins and the Hawks know this and this is an important part of their discussions," Eagleson said, noting the two clubs were discussing the possibility of Chicago giving Boston compensation if it signs Orr from the Bruins' organization.

"I don't want to keep the suspense going for much longer. I don't want to keep postponing it, but I have no choice," Eagleson said.

"I hope to be able to have a final answer for you by noon on Wednesday. If negotiations are not consummated and if Bobby does have to be admitted to hospital in Toronto Wednesday he will probably announce his retirement from hockey.

"At this point, I am not permitted to announce anything else on the subject because anything I might add may jeopardize the negotiations between the Bruins and the Black Hawks."

Eagleson said at this stage there was only one thing definite— Bobby will not go back and play for the Boston Bruins.

Namath Loses

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The State Court of Appeals today rebuffed a $2.5 million damage suit by football star Joe Namath regarding the unauthorized use of his picture in an advertisement.

The ruling appears to clarify a freedom of the press issue regarding the use of news articles and photos for commercial promotions.

The state's highest court, in a unanimous decision, upheld an Appellate Division ruling throwing out Namath's suit against Sports Illustrated.

Pair Appeals Coaches Limit

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Two University of Alabama assistant coaches filed a suit in federal court Tuesday, seeking to overturn an NCAA rule limiting the size of coaching staffs.

Assistant football coach Dude Hennessey and assistant basketball coach Wendell Hudson filed the class-action suit, saying about 420 assistant coaches across the nation would be affected by the rule change.

Ten months ago, the NCAA voted to limit coaching staffs to eight assistants for football and two for basketball, effective Aug. 1.

The suit hopes to prove the NCAA violated constitutional rights to equal protection under the law and due process of law. Also, the suit said the new rule violates federal and state antitrust laws.

The two assistant coaches said they have been told by the university that they would be cut from coaching staffs if the rule chang goes into effect.

The suit contends Hudson and Hennessey "are being deprived of their employment as assistant coaches of the university and their rights to earn a living and pursue employment in their chosen profession have been impaired, hindered and restrained."

Also, the suit said, if the plaintiffs are removed from their current positions they will lose salary and "valuable retirement rights, annuity rights, bonus rights, insurance coverage and other fringe benefits."

The suit is to be heard by U.S. District Court Judge Sam Pointer. Last summer Pointer presided in Alabama football Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's suit against the NCAA which attempted to overturn the collegiate sports organization's limits on football and basketball squad sizes.

Pointer struck down the NCAA ruling, but that decision was later overturned by a higher court.

Campbell Reelected By NHL

MONTREAL (AP) — The cloudy status of the Kansas City Scouts cleared Tuesday at the National Hockey League's Board of Governors meeting: the trouble-wracked, 2-year-old franchise will come up with new ownership by July 1 or "We'll have to wind it down," said NHL President Clarence Campbell.

July 1 is the absolute cut-off date for the finalization of a schedule for the 1976-77 season, and Campbell said that lack of new funding by that date would cost the franchise its life.

Hours earlier, Campbell had been elected to yet another term at the helm of the league he took over in 1946. A fiveman search committee empaneled to find a successor for the white-haired, 72-year-old Campbell has been unable to produce a candidate, so the board reelected Campbell, who despite his expressed intention of retirement will stay on until a prospect can be agreed upon.

There was no definitive action taken with regard to the California Seals, who have sought to move to another city since plans of owner Mel Swig were voted down to build a new home in downtown San Francisco.

But Campbell insisted at a news conference, "The Seals will operate someplace in 197677. Where, or under whose auspices, I can't say because I don't know."

He was far less optimistic over the status of the Scouts, who are $5 million in debt and have been thwarted continually in efforts to find new backing.

Campbell said Swig was pursuing two alternatives for a potential move of the Seals. Swig said the two were Denver and San Jose, Calif. San Jose, however, can only be considered as in the planning stages since they have not as yet erected an arena. The club could remain in Oakland until construction of that arena is completed.

Campbell also announced that the governors would not permit the names of Montreal players John Van Boxmeer and Don Awrey to be engraved on the Stanley Cup because neither had played in any of the 13 games which took the Canadiens to the Cup. Though Awrey played in 72 regular season games and Van Boxmeer in 46, their names will not be included, but utility player Rick Chartraw, who played in just 22 regular season games but made it into the last two games of the playoffs, will be emblazoned on the silverware.

The governors approved the measure suggested by the rules committee that a player who incurs three game misconduct penalties be suspended for the next game; devised a formula for playoff scheduling next season which would require fewer dark days at home arenas, and also set up a scale of payment to junior teams for players drafted by NHL clubs, with maximum payment for a player drafted set at $20,000.

O'Neill Win To Merwald

O'Neill — Lynn Merwald of Omaha won the 36-hole medley play women's golf tournament here Tuesday at the O'Neill Country Club.

She fired a 148 to defeat Nan Circo of Omaha and Deb Benish of Norfolk, who each tallied a 155 total. Circo took second by winning the playoff.

Dorothy Schwartzkopf of Lincoln was fourth with a 161.

Newcombe, Stockton Lose

Beckenham, England (UPI) — Seeded stars John Newcombe and Dick Stockton bowed out Tuesday while favorite Jimmy Connors powered on remorselessly in the Beckenham Robertsons grass court tennis tournament.

Newcombe, the fourth-seeded Australian, arrived from competing in the French championships and was promptly hustled out of the first round by New Zealander Russell Simpson, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Connors, favored to regain his Wimbledon crown, did not have things all his own way against 21-year-old Peter Fleming of Chatham, N.J. Fleming, a tall, big server playing his first tournament as a pro, gave the left-hander from Belleville, Ill., plenty to competition for more than an hour before Connors made it into the third round, 8-6, 6-3.

Seventh-seeded Tom Gorman outgunned Erik van Dillen, 6-2, 6-3, in another all-American second round encounter.

Newcombe, three times Wimbledon champion, wrote off his chances of winning back the title and talked about the possibility of retiring after his upset defeat.

"My arm injury is not really any better. I reckon that two weeks ago I was a 12-1 bet for Wimbledon—now I must be about 30-1," he said.

Newcombe's injury problems began almost two years ago and this latest trouble, which flared up in the French championships last week, could bring about an early retirement for the 32-year-old Australian.

"I have been playing on injuries now for 20 months and it is starting to wear a little thin," Newcombe said.

Cubs Acquire Coleman

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs obtained veteran Detroit right-handed pitcher Joe Coleman from the Detroit Tigers Tuesday for an undisclosed amount of cash and a player to be named after the season.

Coleman, 29, had his best season in 1971 when he posted a 20-9 record for the Tigers, striking out 236 batters in 286 innings. In 1972 he had a 19-14 record and the following year he was 23-15.

Coleman, 1-5 after 12 starts this season, was the first selection of the 1965 June free-agent draft.

Fishing continues good across most of Nebraska, although things have slowed somewhat at a few of the major reservoirs, according to Game and Parks Commission conservation officers.

Fishing seems to be getting better at ponds, pits, and reservoirs, making up for any slowdown on the big lakes. According to reports from the field, outdoor activity includes:

Bridgeport State Recreation Area — bluegill on flies and worms; a few pike and walleye taking artificials.

Smith Lake (Rushville) — northern pike to 2 pounds and largemouth bass to 3½ pounds, both on artificials; good success on bluegill to 1 pound hitting worms, flies and artificials; some bullheads at night on worms.

Soldiers Creek (Fort Robinson Wood Reserve) — brown and rainbow trout to 20 inches taking worms and spinners.

Market Sees Modest Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market had to content itself with a modest gain Tuesday after a broad early advance faltered.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up about 7 points at its midsession peak, wound up with a plus 1.88 reading at 959.97.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, came to 20.20 million shares.

Brokers traced the market's early strength primarily to technical forces, with traders shopping for bargains after the Dow settled to a 3½-month closing low on Monday.

There was a flurry of interest in the news that the Senate Banking Committee had urged the Federal Reserve to go easy on its efforts to curb monetary growth by allowing interest rates to rise.

But analysts noted that it wasn't clear that the Fed, an independent agency, would necessarily be inclined to take up the lawmakers' suggestions.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed .17 to 98.80, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks picked up .10 to 52.62.

Gulf Oil, the day's most active issue, advanced a fraction on turnover of better than 260,000 shares. Other oils were mixed.

Alcan Aluminium, also active, dropped a fraction. The company said strikes at its smelters in British Columbia and Quebec would have a "material adverse effect" on its income.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market was down .10 at 87.12.

If these aren't your favorite brands now, perhaps they should be

They're our private brands and if you're concerned about high food prices now is a good time to get acquainted with them. What are private brands? They're products we buy in quantity and package with our name on them. These private brands are not heavily advertised so the savings are passed on to you. So our brands are less expensive. And because we put our own name on each package, we're very fussy about the quality that goes inside. You should be completely satisfied or you get your money back! Lower price, higher quality, our guarantee, plus very special prices for our Favorite Brands Saving Sale. Isn't it time you gave our favorite brands a try?

Make Sure Insurance Covers Campers, Trailers

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York—Renting a camper or travel-trailer this summer? Don't fail to call your insurance agent, to see whether you're covered. The odds are that your present auto policy will extend to the rented vehicle without any extra charge — but policies vary. Some points to check:

—Who can drive the rented camper? In some cases, you, your spouse, and the teenage drivers in your family may be covered. But the insurance may not extend to a friend who's traveling with you and takes a turn at the wheel. In other policies he may be included.

—How extensive is the coverage? If you've canceled collision and comprehensive insurance on your automobile, you won't have it for a rented camper, or trailer either. In that case, the rental agent would probably insist that you plug the gap by buying collision and comprehensive from him. In some cases, physical-damage insurance is part of the rental package and included in the price.

—How long will the coverage last? Your auto policy extends to rented campers only as long as they're not for "regular" use. If you plan to keep the camper for a while, ask your agent what his company means by "regular."

—What if you rent or borrow the vehicle from a friend? Both you and he should check with your agents, to see what's covered.

If you buy a trailer instead of renting one, it normally will be covered under your automobile liability and medical-payments policies at no extra charge. So will the kind of camper designed to be attached to a pickup truck. But call your agent as soon as you've decided to buy, to be sure it's covered and to get it properly listed as an insured vehicle. If you want collision and comprehensive coverage on the trailer, you'll probably have to pay something extra.

Typically, the liability coverage and medical-payments coverage applies to the trailer only as long as it's hitched to your car. If someone steps out of the trailer while it's sitting detached in the yard, and breaks his leg, auto coverage won't pick up the medical bill (although your homeowner's policy might). The homeowner's policy might also give you liability coverage for the "layup" months — check this with your agent. But your collision and comprehensive policies should apply whether the trailer is hitched up or detached.

Buying a motorhome is a different proposition. Here, you must buy separate insurance rather than look to your auto policy for coverage. You'll probably get a lower rate if you insure with the company that already writes your auto business. At Allstate, for example, current auto policyholders can insure a motorhome for 75 percent of the cost of their regular automobile. If you insure only a motorhome with Allstate, you'll pay the regular automobile rates.

Reds To Swap Trade Envoys With Manila

Manila (AP) — The Soviet Union and the Philippines will exchange trade representatives with all privileges and immunities enjoyed by diplomatic missions, according to details of an agreement.

The arrangement, signed in Moscow during the eight-day official visit to the Soviet Union by President Ferdinand E. Marcos, provides that both governments will not require their respective trade representatives to be subject to registration and that they are an integral part of their respective embassies.

House Committee OKs $106 Billion For Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing concern over the Soviets' nuclear missile strength, the House Appropriations Committee approved a record $106-billion defense bill Tuesday.

The committee rejected Senate efforts to cut back spending on the controversial B1 bomber, a Trident submarine long-range missile and another nuclear aircraft carrier.

The committee approved President Ford's full $2.8-billion request for the Trident submarine and $1.5-billion request for the B1 bomber. The Senate had sought to cut $600 million for the missile and a $350-million advance for a nuclear aircraft carrier.

The $106-billion bill for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 is only $814 million below Ford's request, the smallest cut in a decade. Cuts had ranged near $5 billion in recent years.

The full House is to act on the bill next week.

The committee chopped $101.4 million off Ford's request for intelligence funds but, as always, refused to say how much money for intelligence agencies is hidden among the defense items in the bill.

The committee said that until present reorganization determines the future of U.S. intelligence, Congress should fund only "vital intelligence activities (which) will not result in major new commitments."

On the B1 bomber, the committee rejected 26 to 15 an amendment by Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., to prohibit any production spending for the plane until March 1 so that whoever is elected president in November can decide whether the plane is needed.

Opponents, including Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., said the next president obviously can halt the B1 program whether Congress approves such a provision or not.

The B1 is being developed to replace the B52 as the Air Force's chief strategic bomber. No decision has been made yet whether to go ahead and begin production of the aircraft.

The appropriations committee also rejected two other Addabbo amendments. One would have cut $600 million for the purchase of 80 Trident missiles. It was rejected 30 to 10.

Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., noted the Soviets also are developing a large Trident-type missile-firing submarine and the amendment "just puts us further behind the Soviets."

The other amendment sought to postpone for a year a $350-million advance for another nuclear aircraft carrier requested by President Ford. It was defeated 22 to 16.

Opponents said the one-year delay would add $200 million to the anticipated $2.5 billion cost of the aircraft carrier because of inflation.

The $106-billion defense bill includes $29.3 billion for weapons and hardware procurement, $10.7 billion for research and development, $34 billion for personnel and $32 billion for operations and maintenance.

Nixon Aide Made Plans To Drug Jack Anderson

Washington (UPI) — The Nixon White House made an effort in March 1972 to discredit columnist Jack Anderson by drugging him so he would appear incoherent during a public appearance, it was disclosed Tuesday.

E. Howard Hunt, subsequently convicted in the Watergate breakin, lunched with a retired CIA physician at a Washington restaurant a stone's throw from the White House in hopes of obtaining a hallucinogenic drug for the project.

Details of the attempt to discredit Anderson — who aroused administration ire by publishing secret White House transcripts revealing President Nixon's "tilt" in favor of Pakistan in the Indo-Pakistan war of 1971 — were published by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence in a special supplement to its final report.

The project was dropped after it was determined to be impractical.

The Intelligence Committee report denied a Washington Post report by Bob Woodward, Sept. 21, 1975, that the White House actually attempted to assassinate Anderson.

"The committee staff," the report said, "has found no evidence of a plan to assassinate Jack Anderson."

Hunt acted, the report said, after he was summoned by presidential aide Charles Colson, whose logbook showed he met Hunt March 14, 1972.

Colson testified to the Senate committee he was asked "many times" by President Nixon to discredit Anderson although Nixon did not specifically suggest drugging.

Senate investigators also spoke with the doctor, unnamed in the report, who said Nov. 7, 1975:

"I was asked if I could help them provide behavior altering medication to an individual, unidentified, and in no way could I detect of whom they were speaking. I said I could not. I had retired in 1971 ... I had no access to any kind of medicines. So I did not provide it."

Hunt, who worked with convicted Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy on the project, also considered spreading a drug on the steering wheel of Anderson's car, according to the report.

The two decided this might not work in winter because Anderson would wear gloves, while in summer the moisture on his palms might prevent absorption.

They decided against breaking into Anderson's house to place a drug in a medicine bottle. They decided it would be impractical to place a pill in a cocktail because Anderson did not drink, the report said.

Like Winston Churchill

"I feel rather like Winston Churchill," Anderson told UPI in a telephone interview. "There is nothing quite as exhilarating as being shot at and missed!"

The columnist said he was considering taking legal action.

Sheriff's Department Gets $49,000 To Pay Employes

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Lancaster County Board appropriated another $49,000 to the financially pressed sheriff's office Tuesday so the department could pay its employes.

Just two weeks ago the board transferred $25,995 to the sheriff's office.

County Board Chairman Bruce Hamilton wasn't too pleased that the board had to bail the sheriff out so soon after the last emergency appropriation.

"What's the purpose of having a budget?" Hamilton asked.

County Fiscal Officer Elmer Cheek explained the $25,995 request was needed because many county salaries were raised last fall in an effort to match a 10% wage hike granted city employes.

The main reason another $49,000 is needed, Cheek said, is because the sheriff is having to pay out a lot more money to house county prisoners in the city jail and at the State Penitentiary.

However, the county already has spent $143,673, Cheek said, and the year won't be up until July. Additionally, he reported that several other claims totalling $25,000 haven't been filed yet.

In other business the board approved the request of Inland Shores Marinas, Inc., to sell beer on Sundays at Branched Oak Lake. The board and State Liquor Control Commission already have agreed the firm can sell beer during the week.

The board also approved the Railroad Transportation Safety District's (RTSD) request to proceed with plans to relocate railroad tracks across West O St. The City Council approved the application Monday, which paves the way for the RTSD to proceed with the track relocation project.

Two new railroad lines will be built south of West O and over Salt Creek to carry train traffic. The new lines should be open by the fall of 1978 at the earliest.

Board members Hamilton and Bob Colin also signed a new lease agreement authorizing the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) to use a building at 1001 New Hampshire.

LOMR Director Bob Smith said the building would allow LOMR to expand its prevocational services program and human development program. The county will pay $435 a month in rent.

Colin didn't think the county should be expanding any programs until officials see how hard pressed they are this summer in drafting next year's budget.

Several parents of youngsters involved in the LOMR programs voiced concerns that the new building would not be safe. Mary Hepburn O'Shea said she didn't think the building offered adequate recreational or exercise areas for the youngsters.

Colin reluctatntly voted to approve the lease. His vote was needed since Commissioner Jan Gauger was absent Tuesday.

The board delayed action on a proposed agreement with the city to hire a risk manager to handle insurance for both the city and county.

Hamilton and Colin objected to a proposed change in the contract which would give the city finance director the power to appoint the manager. The commissioners said they wanted the power to confirm the appointment since the county would be paying a third of the manager's salary under the arrangement.

Revised Rules May Get Hearing

By United Press International

A Nebraska Insurance Department attorney said Tuesday a second hearing may be held on a rewritten version of proposed rules and regulations designed to prohibit discrimination in insurance coverage and benefits on the basis of sex or marital status.

James Valdez said the proposed regulations up for an initial hearing May 12 are being revised on the basis of testimony received during the hearing and written comments that have followed.

The bulk of the changes, he said, are little more than revisions.

However, he said the subject matter and the changes appear to warrant another hearing, possibly next month.

"We've received a lot of written comments since the hearing, and after we make the changes, we would like to be sure everybody has had an opportunity to comment," Valdez said.

"This is an important issue and we don't want to move hastily," he added.

The rules and regulations would generally prohibit insurance companies from refusing coverage or benefits solely on the basis of sex or marital status. They would not cover rates.

Valdez told UPI earlier while some have raised the rate question, Insurance Department efforts in that area would be something to consider at some time in the future. He said State Insurance Director E. Benjamin Nelson was researching that question through the National Organization of State Insurance Directors.

One of the questions raised during the hearing was whether the proposed rules and regulations were within the department's scope of authority as spelled out in Nebraska laws.

Valdez said generally the "rule is within our authority" and indicated some of the revisions were designed to make sure it is.

Administrator Plan Considered

Lancaster County commissioners said Tuesday they are interested in talking to Douglas County officials about seeking legislation which would help modernize county government.

However, Commissioners Bob Colin and Bruce Hamilton said they don't favor a Douglas County plan to hire a fulltime county administrator.

Colin and Hamilton were reacting to Douglas County Commissioner Michael Albert's proposal to hire a county administrator. A new state law would be needed to enable Douglas County to hire such a manager.

Hamilton said he thinks the two counties should work together to seek legislation which would give Nebraska counties the option of selecting what type of government plan they wish to have. Hamilton said he favors more city-county consolidation.

Colin said he wouldn't favor hiring a fulltime manager for Lancaster County because he thinks the three-member County Board and its staff can do the job.

Colin doesn't think Douglas County needs a manager, either.

"All Douglas County would be doing is creating another job," he stated.

County Commissioner Jan Gauger has said she favors meeting with Douglas County Board to discuss proposed legislation.

Market Sees Modest Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market had to content itself with a modest gain Tuesday after a broad early advance faltered

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks up about 7 points at its midsession peak wound up with a plus 1 88 reading at 959 97

Gainers clung to a 7-6 edge over losers among New York Stock Exchange listed issues after leading by more than 2 to 1 earlier

Big Board volume edged up to 16 66 million shares from 14 51 million on Monday

Nationwide turnover in NYSE listed issues including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market came to 20 20 million shares

Brokers traced the market s early strength primarily to technical forces with traders shopping for bargains after the Dow settled to a 3½ month closing low on Monday

There was a flurry of interest in the news that the Senate Banking Committee had urged the Federal Reserve to go easy on its efforts to curb monetary growth by allowing interest rates to rise

But analysts noted that it wasn t clear that the Fed, an independent agency would necessarily be inclined to take up the lawmakers suggestions

Wall Streeters also noted a tendency among investors to hold back awaiting results of the primary elections in California, New Jersey and Ohio

Standard & Poor s 500-stock index climbed 17 to 98 80, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index of more than 1 500 common stocks picked up 10 to 52 62

Gulf Oil the day s most active issue advanced a fraction on turnover of better than 260 000 shares Other oils were mixed

Alcan Aluminium also active dropped a fraction The company said strikes at its smelters in British Columbia and Quebec would have a material adverse effect on its income

At the American Stock Exchange the market value index rose 10 to 101 46

The NASDAQ composite index for the over the-counter market was down 10 at 87 12

—Staying Ahead—

Make Sure Insurance Covers Campers, Trailers

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York—Renting a camper or travel-trailer this summer? Don't fail to call your insurance agent, to see whether you're covered. The odds are that your present auto policy will extend to the rented vehicle without any extra charge — but policies vary. Some points to check.

—Who can drive the rented camper? In some cases, you, your spouse, and the teenage drivers in your family may be covered. But the insurance may not extend to a friend who's traveling with you and takes a turn at the wheel. In other policies he may be included.

—How extensive is the coverage? If you've canceled collision and comprehensive insurance on your automobile, you won't have it for a rented camper, or trailer either. In that case, the rental agent would probably insist that you plug the gap by buying collision and comprehensive from him. In some cases, physical-damage insurance is part of the rental package and included in the price.

—How long will the coverage last? Your auto policy extends to

Jane Bryant Quinn

rented campers only as long as they're not for "regular" use. If you plan to keep the camper for a while, ask your agent what his company means by "regular."

—What if you rent or borrow the vehicle from a friend? Both you and he should check with your agents, to see what's covered.

If you buy a trailer instead of renting one, it normally will be covered under your automobile liability and medical-payments policies at no extra charge. So will the kind of camper designed to be attached to a pickup truck. But call your agent as soon as you've decided to buy, to be sure it's covered and to get it properly listed as an insured vehicle. If you want collision and comprehensive coverage on the trailer, you'll probably have to pay something extra.

Typically, the liability coverage and medical-payments coverage applies to the trailer only as long as it's hitched to your car. If someone steps out of the trailer while it's sitting detached in the yard, and breaks his leg, auto coverage won't pick up the medical bill (although your homeowner's policy might). The homeowner's policy might also give you liability coverage for the "layup" months — check this with your agent. But your collision and comprehensive policies should apply whether the trailer is hitched up or detached.

Buying a motorhome is a different proposition. Here, you must buy separate insurance rather than look to your auto policy for coverage. You'll probably get a lower rate if you insure with the company that already writes your auto business. At Allstate, for example, current auto policyholders can insure a motorhome for 75 percent of the cost of their regular automobile. If you insure only a motorhome with Allstate, you'll pay the regular automobile rates.

House Committee OKs $106 Billion For Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing concern over the Soviets' nuclear missile strength, the House Appropriations Committee approved a record $106-billion defense bill Tuesday.

The committee rejected Senate efforts to cut back spending on the controversial B1 bomber, a Trident submarine long-range missile and another nuclear aircraft carrier.

The committee approved President Ford's full $2.8-billion request for the Trident submarine and $1.5-billion request for the B1 bomber. The Senate had sought to cut $600 million for the missile and a $350-million advance for a nuclear aircraft carrier.

The $106-billion bill for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 is only $814 million below Ford's request, the smallest cut in a decade. Cuts had ranged near $5 billion in recent years.

The full House is to act on the bill next week.

The committee chopped $101.4 million off Ford's request for intelligence funds but, as always, refused to say how much money for intelligence agencies is hidden among the defense items in the bill.

The committee said that until present reorganization determines the future of U.S. intelligence, Congress should fund only "vital intelligence activities (which) will not result in major new commitments."

On the B1 bomber, the committee rejected 26 to 15 an amendment by Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., to prohibit any production spending for the plane until March 1 so that whoever is elected president in November can decide whether the plane is needed.

Opponents, including Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., said the next president obviously can halt the B1 program whether Congress approves such a provision or not.

The B1 is being developed to replace the B52 as the Air Force's chief strategic bomber. No decision has been made yet whether to go ahead and begin production of the aircraft.

The appropriations committee also rejected two other Addabbo amendments. One would have cut $600 million for the purchase of 80 Trident missiles. It was rejected 30 to 10.

Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., noted the Soviets also are developing a large Trident-type missile-firing submarine and the amendment "just puts us further behind the Soviets."

The other amendment sought to postpone for a year a $350-million advance for another nuclear aircraft carrier requested by President Ford. It was defeated 22 to 16.

Opponents said the one-year delay would add $200 million to the anticipated $2.5 billion cost of the aircraft carrier because of inflation.

The $106-billion defense bill includes $29.5 billion for weapons and hardware procurement, $10.7 billion for research and development, $34 billion for personnel and $32 billion for operations and maintenance.

Nixon Aide Made Plans To Drug Jack Anderson

Washington (UPI) — The Nixon White House made an effort in March 1972 to discredit columnist Jack Anderson by drugging him so he would appear incoherent during a public appearance it was disclosed Tuesday

E Howard Hunt subsequently convicted in the Watergate breakin lunched with a retired CIA physician at a Washington restaurant a stone s throw from the White House in hopes of obtaining a hallucinogenic drug for the project

Details of the attempt to discredit Anderson — who aroused administration ire by publishing secret White House transcripts revealing President Nixon s tilt in favor of Pakistan in the Indo-Pakistan war of 1971 — were published by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence in a special supplement to its final report

The project was dropped after it was determined to be impractical

The Intelligence Committee report denied a Washington Post report by Bob Woodward Sept 21 1975 that the White House actually attempted to assassinate Anderson

The committee staff the report said has found no evidence of a plan to assassinate Jack Anderson

Hunt acted the report said after he was summoned by presidential aide Charles Colson whose logbook showed he met Hunt March 14 1972

Colson testified to the Senate committee he was asked many times by President Nixon to discredit Anderson although Nixon did not specifically suggest drugging

Senate investigators also spoke with the doctor unnamed in the report who said Nov 7 1975

I was asked if I could help them provide behavior altering medication to an individual unidentified and in no way could I detect of whom they were speaking I said I could not I had retired in 1971 I had no access to any kind of medicines So I did not provide it

Hunt who worked with convicted Watergate burglar G Gordon Liddy on the project also considered spreading a drug on the steering wheel of Anderson s car according to the report

The two decided this might not work in winter because Anderson would wear gloves, while in summer the moisture on his palms might prevent absorption

They decided against breaking into Anderson s house to place a drug in a medicine bottle They decided it would be impractical to place a pill in a cocktail because Anderson did not drink the report said

I feel rather like Winston Churchill Anderson told UPI in a telephone interview There is nothing quite as exhilarating as being shot at and missed!

The columnist said he was considering taking legal action

Revised Rules May Get Hearing

By United Press International

A Nebraska Insurance Department attorney said Tuesday a second hearing may be held on a rewritten version of proposed rules and regulations designed to prohibit discrimination in insurance coverage and benefits on the basis of sex or marital status

James Valdez said the proposed regulations up for an initial hearing May 12 are being revised on the basis of testimony received during the hearing and written comments that have followed

The bulk of the changes he said are little more than revisions

However he said the subject matter and the changes appear to warrant another hearing, possibly next month

We ve received a lot of written comments since the hearing and after we make the changes we would like to be sure everybody has had an opportunity to comment Valdez said

This is an important issue and we don t want to move hastily he added

The rules and regulations would generally prohibit insurance companies from refusing coverage or benefits solely on the basis of sex or marital status They would not cover rates

Valdez told UPI earlier while some have raised the rate question Insurance Department efforts in that area would be something to consider at some time in the future He said State Insurance Director E Benjamin Nelson was researching that question through the National Organization of State Insurance Directors

One of the questions raised during the hearing was whether the proposed rules and regulations were within the department s scope of authority as spelled out in Nebraska laws

Valdez said generally the rule is within our authority and indicated some of the revisions were designed to make sure it is

Sheriff's Department Gets $49,000 To Pay Employes

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Lancaster County Board appropriated another $49 000 to the financially pressed sheriff s office Tuesday so the department could pay its employes

Just two weeks ago the board transferred $25 995 to the sheriff's office

County Board Chairman Bruce Hamilton wasn t too pleased that the board had to bail the sheriff out so soon after the last emergency appropriation

'What s the purpose of having a budget?' Hamilton asked

County Fiscal Officer Elmer Cheek explained the $25 995 request was needed because many county salaries were raised last fall in an effort to match a 10% wage hike granted city employes

The main reason another $49,000 is needed Cheek said is because the sheriff is having to pay out a lot more money to house county prisoners in the city jail and at the State Penitentiary

Last year the county earmarked $90 000 to cover the cost of housing prisoners in the jails for a full year

However the county already has spent $143,673 Cheek said and the year won t be up until July Additionally, he reported that several other claims totalling $25 000 haven t been filed yet

In other business the board approved the request of Inland Shores Marinas, Inc , to sell beer on Sundays at Branched Oak Lake The board and State Liquor Control Commission already have agreed the firm can sell beer during the week

The board also approved the Railroad Transportation Safety District s (RTSD) request to proceed with plans to relocate railroad tracks across West O St The City Council approved the application Monday which paves the way for the RTSD to proceed with the track relocation project

Two new railroad lines will be built south of West O and over Salt Creek to carry train traffic The new lines should be open by the fall of 1978 at the earliest

Board members Hamilton and Bob Colin also signed a new lease agreement authorizing the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) to use a building at 1001 New Hampshire

LOMR Director Bob Smith said the building would allow LOMR to expand its prevocational services program and human development program The county will pay $435 a month in rent

Colin didn t think the county should be expanding any programs until officials see how hard pressed they are this summer in drafting next year s budget

Several parents of youngsters involved in the LOMR programs voiced concerns that the new building would not be safe Mary Hepburn O Shea said she didn t think the building offered adequate recreational or exercise areas for the youngsters

Colin reluctantly voted to approve the lease His vote was needed since Commissioner Jan Gauger was absent Tuesday

The board delayed action on a proposed agreement with the city to hire a risk manager to handle insurance for both the city and county

Hamilton and Colin objected to a proposed charge in the contract which would give the city finance director the power to appoint the manager The commissioners said they wanted the power to confirm the appointment since the county would be paying a third of the manager s salary under the arrangement

Administrator Plan Considered

Lancaster County commissioners said Tuesday they are interested in talking to Douglas County officials about seeking legislation which would help modernize county government

However Commissioners Bob Colin and Bruce Hamilton said they don t favor a Douglas County plan to hire a fulltime county administrator

Colin and Hamilton were reacting to Douglas County Commissioner Michael Albert s proposal to hire a county administrator A new state law would be needed to enable Douglas County to hire such a manager

Hamilton said he thinks the two counties should work together to seek legislation which would give Nebraska counties the option of selecting what type of government plan they wish to have Hamilton said he favors more city-county consolidation

Colin said he wouldn t favor hiring a fulltime manager for Lancaster County because he thinks the three-member County Board and its staff can do the job

Colin doesn t think Douglas County needs a manager either

All Douglas County would be doing is creating another job ' he stated

County Commissioner Jan Gauger has said she favors ' meeting with Douglas County Board to discuss proposed legislation

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Wednesday, June 9, 1976

Pisces Dinah Shore may seem always to be happy, but her chart indicates that, very often, she can be crying on the inside. Toroscopes are very revealing that way. In the hands of an expert, a horoscope can provide a valuable, psychological tool. The popular singer is prescient, senses what is to occur, is not easy for others to fool, but she can be a victim of closing her own eyes to the facts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Cash flow improves. Unorthodox procedures do the trick. Money, possessions, agreement affecting future security — these could all be on agenda. Highlight versatility, flexibility. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What seems a defeat, could boomerang into victory. Know it and keep the faith! Partner, mate and other allies lend support. You build on solid base as popularity increases. You'll get peek at your personal future!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be ready for variety, change of scenery, interesting dialogue with member of opposite sex. Confidences are exchanged. You gain needed information — and added confidence. Special services will be highlighted.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Its patented shock absorbers are engineered for extra travel, and heavy-duty coil springs take the place of ordinary leaf springs. So the suspension absorbs bumps and jolts instead of passing them on to passengers.
Every luxury car is luxurious on the highway. But Peugeot remains luxurious even on roads that aren't.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Wednesday, June 9, 1976

Pisces Dinah Shore may seem always to be happy, but her chart indicates that, very often, she can be crying on the inside. Horoscopes are very revealing that way. In the hands of an expert, a horoscope can provide a valuable, psychological tool. The popular singer is prescient, senses what is to occur, is not easy for others to fool, but she can be a victim of closing her own eyes to the facts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Cash flow improves. Unorthodox procedures do the trick. Money, possessions, agreement affecting future security — these could all be on agenda. Highlight versatility, flexibility. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What seems a defeat, could boomerang into victory. Know it and keep the faith! Partner, mate and other allies lend support. You build on solid base as popularity increases. You'll get peek at your personal future!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be ready for variety, change of scenery, interesting dialogue with member of opposite sex. Confidences are exchanged. You gain needed information — and added confidence. Special services will be highlighted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Lunar aspects now point to emotional responses, significant creative activity. Home area is emphasized. Family member makes concession. Some of your views are vindicated. A wish is fulfilled. You can make friends and influence more people.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Slow pace. Avoid direct confrontations. Land, security, property appraisals could figure prominently. Check behind the scenes. See as is, not merely as your fantasies depict. A contract is not yet ready for signature.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Hold off on journeys, if possible. Avoid disputes with relatives. You have plenty of responsibility — right in your own backyard. Know it and don't borrow trouble. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in scenario.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get rid of unnecessary expenses. One who claims to know it all is willing to take changes — at whatever it might cost to you. Protect self in clinches. Money picture can be bright if you "help it along."

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Cycle high — you activate area of chart having to do with contracts, public relations, partnership, marriage. Your creative resources surge to forefront. You could meet some exciting people — and "new love" could figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Follow through on hunch — your intuition now should be sharply-honed. Aquarian is in picture. Accent on what's happening at "secret" confab. Keep promises connected with special services, work and health.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Swift changes could be featured. Travel is on agenda, along with acceleration of social activities. Take notes. Get thoughts, ideas on paper. Gemini, Sagittarius persons command spotlight. Friends could argue and try to draw you into conflict. Have none of it!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be willing to tear down for purpose of reconstruction. One in authority is willing to support your contentions. Some members of community could be envious. Know it and consider sources. Scorpio, Leo and Taurus figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be ready for questions, reviews, challenges. Have pertinent material at hand. Learning process is stimulated. You can meet persons of varying interests and stand on your own. A Publisher might make you an offer.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
